CLASH OF VIEWS IS DIVIDING BOTH MAJOR PARTIES

Conservatives Fight to Stop Liberals.

Roosevelt's Plans

Friends of President Roosevelt yesterday revealed that he intends to tour the nation widely, speaking in defense of his current policies and appealing to voters for re-election support. Advisers want him to travel from coast to coast. Details on Page 6.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Political developments in the last few days have directed public attention to the lines of cleavage in both the Republican and Democratic parties as they address themselves to the 1936 presidential election. In both parties liberals are lining up against conservatives.

In the Republican party the proportions assumed by the candidacy of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho for presidential nomination have uncovered the chasm between the two schools of thought.

In all parts of the country liberal Republicans are trooping to the Borah banner. They are preparing to enter the senator in the presidential primaries in New York, Illinois, and Wisconsin. Similar moves are afoot in Indiana, Ohio, Massachusetts and a number of other big states, normally Republican, while in the mountain and Pacific states hardly any other candidate is being considered.

Sacks of Mail Pour In.

The senator has been literally inundated with letters and telegrams manifesting interest in his candidacy. Contemplating the sacks of mail as yet unopened, Mr. Borah ruefully commented that he could not begin to answer a hundredth part of the letters.

No less active are the conservative Republicans, who have been galvanized into activity against the nomination of the Idaho senator. In New York and other eastern states particularly, the tocsin is being sounded and conservative leaders are marshaling their forces to "stop Borah." They are ringing the changes on his age, his unorthodox monetary theories, and his party irregularity as reasons that he should not be nominated.

Just when the Democrats were beginning to take a lot of comfort in this evidence of schism in the Republican party the cleavage between their own liberals and conservatives came prominently into view. It was announced that Al Smith would be the principal speaker at the dinner of the anti-New Deal American Liberty league on Jan. 25. In this speech Mr. Smith, the Democratic candidate for President in 1928, is expected to sound the keynote of the defection of conservative Democrats from the candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt for reëlection.

Smith Spurns Olive Branch.

Mrs. Roosevelt, presumably with the knowledge and approval of the President, promptly invited Mr. Smith to be their guest at the White House when he comes to Washington for this speech, but Mr. Smith declined with thanks. The inference is that Mr. Smith has definitly broken with the President over the New Deal.

The defection of Mr. Smith will be an important factor in the election in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and numerous other states in which he has a large following. Particularly will it have a bearing on the attitude of Tammany Hall, despite the present apparent fealty of that institution to the Roosevelt administration. James J. Dooling, chief of Tammany Hall, is a close personal friend of Mr. Smith.

Gov. Landon of Kansas appears to be the beneficiary at the moment of the resistance which conservative Republicans are organizing to the Borah candidacy. Landon is being hailed by the eastern conservatives as a sound money man. In his candidacy they think they see a promise of the defeat of Borah.

Brookhart Assails Landon.

From other quarters has emanated a good deal of sniping at Landon. Former Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart of Iowa charged in a speech that Landon is the Standard Oil candidate. Hoover partisans circulated the story that Landon, through an independent oil producer, is being financed by Standard Oil. Landon denied the

RESIGNS LEAGUE REFUGEE POST; REBUKES NAZIS

M'Donald Assails Jew Baiting.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—James G. McDonald announced tod his resignation, effective tomorrow, as high commissioner of the league nations for refugees [Jewish and others] coming from German. He has served in that post a little more than two years.

JAMES G. McDONALD.

In his letter of resignation to the secretary general of the league, made public simultaneously in New York, London, and Geneva, McDonald laid the problem of the German refugees directly on the doorstep of the league.

He urged the league and its member nations to intercede in a "friendly but firm" manner with the German government to protect Jewish and other non-Aryan residents of intolerance. He also advocated similar action by nonleague nations.

This intercession should be pressed "by all pacific means," he continued, specifically suggesting that the league use its moral authority by making an appeal to the Hitler government in the name of humanity and public law to stop the persecution of racial and religious minorities.

Source of World Unrest.

"The league," said McDonald, "must ask for a modification of policies which constitute a source of unrest and perplexity in the world, a challenge to the conscience of mankind, and a menace to the legitimate interests of the states affected by the immigration of German refugees."

Asserting that the efforts of his commission had been weakened by the compromise which, to appease the Germans, separated it from the league, McDonald urged that refugee aid be carried on directly under the authority of the league in the future.

McDonald said that the new and drastic racial legislation adopted by the Hitler government last fall "threatens the pauperization and exile of hundreds of thousands" of non-Aryan men, women and children. This, he said, enlarged and complicated the problem to such an extent that neither the commission as now constituted nor the private relief organizations could hope to solve it.

Now a Major Political Problem.

He added that the problem was no longer merely one of helping refugees. It had become a political problem which only the league itself could solve by attacking it at its source and trying to remove or mitigate the causes which create refugees, he asserted.

Explaining that the new legislation had resulted in a great intensification of Nazi persecution of non-Aryans, McDonald said that this new terrorism was creating much increased suffering, the danger of a greater exodus than ever, and a threat to international peace.

Although anguish and despair might force waves of refugees to break the German frontier, he pointed out, other countries could absorb only a limited number, and private organizations could only mitigate the trouble. The league must act if disaster was to be avoided, he insisted.

McDonald charged that more than 500,000 persons in Germany are being "crushed" because they "cannot escape oppression by any act of their own free will."

Many Christians Disfranchised.

As a direct result of the new legislation announced at the Nazi party congress in Nuremberg last September, McDonald said, not only the 435,000 Jews who remain in Germany, but tens of thousands of Christian non-Aryans lost their citizenship and were disfranchised.

Jews and non-Aryans, he continued, have been relentlessly excluded from all public offices, the exercise of the liberal professions and any part of the cultural and intellectual life of Germany. They are ostracized from social relations with Aryans and sub-

Victim Turns Sleuth; Traps Job Racketeer

Four months ago Valentine Swan, 35 years old, a pudgy ex-convict, offered, for a price, to procure a civil service investigator's job for Harry S. Nichols, 27 years old, 2016 Washington boulevard.

This one slip in a project of gleaning rich profits by promising hopeful applicants any kind of a civil service job for a small down payment proved disastrous for Mr. Swan. For Nichols turned out to be an amateur investigator of the first rank. As a result Swan yesterday sat behind a cell door in the Warren avenue station, facing fifty charges of operating confidence games, in which police allege Swan collected more than $5,000 in two years.

Faces Forgery Charges, Too.

Charges of forgery may also be lodged against Swan by county officeholders whose names he is alleged to have written on letters of recommendation to further his schemes. To assuage any fears a victim might have that the promised job was not going through, Swan, according to Policeman Frank Brady, would furnish elaborate letters, signed with the names of Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board; County Commissioners George A. Miller and William Busse, Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch, and former Sheriff John E. Traeger.

The jobs Swan is accused of offering included the ice cream concession at the Chicago Zoölogical Gardens at Brookfield, the posts of park employés, county jail guards, sanitary district employés, and investigator for the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium.

Meets His "Assistant."

This latter job was offered to Nichols, who became so certain it was genuine that he resigned a good position, and paid Swan $150. Swan disappeared with the money, Nichols declared, and the job failed to materialize.

Two months ago Nichols turned investigator. By this time he had learned of several other victims, including Lem Duard, 3012 Fulton street, who said he paid Swan $25 to get him a job as assistant to Nichols.

Nichols discovered that Swan often visited his mother at 9 North Leavitt street. So Nichols began watching the house. He received vague information that Swan might appear late Friday night, so he climbed on the roof of a private garage at the rear of the building and took up a vigil in the bitter cold.

"At 3 o'clock Saturday morning I saw his fat silhouette against a window shade, and I knew my vigil had been rewarded," said Nichols.

Nichols went to the Warren avenue station, where he took out a warant two months ago. Policeman Brady accompanied him back to the Swan residence and made the arrest. At the detective bureau show-up yesterday Nichols and Duard identified Swan. Police plan to bring other victims in to view Swan during the week.

RADIO TELLS SQUAD CAR THIEF HE'S ABOUT TO BE OVERTAKEN

Kansas City, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Radio is a curse, Jack Svahn, until 11 days ago an inmate of San Quentin prison, mourned to police tonight as he nursed a wounded shoulder and told of his hectic 18 minutes in a stolen police car.

"I see this car sitting there so I take it," he said "I'm driving along trying to find the way out of town when this radio thing gives a burp and says something about a police station.

"'Gosh,' I say. 'This is a cop wagon' and I quick start over to the curb to get rid of it.

"Then the radio says to look out for stolen police car. I look and sure enough there's a 24 painted on the dashboard. I know blamed well I'm going to get rid of it but just then the radio says 'we've sighted stolen police car 24 and following it.' I look around and sure enough there's another one behind. Every time another cop wagon joined in the radio yelled it out. They start shooting and I quit."

DIES AT CHURCH; HIS 4 CHILDREN, UNAWARE, PRAY

Four small sisters, Mary Louise Whalen, 11 years old; Catherine, 10; Joan, 8, and Virginia, 7, of 1526 Cullom avenue, attended mass yesterday morning in Our Lady of Lourdes church. As the priest finished the service, announcement was made that a member of the congregation had died suddenly in the vestry.

With the other worshipers, the little girls joined in a prayer for the dead. They thought it odd that the heart victim bore the same name as their father, Lewis R. Whalen, president of a paper box joobing concern.

Not until they returned home did the children learn the truth. While sitting in another part of the church, their father was seized with a heart attack and died a few minutes later in the vestry. He was 46 years old.

'Bloody 20th' Leader Is Shot by 3 Gunmen

Albert J. Prignano, state representative of the Seventeenth senatorial district and Democratic committeeman of the Twentieth ward, known through years of political battles as the "Bloody Twentieth," was assassinated late last night on the doorstep to his home at 722 Bunker street. Three gunmen shot him in the back as he was returning from a family party with his wife, 8 year old son, and mother-in-law.

In this murder, crudely disguised as a robbery, police and other observers saw a revival of the bitter political-gang warfare for control of the ward long dominated by the rule of gun and muscle.

All Powerful in Ward.

Gossip in the Italian quarter along Taylor street, Racine avenue, and Halsted street last night pointed to two reasons why Prignano met his sudden death. Through Democratic patronage he had come to be all powerful in the distribution of jobs, even ignoring the time honored practice in the ward of "taking care" of some members of opposition faction, a bipartisan alliance of Republicans and Democrats.

But more pertinent than this, said the side street commentators, was Prignano's refusal to bow to the dictates of "the gang," controled by Frank Nitti, former Capone overlord in the prohibition days. Nitti is said to have warned Prignano not to run again for ward committeeman. Prignano's answer was announcement of his candidacy. Nitti's reply, police suggested last night, may have been the five bullets which the killers calmly fired into the unresisting Prignano.

Chauffeur Describes Slaying.

Accounts of the shooting were given by the family chauffeur, Victor Galanti, 38 years old, 723 De Koven street; Prignano's wife, the former Jean Gibson, radio singer, and two young men who saw the gunmen flee.

Accompanied by his wife, their adopted son, and Mrs. Prignano's mother, Mrs. Julia Beardmore, Prignano had spent the day at the home of a brother-in-law, Joseph Beardmore, 2743 Hampden court. At 10:10 o'clock in the evening they left for home. Passing the corner near his home Prignano waved from his car to Eugene Zabawski, 19 years old, 620 Bunker street, who was standing with some other youths.

Gunmen Shout "Stickup."

"As I drove up," Galanti told Capt. John Norton of the Maxwell street police station, "I noticed two men walking toward us and a third man sitting idly in an automobile across the street in front of No. 731. I started to help my boss lift some luggage from the car when the three men suddenly ran up on either side of the car telling us it was a 'stickup.'

"Mrs. Prignano warned her husband not to offer any resistance but to give the men anything they wanted. One of them searched him and took his wallet and a diamond ring. Then the gunmen ordered the women and the boy to walk into the house and go upstairs.

"Prignano told me to take the bags

Teacher Tells How He Broke 'Prison Phobia'

Madison, Wis., Dec. 29.—(AP)—William Ellery Leonard, teacher and poet, who for years confined himself to a five block radius of his home because he dreaded distances, described himself today as a "well man."

He said his chronic neurosis no longer worried him. While since 1922 until recently he had ventured no farther from the University of Wisconsin campus than the east side of Capitol square, he has gone around "the big square."

Follows His Marriage.

This departure from his "phobic prison" took place in his 59th year, in the sixth month after his marriage to Grace Golden, 27, who had been his pupil.

Mr. Leonard discussed his case reluctantly. In his book, "Locomotive God," he traced his phobia to his childhood. Then he was frightened by a railroad train that rumbled past him as he stood on a depot platform. Leonard finds his neurosis less confining in the spring and fall than in the other seasons.

Troubled After 35th Year.

Until the age of 35 Leonard, an instructor in English, traveled widely. During the next 11 years he seldom left Madison. Since 1922 he has not been farther from the university campus than the east corner of the Capitol square, a distance of nine blocks. At times he has been held within two blocks of his home.

Leonard has said that had he married Miss Golden year ago he would have been "better off." Both write, skate, and hike, if his short walks may be called hiking.

GERMAN POLICE ARREST LEADER OF REBEL CLERGY

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, the "fighting submarine pastor," was held under arrest in his apartment today by secret political police to prevent him from preaching. The Rev. Mr. Niemoeller is a militant leader of the Confessional synod.

The secret police also forbade the Rev. Gerhard Jacobi, chairman of the Berlin-Brandenburg Confessional synod, to preach this evening, although they temporarily released him from arrest. The Rev. Mr. Jacobi was placed under arrest over Christmas.

LAUNCH DRIVE IN EUROPE TO OUTLAW WARS

Churches to Pray for Aid of People.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—An appeal from Christian churches throughout Europe next Sunday for the people's assistance in outlawing all war was announced tonight by the archbishop of Canterbury.

In an address broadcast from Lambeth palace, the archbishop said he recently had invited the authorities of European Christian communions to issue a solemn reminder of the part the people should play in shaping the course of nations.

The invitation, he asserted, has been largely accepted.

"Hence an appeal to the loyalty of Christian citizens will be made," the archbishop added. "Much depends on the answer, for assuredly Europe and indeed the world stands at the crossroads."

Ponder Over Future.

He spoke as Europe calculated the consequences of Premier Pierre Laval's French parliamentary victory in a pre-new year atmosphere of comparative calm on the African battle front.

A Saturday report from Addis Ababa of a huge counter-offensive by Ras Mulugueta, in northern Ethiopia, went unconfirmed from other sources. So did the Ethiopian claim to capture of Abbi Addi, key point in the Tembien mountain region near Makale.

Italian airplanes diving over, bombing and strafing Ethiopian towns and concentrations on northern and southern fronts, and brisk hand-to-hand skirmishes between Il Duce's outposts and Emperor Haile Selassie's guerrilla fighters marked the meager news from the war zone.

Fascists Bide Their Time.

An Addis Ababa communique charged the Italians were flying low over villages, using their machine guns exclusively.

"On Dec. 28," the communique said, "two Italian planes flew over two towns, Tselelo Adiremez and Kebtia. Two others flew over Khoram, using machine guns but not bombing the victims."

Ethiopian government officials also drew up for submission to the emperor a protest against the alleged burning of many churches by Italians retreating after battles near the holy city of Aksum a week ago.

See New Peace Gesture.

In Geneva, where the next action on the sanctions-peace front is expected at the Jan. 20 meeting of the league of nations council, observers were interested in the reaction to Laval's narrow victories Saturday in the chamber of deputies on a promise to "uphold the league."

Informed onlookers there thought Laval might be willing to take the lead in another effort to draft peace terms, should Premier Mussolini of Italy permit or assist negotiations. Nevertheless, it was believed the next move must come from Il Duce.

In Paris diplomatic circles, however, commentators envisaged a solid Franco-British front within the league insofar as the Italo-Ethiopian situation is concerned.

League Is Pleased.

The French premier's statement to the chamber that the only guarantee of European peace would be a Franco-German rapprochement "within collective security pacts" was considered in these circles as a promise to pin French foreign policy to the league—reinforced by supplementary agreements such as with Russia and the little entente of Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Czechoslovakia.

Great Britain remained alert in the Mediterranean, encouraged by recent assurances from other Mediterranean powers of military aid in the event Italy attacks the British fleet. Officials awaited the return to Whitehall tomorrow of Anthony Eden, the new foreign secretary, to take active charge of the foreign office.

Sir Eric Drummond, the British ambassador to Rome, took a belated holiday in England to confer with his new chief.

ITALIANS AWAIT ATTACK

BY MARK BARRON.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Dolo and Ogaden fronts while the Italians await slowly advancing Ethiopian armies.

The Turkish officer, Wehib Pasha, commanding Ethiopians, is reported driving on the Ogaden with a slow advance, to coincide with the delayed push toward Dolo of the three armies of Ras Desta Demtu, Emperor Haile Selassie's son-in-law.

Desta is believed in difficulties, harassed by Italian bombers along the Dawa Parma, Ganale Doria, and Gestro rivers.

Arrives at Front.

Completing the seventeenth day of a forced march over the complete Dolo and Ogaden Italian fronts, I arrived at Gabre Darre with two other Americans, the first journalists permitted in the deepest part of the front line north of Gorahai.

Crossing from Dolo into the Ogaden, we moved cautiously with armed native guards for twenty hours outside the Italian outposts.

In the Ethiopian sectors we encountered several tribes, driving their families, camels and cattle forward to submit to the Italians.

Italians Build Trenches.

At Gabre Darre, however, we found Italian soldiers and laborers spending their holidays rushing trenches, bridges and other permanent military preparations to completion with the same fervor seen on the Dolo front.

The only holiday observance here was a salute at the graves of an Italian tank corps lieutenant and sergeant, killed in action at Sasa Baneh. Their tombstones were inscribed with the single word—"Pax"—peace for them under strange equatorial skies, far from home.

Nazis' Austrian Legion Keeps Watch on Mussolini's Moves

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—(AP)—While annoyingly "invisible" warriors hamper Mussolini's progress in Africa, another "invisible" army watches Il Duce's difficulties from a vantage point on German soil.

It is the so-called Austrian Legion of Militant Nazis. These fugitives from an anti-Nazi régime in their native land were very much in evidence in July, 1934, when they might have marched back into Austria to help their brother Brown Shirts had not Mussolini mobilized some 50,000 troops on Italy's northern border.

After the collapse of the Nazi revolt the Austrian Legion in Germany gradually dropped out of sight, and by the time the league of nations began mobilizing sanctions against Mussolini the legion was just a lot of forgotten men—so far as the world at large was concerned.

Swelled by Fugitives.

Actually the fugitive Austrian Nazis have not been forgotten here. On the contrary, their numbers swelled by other fugitives who reached Germany via Jugo-Slavia after the collapse of the July revolt, they have been a preoccupation and a problem for Hitler's government.

Many of them have been absorbed into the political and economic life of the new Germany. Alfred E. Frauenfeld, for instance, formerly leader of the Austrian Nazis, has been appointed leader of the reich's theater chamber, and is also much in demand as a speaker at meetings devoted to the Austrian problem. Other Austrians have been given posts in the propaganda ministry and other government and business offices.

This still leaves thousands of young Austrians of miltary age here in Germany at a time when unemployed young men are being fitted into military and semi-military organizations.

Remain in Bavaria.

Some months ago the Austrian legion was given the official designation "hilfwerk nordwest" [auxiliary work, northwest] and there was talk of sending the men to a labor camp on the Dutch frontier, where swamps are being drained and new farmland thus "conquered" for the fatherland.

However, although the letters "nw" [nordwest] were stitched onto their uniforms, most of the Austrians still seem to be in Bavaria.

Although bitterly disappointed when Hitler sidestepped the challenge of Mussolini's mobilization in July, 1934, many of them now view that sidestepping as the farsighted evasion of a trap.

That is, they believe Hitler sidestepped war with Mussolini, 1934's defender of the peace, thereby enabling Germany to assume in 1935 a more advantageous position over a Mussolini whom the league of nations has denounced as violator of the peace.

BOY AT HOME ILL, ALONE; MOTHER RUNS BANDIT CAR

While Mrs. Doris Fifer, 35 years old, was driving an automobile Saturday night for a confessed robber, her son Donald, 15 years old, it was learned yesterday, was lying alone, ill from chicken pox, in her home at 3641 Pine Grove avenue. The boy's condition was discovered yesterday by Mrs. Fifer's estranged husband, Frank, 609 Diversey parkway, who had him taken to the contagious disease hospital.

Mrs. Fifer was arrested Saturday night with David Van Deermer, 32 years old, 5250 Aberdeen street, after a hosiery store holdup at 4703 Broadway. Attractively dressed and tearful, she spent yesterday at the police showup, where she was not identified by holdup victims.

Van Deermer, who had a pistol in his pocket when arrested, confessed five recent robberies, including one at a Neumode Hosiery store, 4626 Sheridan road, about an hour before he was seized.

The police say Mrs. Fifer did not confess participation in the robberies, as was at first reported. She asserted that while she drove a car for Van Deermer she knew nothing of his robberies.

KIPLING, 70, PUTS VIGOR IN TALK TO PARISH COUNCIL

BURWASH, Sussex, England, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Rudyard Kipling, now a man of fire and brimstone only when he rises to speak his mind before the Burwash parish council, will be 70 years old tomorrow.

His birthday will find him within the moat, the walls and the 8 foot hedge of his weatherworn old world home on the Sussex downs. There he has sought peace from the world for more than 25 years, forsaking even the telephone. Stern and beetle browed, the little creator of Gunga Din, and other works, shuns, hermitlike, the life of his own legendary man of action.

About the only time the public sees him is in the parish council. But there, the "sage of Burwash" barks out with almost forgotten fire to defend the old Toryism, the much maligned land tithes and the other hereditary feudal rights of the Downs country.

Horny-handed Sussex farmers know him well, but not as a writer. They say his step is brisk and his eye bright.

REVEAL FRENCH PLANE PARTS ARE REACHING ITALY

LONDON, Dec. 30.—[Monday.]—A crack in the sanctions ring through which Premier Mussolini has been able to import airplane spare parts was revealed here today. The German government, the Daily Herald stated, has asked advice unofficially from the British government on how to prevent French manufacturers from using Germany as a halfway house for exporting airplane engine parts to Italy.

Under the arms embargo, league of nations powers pledged not to export airplane engines to Italy.

The German government, although Germany is not in the league, informed Great Britain that a consignment of airplane engine parts recently was received at Hamburg from France and then reconsigned to an Italian destination.

LEAGUE REFUGEE CHIEF RESIGNS; REBUKES NAZIS

Declares Jew Baiting Is Challenge to World.

jected to every kind of humiliation, he said.

Segregated in a "legal and social ghetto," he went on, they find it increasingly difficult to earn their living. More than half the Jews remaining in Germany, he asserted, have been deprived of their livelihood.

Rights Conceded for 300 Years.

Conceding that Germany apparently was not bound by treaty obligations providing for equal citizenship of racial, religious or linguistic minorities, McDonald declared that nevertheless the principle of respect for the rights of minorities had been "hardening into an obligation of the public law of Europe" for the past three centuries.

The assembly of the league in 1922, he continued, adopted a resolution which expressed the hope that states not bound by specific legal obligations toward minorities would observe at least as high a standard of justice and toleration in the treatment of their own minorities as those required by such treaties.

He pointed out that this resolution was reaffirmed in 1933 at a meeting of the assembly. In order to dispel doubts as to whether it applied to Jews in Germany, he explained, the assembly voted in favor of a further resolution, with the sole dissent of Germany, that the principle "must be applied without exception to all classes of nationals of a state which differs from the majority of the population in race, language, or religion."

Fall Within Legal Scope.

"The German Jews," McDonald added, "although not claiming or desiring to be a minority, are within the scope of this principle, because, as was stated at the assembly, as soon as there is legal discrimination, a minority exists within the meaning of modern law."

Reporting on his stewardship, McDonald told of the progress made in settling the refugees from Germany. He said that 80,000 refugees already had left Germany, of whom about three-fourths have found new homes, more than half of them in Palestine. He said that 15,000 refugees remained unplaced.

In an interview Mr. McDonald supplemented the formal announcement of his resignation with a statement which, marked by a note of disillusion and pessimism, emphasized that his resignation did not mean that the refugee problem was solved.

"Quite the contrary," he added.

GENEVA POLICE JAIL MEN FOR BOMBING OF SHAFT TO WAR DEAD

GENEVA, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Anti-war demonstrations harassed the police of this league of nations city today. Gendarmes, after arresting several men suspected of dynamiting a monument to war dead, were searching for persons who last night placed a fantastically dressed dummy beside the national monument.

The dummy was labeled "Miss Sanctions." It carried oil tins tagged "Rickett petrol," and a banner reading, "For you, dear Switzerland, our lives—but never for the oil merchants." Demonstrators later fired the dummy, which was encased in armor and chained to the base of the monument.

[Francis M. Rickett, British oil promoter, obtained a huge Ethiopian concession last fall from Emperor Haile Selassie in the name of British and American oil interests.]

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Dec. 29.—Ecuador's new quick divorce law applies to residents only, according to a ruling by the government. Foreigners seeking easy, inexpensive divorces must establish residence by living here one year. The ruling ends a plan to promote tourist trafic by advertising quick, easy, cheap divorces.

VANDENBERG HITS SCHEME TO BLOCK REAL NEUTRALITY

Senator Opposes Tieup with League Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], a leader in the framing of neutrality legislation, came out today against the scheme of the internationalists and the peace societies to hitch the United States to the league of nations through a tie-up of American neutrality law with the Kellogg anti-war pact.

"I am opposed," said Mr. Vandenberg, "to any attempt to tie up our neutrality program to the Kellogg peace pact. Any such effort would be a step in the direction of identifying an aggressor and applying collective sanctions. This would move toward punitive war rather than toward peace through neutrality. It would move away from the express interpretation of the Kellogg pact upon which the senate insisted when it ratified the Kellogg pact.

Treaty Provisions Clear.

"Before the Kellogg pact was ratified 26 senators signed a round robin—and eight more were ready to sign—on Jan. 11, 1929, demanding a report from the foreign relations committee explicitly defining our obligations under it. The report was made four days later, and the importance of the report is attested by the round robin which proves that the report was the price of ratification.

"The report says: 'The treaty does not, either expressly or impliedly, contemplate the use of force or coercive measures for its enforcement against any nation violating it.' Nothing could be more final or conclusive.

"If all this now is to be changed, let it not be attempted by the indirect method of grafting a new interpretation on a new neutrality formula.

Opposed to Collectivism.

"Rather let the Kellogg pact itself be rewritten with full notice, not only to our people but to all other signatories, that the scheme is changed; that it no longer is confined to the character of a moral challenge; but that it has become the vestibule to collective world action in which we pool our national interests with others.

"I am opposed to any such collectivism, because it would have, for us, all the infirmities inherent in league of nations membership with its manifest European political implications. I am opposed because the naming of an aggressor is tantamount to an act of war, and no such power should reside in any President.

NATION'S TRAFIC TOLL FOR YEAR IS 36,000 DEATHS

The 1935 Cook county trafic death toll passed the 1,000 mark yesterday, with four fatalities during the day, bringing the year's total to 1,003. Simultaneously came the announcement, made in the east, that motor accidents throughout the nation took 36,000 lives during the year.

Miss Mollie Patterson, 53 years old, 158 North Mason avenue, was the 1,003d fatality. She died last night in the West Suburban hospital of injuries incurred Saturday night when hit at Mason avenue and Washington boulevard by a car driven by Royal J. Bodine, 21 years old, 400 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, a senior at Purdue university. He was not held.

Miss Jennie Benson, 36 years old, of 161st street and Oak avenue, Oak Forest, was killed when the automobile in which she was a passenger was struck by a northbound Wabash passenger train at the 159th street crossing in Orland Park, near Kean avenue, in the southwestern part of Cook county.

Death Wins by Inches.

Mrs. Freda Oestry, 42 years old, Riverview avenue, Lockport, a sister of Miss Benson, incurred a fractured leg in the crash. The women were riding in the rear seat of a car driven by their brother, Harold Benson, 28 years old, and were returning from Lockport to the Benson home in Oak Forest. A matter of inches was the margin between safety and death, as the automobile traveling eastward was almost across the tracks when the rear end of the car was struck by the train.

Benson, who was uninjured, said the flash signal and bells at the crossing did not begin to operate until his car was on the tracks. The engineer and conductor on the train said the signal was operating.

The death of Arthur Jahnke, 40 years old, 627 South 24th avenue, Bellwood, in St. Anthony's hospital early yesterday brought the 1935 toll to 1,000. His automobile skidded into a street car at 31st street and Kedzie avenue.

Matthew Condon, 62 years old, 4243 Jackson boulevard, died in Garfield Park hospital of injuries he received Dec. 26 when he was struck by an automobile in front of 4259 West Madison street.

With the official Cook county toll up to 4 p. m. yesterday placed at 1,002 fatalities since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office, there were 780 killed and 17,723 persons injured in the city of Chicago during the same period.

NATION'S TOLL IS 36,000

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Deaths from automobile accidents in the United States have numbered 36,000 this year—about the same as last year—the Travelers Insurance company announced today, but the rate of deaths per accident has increased nearly 7 per cent.

Sixteen thousand pedestrians were killed in automobile accidents, a preliminary survey of the year's experience discloses, with 9,000 persons losing their lives in collisions between cars.

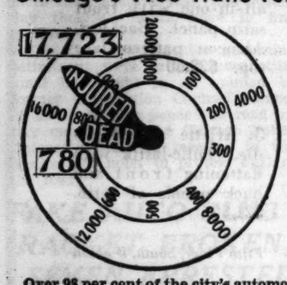
Driving errors were involved in two-thirds of the 828,000 automobile accidents reported, indicating greater carelessness among drivers.

Almost 24,000 of the total deaths resulted from accidents in which there was careless operation.

More than 7,300 persons were killed because operators exceeded the speed limit and 7,400 others met death when drivers drove on the wrong side of the road, failing to grant the right of way.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

ELOPES TO CROWN POINT

On Wedding Trip

Miss Mary Elizabeth Armstrong, popular young debutante and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace White Armstrong of Winnetka, and Arthur Clayson Swallow Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Swallow of Milwaukee, were married Saturday night in an elopement at Crown Point, Ind., it was learned yesterday.

After obtaining their marriage license in the county clerk's office at Crown Point the young couple went to the home of Justice of the Peace Arthur Taylor, who married them. They requested that he keep the wedding a secret. A formal announcement of the marriage was made yesterday by Miss Armstrong's parents, who said the bridal couple had left on a two weeks' wedding trip before they go to Milwaukee, where they will make their home.

Miss Armstrong was graduated from Miss Madeira's school at Washington, D. C., and Sarah Lawrence college. She was presented to society in a tea at her parents' home on Sept. 8. Mr. Swallow is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and is president of the Wisconsin-Lannon Stone corporation.

SURF ST. BLAZE ROUTS 100 AND TIES UP TRAFIC

Apartment of Newlyweds Ruined; $30,000 Loss.

A 4-11 fire which attacked the upper floors of the east wing of the Commodore apartments, 550 Surf street, late yesterday, routed 100 tenants and tied up trafic in the vicinity of Surf street and Broadway for nearly two hours. Damage caused by the flames and tons of water poured into the building was estimated at $30,000 by Chief Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan.

Damage from the flames was confined to a section of the roof, storage rooms on the sixth floor, and the apartment of Alfred T. Bolender, a dealer in decorative accessories, on the fifth floor. Streams of water directed at the fire from the roof, a water tower, and from lines strung inside the building, however, caused further damage and forced the abandonment of the entire east wing of the building last night.

Elevator Man Rescues Tenants.

Richard Armstrong, one of the two elevator operators, who aided tenants in escaping from the thick smoke which eddied through the corridors, was the first to discover the blaze. Noticing the smoke he hurried to the fifth floor and the Bolender apartment.

The Bolenders were away at the time attending a sleighing party in Dunham Woods. They were married Thanksgiving day and had just completed furnishing their apartment.

"Because no one was home," said Armstrong, "I entered with a pass key. I heard a roaring noise which seemed to be coming from a wall. I struck the wall and the plaster gave way and fell inward, and then I saw the flames roaring upward. I immediately turned in the alarm and then continued to operate my car until all were out safely."

Artist's Paintings Damaged.

Many of the building residents returned to their apartments after discovering that the fire was confined to one wing. Miss Laura Slobe, an artist, whose studio is on the top floor near the center of the building, said that several of her paintings were cut when firemen broke the skylight while stringing hose lines.

Low ceilings and overhead pipes hampered the movements of the firemen in the storage rooms, where, Chief Corrigan said, he believed the flames started. Although crossed wiring appeared to be the cause of the fire, Chief Corrigan declared he would ask Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan to make an investigation.

10,000 MOTORISTS JOIN FINAL RUSH FOR 1936 LICENSES

The over the counter sale of 1936 state license plates continued at a brisk rate yesterday at the state's automobile license bureau at 120 South Ashland boulevard. The office was kept open on the Sabbath to enable motorists to avoid the last minute rush and obtain their new licenses before Jan. 1. Only two days remain to apply for new licenses before the penalty date becomes effective.

More than 500 automobile owners were waiting in line to register their cars for the new year when the office opened at 9 o'clock yesterday. Approximately 10,000 applied for new plates during the day, it was reported.

The police will decide today after receiving a report from Secretary of State Hughes whether to allow several days' grace before enforcing provisions of the motor vehicle law, requiring drivers to display new licenses after Jan. 1.

Federal Agents Use Robot Eye in Solution of Crimes

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 29.—(AP)—A mechanical eye which can see past events was announced by federal agents here today as new equipment in their fight on crime.

The federal bureau of investigation explained this robot detective at the science exhibition of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which opens its annual meeting here tomorrow.

The eye, a development of the last six months, uses the spectrograph, the instrument with which astronomers recognize the different kinds of atoms on distant stars. The spectrograph does this by breaking light into the rainbow and photographing the lines which compose all these colors.

Reveals Prints of Elements.

The "G" eye reveals the "finger prints" of all the known chemical elements. Each has its own atomic "finger prints" in lines seen in the spectrograph, lines as plain as the whorls on a human finger.

Any piece of evidence analyzed by the "G" eye shows every kind of atom of which it is made.

The "G" eye already is in use with at least one spectacular result in a case in which names and places still are government secrets.

Helps to Solve Mystery.

In this case the eye was used to look at the bits of earth clinging to some evidence which had been temporarily buried. It showed traces of iron in this dirt, with clear atomic finger prints.

In the automobile of a suspect was found a bit of mud which might have dropped off his shoe. Under the "G" eye this mud showed the same atomic iron finger prints as the dirt on the buried evidence. It was different from all the other dirt in the car and from the soil of the region where the car usually traveled.

With this information federal men were able to reconstruct a past trip of the car and its driver into a definite piece of evidence.

A new steam engine which uses the sun's rays to produce cheap power was demonstrated today to the science association.

Dr. C. G. Abbot of Washington, D. C., secretary of the Smithsonian institution, who designed the machine, declared it has possible industrial and home uses.

KERSHAW SCHOOL BLAZE IS LAID TO 'VICIOUS FIREBUG'

Chief Fire Marshal Corrigan said yesterday that the blaze Saturday night which destroyed a wing of the Kershaw school, 6431 South Union avenue, as "vicious incendiarism" and announced that investigation of its origin would begin today.

Hundreds of firemen battled the fire, which swiftly swept all three floors of the structure and broke through the roof.

Zachary T. Davis, superintendent of repairs of the board of education, estimated the damage at $40,000.

JAPAN PUSHES ON WITH SCHEME TO RULE FAR EAST

World Peace Menaced by Invasion of Asia.

First of a series of six dispatches on the status and purposes of Japan. By an assistant Washington correspondent of The Tribune, who, after visiting the Philippines, went to Tokio early this month to study conditions and ambitions there.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 8. — [By Mail.] — The Japanese militarists, with slogans of "national emergency" and "national crisis" have exacted from a heavily unbalanced budget the largest army and navy appropriation in Japanese history and the agitation for the separation of North China has subsided. But there are no indications that the Japanese army will long content itself with the semi-autonomy of Chahar and Hopei provinces. The next move in China awaits a more favorable opportunity or pretext, such as some alleged impertinence on the part of the Chinese or the necessity of getting another big appropriation.

What Japan intends to do in China is a question of world wide interest, not so much because of concern for China but because of the menace to world peace that further territorial encroachments would entail. Impartial observers, including American diplomats and military attachés, do not believe the Tokio government has any deep laid plot for the establishment of suzerainty over China, but neither do they believe the imperial government can or will restrain the army leaders in Manchukuo and south of the Great Wall.

Jap Army Likened to Juggernaut.

Like the wild troika of Dostoyevski's novel, the Japanese army is a juggernaut bounding over the Asiatic plains, heedless of treaties and pacts and the peace of the world and knowing no authority except its own impetuous will.

And the Tokio government, though not always behind or even aware of the army's movements, has made it clear that no interference on the part of a foreign country will be tolerated.

Japan is jittery, with suspicion, distrust and fear abounding in her land. She fears Great Britain, Russia and even the rapid progress China is making in military aviation. Above all she fears the United States, which she regards not only as her potential but her inevitable enemy. With a tremendous over population—66,000,000 in an area of 50,000 square miles in Japan proper—and with an imperative need of raw materials, Nippon feels that her national existence is dependent upon expansion and ultimate supremacy in the east.

Another Life Line.

In 1931 and 1932 Japan spoke of Manchuria, in which she set up the puppet state of Manchukuo, as her "life line." Today she speaks of the five North China provinces—Chahar, Hopei, Shansi, Shantung, and Suiyuan—as Manchukuo's "life line."

The so-called autonomy movement which she promoted in those provinces immediately after the Nanking government's nationalization of silver was a fiasco, because the "great popular upheaval" reported by her generals did not materialize. There was a great popular upheaval against autonomy, with student riots in Tientsin and Peiping, and Japan's activities in the movement threatened to cause trouble with the United States and Great Britain.

Because Gen. Chiang Kai-shek was not ready to fight Japan, the Nanking government consented to a compromise giving Chahar and Hopei semi-autonomy, particularly with respect to foreign relations, and exempting those provinces from the silver nationalization decree. Inasmuch as the Japanese have been foremost in the smuggling of silver out of China, for ultimate sale at a nice profit in the artificial market maintained by the United States, this was no mean victory.

Sino-Japanese Air Link.

Moreover, the two provinces have the right to establish communications with Manchukuo and Japan, including aviation, and this will give the Japanese air lines an opportunity to invade China for the first time, linking Tokio with Peiping. This is what Japan wants and China dreads.

Foreign office spokesmen in Tokio unctuously insist that Japan has no territorial ambitions in China, that her only desire is for peace in the far east and coöperation between Japan, Manchukuo, and China to improve trade relations and suppress communism. Japanese military leaders, who threaten to employ all the force at their command if the Nanking government or any other power seeks to interfere with the "righteous desires of the local population," are much more outspoken.

They attribute their "special mission" in China to heaven itself and boldly proclaim the beginning of a "spiritual" war for the suppression of the white race. Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese garrisons in North China, explains the activities there as "a movement against the tyranny and highhandedness of the white people."

Visions Big Race War.

In an official press release, Gen. Tada has declared:

"It may be regarded as the beginning of a racial war for emancipating the colored people, who form the greater part of the human inhabitants of the world, from enslaving oppression by the whites, and realizing equality and peace for all the human beings on earth. It may also be regarded as the beginning of a spiritual war for rectifying the material civilization of the west by the moral civilization of the east."

However much these vainglorious words may be discounted, informed observers believe that Japan's "life line" will not stop with the five northern provinces. Once she gets her hands upon the "life line of Manchukuo," they say, she will look to Mongolia as "the life line of North China."

The most plausible theory available is that Japan is intent upon uniting the Mongols of Chahar and Suiyuan provinces, Inner Mongolia to the west and Outer Mongolia further west, in a vast independent puppet state as a buffer against soviet Russia. This theory is supported by the constant lamentations of Japanese generals, writing in the vernacular newspapers and magazines, that Russian communists are seeking to encircle Manchukuo.

Already Russia dominates Outer Mongolia, which as a quasi-autonomous government but to all intents and purposes is a unit of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Further west Russia has an economic hegemony in the vast province of Sinkiang, Chinese Turkestan, and her influence here has been increased since the building of the Turko-Siberian railway. The soviet Trans-Siberian railway encircles Manchukuo and on the east is the great air base and port of Vladivostok, within four hours' flying distance of Tokio and Osaka.

The Mongols, degenerate but still lusty descendants of the hordes that overran Europe with Ghengis Khan, have never recognized the sovereignty of China, and today there is a Mongol autonomy movement in Inner Mongolia, whether or not inspired by Japan. Japan's argument when she took Manchuria was that China never regarded this as a part of her territory. The two countries, so the Japanese contend, were united only when the Manchus were in power, and then Manchuria was regarded as a sort of crown reservation. They could apply this same argument with equal force to Mongolia.

Russia Weak West of Baikal.

From the military standpoint, Japan did not enhance her security against Russia with the setting up of Manchukuo. It is skirted by the Trans-Siberian railway, connecting Vladivostok with Moscow, but with the 500 or more planes that Russia is said to have in readiness at that terminal and with her great fortifications on the boundary river Amur, the Japanese could not break through here. With Mongolia in her grip, however, she could penetrate westward of Lake Baikal and seize the railway where it is unprotected.

The preparations of the Japanese against a possible war with Russia includes the development of a port and naval base at Siongchin, Corea, 300 miles south of Vladivostok, and an airdrome a short distance inland.

Aside from her strategic purposes, Japan has an economic interest in North China, which has vast undeveloped natural resources. Her crying need is oil for her battle fleet, which she now must import.

2 Die in Blizzard as Chinese Students Push Jap Protests

KAIFENG, Honan Province, China, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A collegiate co-ed army, undaunted by a bitter blizzard that killed two of their number, besieged the railroad station here tonight and fought for passage to Nanking.

They want to protest government policies in North China, where two vast provinces now are in a status of semi-autonomy.

Girl students swarmed into the station and sat in unheated railway cars. Boys occupied the platforms, defying icy winds, and troops who attempted to oust them. Many among the throng of 13,000 were incapacitated by the cold.

Public Gives Food.

The demonstration caught the public fancy, however, and the students received many contributions of food.

Rail authorities remained away, but the students, undaunted, went ahead with plans for patriotic New Year's demonstrations. Locomotives were hurried away to other points when the students first appeared Saturday.

Fears were expressed, meantime, for 100 other students who have started on foot for the capital. It was thought they were in danger of being kidnaped by bandits seeking sons of important officials.

Japs Prepare Demands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 29.—The newspaper Kokumin declared today it understands the Japanese army will present a set of fresh demands to China. These will insist on strict control of anti-Japanese movements, and that China shall, jointly with Japan, check the spread of communism. Other demands, according to the Kokumin, will be that Japanese instructors shall be employed in Chinese military schools; and that China shall abandon the "guiding military education policy" of implanting anti-Japanese and anti-Manchukuan thoughts into the minds of students.

Mongols Accuse Japan.

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Prime Minister Gen-Dun of Outer Mongolia, visiting Moscow with other Mongolian officials, accused Japan tonight of preparing to convert his country into "a second Manchukuo."

Once Mongolia is in Japanese hands, he asserted, "it would be easy to prepare an attack on the soviet union and further attacks on China." The Mongolians, he said, "will not tolerate invasion."

Protest Mongol Raids.

HSINKING, Manchukuo, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Manchukuo's foreign minister has lodged a strong protest with the Mongolian foreign office, it was learned tonight, against alleged repeated violations of the Manchukuo border by Mongol soldiers.

The protest warned that in the event of future "illegal" acts, Manchukuo might be compelled to resort to "every ways and means" available for self-defense.

At the same time general headquarters of the Kwantung [Japanese] army issued a communique reviewing in detail alleged invasions of Manchukuo in the last 12 months.

JAPANESE ARE FRIENDLY TO U. S., SAYS CHURCHMAN

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 29.—(AP)—No bitterness against the American people exists in Japan, Toyohiko Kagawa, Christian leader of that nation, said here today.

"Almost all the Japanese people," he went on, "wish peace with the United States to continue forever.

"While I wish that the Japanese exclusion bill could be repealed," he said, "I cannot truthfully say that this measure has aroused serious resentment among my people."

He added recent developments in Japanese government parallel those of the New Deal here.

"We have given 800,000,000 yen to the farmers," he explained. "The government plans to extend its social security plans to cover eight-tenths of the population. At present more than two million laborers are beneficiaries of health insurance provided by the government. Japanese unemployment has passed away under syndicates of the industries organized by the government in a system not dissimilar to your NRA."

Compromise Averts Court Row Today; Stays Here.

William Crawford Barry III., 18 months old, heir to two fortunes, slept unguarded last night for the first time in a week.

His father, William C. Barry Jr., Hollywood film technician, was on a west bound train. His grandfather, William C. Barry Sr., Rochester [N. Y.] bank president, was on an east bound train. And his legal Santa Claus, Deputy Sherif Otto Janousek, was back serving writs on the west side, after six luxurious days on the gold coast.

The blond baby's divorced mother, Mrs. Katherine Williams Barry, was recuperating downstate from an illness. But the baby, his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Eckhart Williams, and his great-grandmother, Mrs. B. A. Eckhart, remained untroubled at last in the home at 1323 Astor street. They missed Deputy Janousek, who had been stationed at the residence by the court to see that the child was not removed.

The Occasion for the Quiet.

All was serene because an out of court agreement concerning the baby's custody was reached yesterday by Attorney William F. Waugh, representing the child's father, and Attorney John Neal Campbell, representing the mother and grandmother.

The agreement averted what promised to be a bitter battle today before Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg over a writ of habeas corpus filed here last Monday by Barry Jr. against his former wife and mother-in-law for the possession of little Bill.

In the two day conference of the lawyers, Attorney Waugh argued that a Los Angeles court held Mrs. Barry unfit to keep the boy and awarded custody to his father on Dec. 5. Then, he said, Mrs. Barry whisked curly headed Bill to Chicago and appealed in California from the lower court's ruling. Barry Jr., armed with his writ of habeas corpus, hurried here.

Judge to Watch Boy.

Instead of gaining complete possession of his son, however, he agreed under yesterday's settlement to accept legal custody of the baby while Grandmother Williams cares for Bill, under the supervision of Judge Feinberg.

Mrs. Barry has until next summer to demonstrate her ability to care for the boy. Dismissal of the California appeal will be asked.

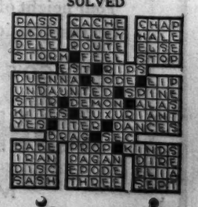
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



POLICE WILL FILL 26 CAPTAINCIES ON ACTING BASIS

Examinations to Be Held to Handle Vacancies.

A total of 26 vacancies will exist in the captains' ranks in the police department Wednesday when 176 veterans 63 years old or older are retired under the obligatory retirement law which became effective on Jan. 1. The statutes authorize automatic retirement of police and fire department employes on a pension of at least half their pay. Thirty firemen must retire.

At present there is no civil service promotion list for police captaincies and the vacancies will have to be filled temporarily by assigning lieutenants as acting captains. John P. Harding, head of the civil service commission, has indicated that an examination will be called soon to provide such a promotion list.

Forty Lieutenancies to Be Open.

Because of the retirement of 14 lieutenants under the new act, a total of at least 40 vacancies will exist in that rank. Commissioner Allman has not indicated whether he will promote 40 sergeants immediately from the eligible civil service list.

Protests against the retirement of Lieut. Make Mills, head of the department's industrial [Red] detail, have accumulated in the commissioner's office. Several patriotic organizations have recommended that Lieut. Mills be given a special appointment in order that the detail may remain intact. A search of the law was being made to learn whether such an appointment could be made.

The Model Policeman Affected.

One police veteran to be retired on Jan. 1 is Lieut. James Flynn of the Marquette station, who is known to his associates and superiors as the "model policeman."

Lieut. Flynn, who is 67 years old, joined the department in 1902, and during his 33 years' service has never missed a day on duty nor has he ever reported late.

"He is the most efficient policeman in the business and the department will lose a good man," Supervising Captain Stege asserted when the lieutenant's name was included in the published list.

Expects to Hunt a Job.

The retiring lieutenant lives with his wife at 2853 Flournoy street. They have nine children. Lieut. Flynn, who will receive a pension of more than $1,600 a year, said yesterday that he would have to find another job.

The two new statutes governing retirement were termed unconstitutional last night in an opinion by former Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson. The paper was read before members of the Chicago Police Defense association meeting in the Auditorium hotel to protest against the law.

FAKE AUTO CLUB RACKET BROKEN; SEVEN ARRESTED

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—A racket that cost automobile owners in New York state more than $2,500,000 in the last three years, according to Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., was curbed today with the arrest of six men and a woman in different parts of the city on charges of fraudulent sale of insurance and membership in fake automobile clubs.

Five of the men arrested were said by police to have criminal records. All seven were alleged to be members of an automobile racket gang of nineteen, against whom grand juries in Manhattan and Queens returned thirteen indictments. Warrants have been issued for those not apprehended.

The scheme, according to the authorities, netted large incomes to the individuals named in the indictments through the sale of memberships in two automobile clubs at $19.50 a year or $38.50 for two years. The prospect was given a list of garages and repair stations in sixty-five cities in this country and Canada which were purported to provide towing, repair, and garage service.

An insurance policy written by a legitimate insurance company also was given with the membership. But instead of receiving a liability and property damage policy as promised, the victim got a limited personal accident policy, the premium of which amounted to $1.25.

RACKETEER PLOT IS BLAMED FOR NIGHT CLUB BOMB

While labor trouble still was being investigated as a factor in the attempted bombing Saturday of the building at Lawrence avenue and Clark street, which formerly housed the Rainbo Gardens and French Casino, the police yesterday were inclined to the theory that racketeers were responsible. The building is being remodeled for reopening on Jan 15 as a European style theater-restaurant.

Lieut. John Treacy of the police bomb squad asserted yesterday that a two day investigation failed to disclose any union disputes.

Frederick Chramer, manager of the Copeland hotel, 5009 Sheridan road, who is president of the corporation which will operate the new restaurant, asserted that all employes are regular union men and that no threats have been received.

Lieut. Treacy said a careful examination of the bomb, an iron pipe containing 8 sticks of dynamite, revealed that it was loosely put together and was unlikely to explode. He surmised that it was placed as a scare bomb by hoodlums who are trying to force the new enterprise to share profits with them.

ACTION TO CURB PAROLES STUDIED BY PROSECUTORS

State Association Opens Session Here Today.

State's attorneys from downstate counties arriving in Chicago last night for a two day convention at the Morrison hotel which starts this morning were considering steps toward curbing the increase in the number of paroles granted in Illinois. The visiting prosecutors said the statistics for Cook county—eleven convicts freed this year for each ten new convicts entering prison—merited thoughtful discussion at their convention.

Because of the approaching gubernatorial primaries and their own reelection contests, prosecutors who were among the first to arrive said no definite plan would be formulated until after the arrival of State's Attorney Guy E. McGaughey of Lawrence county, chairman of the executive committee of the Illinois State's Attorneys' association. Meanwhile they were wondering, they admitted, what the figures on paroles for their own counties would show.

Call It State-Wide Problem.

The fact that the parole board is turning convicts back into Cook county faster than Cook county courts send them to prison presents a problem that affects the entire law enforcement program of the state, the vanguard of the prosecutors asserted. The figures for Cook county were obtained from prison records by the Chicago Crime commission, but the records for the rest of the state were not available to the commission.

Some of the visitors suggested that Prof. Earl De Long of the department of political science, Northwestern university, who is scheduled to speak on "The Coördination of Law Enforcement in Illinois," might be the man to broach the parole topic because he is not in politics. Law enforcement, they said, contemplates punishment to fit the crime, not sociological consideration of the criminal.

Mayor to Welcome Group.

Mayor Kelly, who, with Police Commissioner Allman and Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, was given credit by Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin of the crime commission for the reduction of crime in Chicago in recent years, is to make an address of welcome to the prosecutors at the opening of the convention at 10 o'clock this morning. State's Attorney Courtney will be the next speaker, and at the afternoon session Attorney General Otto Kerner will be a speaker.

One subject up for discussion today by Robert E. Nash, state's attorney of Winnebago county, is: "Shall we abolish, modify, or retain the present grand jury system?" Many of the prosecutors think the system of originating criminal trials by grand jury indictments should be changed so a prosecutor could initiate a prosecution by filing an information or criminal complaint. This is one of the provisions of the revised criminal code on which action still is pending in the assembly.

POTATO CONTROL ACT IS ILLEGAL, ATTORNEYS HOLD

Liberty League Committee Gives Opinion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The potato control act of 1935 was held unconstitutional and a departure from traditional theories of American government in a report announced today by the lawyers' committee of the Liberty league.

The act is so flagrantly unconstitutional, the lawyers said, that it seems idle to debate the further question as to the unconstitutional delegation of power to the secretary of agriculture or to point out that the discretion vested in the secretary "is so general and vague that it defies all definition."

Strike at Act's Powers.

"We are of the opinion that this act is unconstitutional as not within the scope of the federal power under the commerce clause of the constitution and is not rendered constitutional by the attempted improper use of the taxing power, and further because no such discretionary power as is sought to be vested in the secretary of agriculture by the act, no such invasion of state rights and no such taking of the property of the private citizen, is authorized by any provision of the constitution," the report stated.

"To sustain this legislation would mean the abolition of all distinction between our dual form of federal and state sovereignties, a nullification of the right of states, and the establishment of the principle of a paternalistic federal government."

Act Provides for Taxes.

The potato act provides for the levy and assessment upon each first sale of potatoes harvested on or after Dec. 1, 1935, in the continental United States, of a tax to be paid by the seller at the rate of three-fourths of one cent per pound. The taxes levied will be represented by tax stamps.

In granting the secretary the power to apportion out the quantities of potatoes to be grown, the league lawyers declared, the purpose of the act is clearly to place control in the secretary or his employés of the potato production for sale on every farm in the United States that produces potatoes.

"This is demonstrated," the lawyers said, "by the provision of the act directing the secretary of agriculture that if he should find that the total apportionments to producers in any potato producing region or regions are in excess of the probable supply of potatoes in the continental United States during the marketing periods for such region or regions, he shall proclaim such determination and the tax shall not be operative during such marketing period."

President to Stump Country in Campaign for Re-Election

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt personally will take the stump in defense of his policies and in a reelection appeal for the support of the voters of the nation, it was learned today.

While it is said no definite decision on the extent of the President's campaign tour has been reached, he will be urged by supporters to make a coast to coast campaign as he did as a candidate for the presidency. There is little doubt among the President's intimate friends that he will undertake an extensive speaking campaign.

Supporters of the President will urge a more active participation in the campaign on his part than has been the custom of recent occupants of the White House, for two reasons.

Expect Smaller Fund.

First, they regard him as the greatest asset in the party, with a personal appeal stronger than his administration. Second, they expect the Democratic national committee to have a much smaller campaign fund than the Republican national committee, which they believe is in a position to obtain large contributions from leaders in business and finance opposed to the New Deal.

The Democratic national committee still has a deficit, which really is a legacy from the unsuccessful 1928 campaign, when former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was the nominee for President. This deficit, as of last June, was reported as $381,000. Proceeds of the coming Jackson day dinners, which will be held throughout the country, will be used to reduce this deficit.

The Republican national committee is in much better shape financially. Chairman Henry P. Fletcher announced in Washington yesterday that the committee had $124,000 in cash and had thrown away the last of its "red ink."

Garner to Take Stump.

Democratic leaders thus have come to the belief that their campaign money will be spent most effectively for a personal campaign by the President, supplemented by a campaign trip by Vice President John N. Garner.

They do not contemplate the exclusion of Democratic senators, representatives, cabinet members, and other leading supporters of the administration, but the present plan is to make Mr. Roosevelt the spearhead of his own campaign, with the fullest use of the radio to broadcast his speeches, a field in which he is regarded as making a particularly strong appeal.

Supporters of the President admit privately that he has lost ground during the last few months, but still believe he retains enough of his popularity to insure his reelection. Reports to Democratic national headquarters indicte that the President continues to retain most of his strength in the middle west, which will be the main battle ground in the presidential campaign.

Unworried by Polls.

Polls, such as that of the Literary Digest, which show a strong trend against the New Deal, do not worry the Roosevelt supporters particularly, as they admit the probable loss of conservative Democrats.

Supporters of President Roosevelt count upon the effectiveness of his appeal to the great mass of the voters, the lower half of the population in point of wealth, the farmers who have benefited from the AAA, and those who have received payments through the various governmental relief agencies.

They believe the President can make this appeal much more effectively than any one else can make it for him.

His advisers believe that the idea of an intensive campaign will appeal to the President. It has been his habit to lead a political fight in person, they say, and he seems to enjoy campaigning. His health is understood to be excellent, and he is reported to be in as good shape physically as he was in 1932, when he traveled approximately 13,000 miles, touching nearly every state in the country, without visible fatigue.

CLASH OF VIEWS IS DIVIDING BOTH MAJOR PARTIES

Campaign Pits Liberal Against Conservative.

charge and his friends seized upon the opening to retell the story of Landon's war with Standard Oil in Kansas politics.

In 1930, when Landon was state chairman and political manager for Gov. Clyde Reed, they were bitterly fought by the Standard Oil forces. A Wichita dispatch in the Kansas City Star of Aug. 3, 1930, gives the picture. This dispatch, by a Star staf writer, reads in part:

"The Standard Oil company is reaching out to gain control of the Republican state committee in Kansas. It is the first time in many years that the Standard has attempted an open move to control the party organization.

Speaks Against Reed.

"At Independence today, Sam Fitzpatrick, head of the Prairie Pipe Line company, a subsidiary of Standard, who has looked after Standard Oil policies in the state for years, called the employés of the Prairie company together and made a speech about the company's interest in politics. Fitzpatrick assured them the company did not 'seek to control' their votes, but, he pointed out first, that Gov. Clyde M. Reed was a menace to the Standard's interests in Kansas. He urged them to vote for Frank [Chief] Haucke for governor and to defeat Reed.

"Fitzpatrick did not stop there. He urged the employés to vote for precinct committeemen favored by the Standard Oil company. A few weeks ago the Standard put a complete list of precinct candidates in the field for the primary. Every man nominated for precinct committeeman is a public utility agent or lawyer. One man is the Santa Fe agent at Independence.

"The purpose of the fight made by the big oil company to grab the Republican county organization is to accomplish the defeat of Alfred M. Landon, now state chairman. The Standard's political leaders named a precinct candidate against Landon. The reason assigned for taking such a radical step was that if Landon were continued as state chairman he 'would be a candidate against Dave Mulvane [for national committeeman] in 1932.'"

Friends Accomplish Defeat.

They defeated Landon. He was living in Independence, headquarters of the Prairie company, many of whose officials and department heads voted in his precinct. Landon knew them all and played bridge with many of them, but they voted against him.

Landon is an oil producer, an independent. His interests were with hundreds of other independents who sold their oil to the big refining companies. Their interests were frequently in conflict, as are those between wheat raisers and the millers who buy their grain.

Later in 1930, Landon, as chairman of the steering committee of Kansas oil producers, led the fight to prevent the big pipe lines from discontinuing to take oil from the weaker stripper wells, which would have meant ruin to hundreds of independent producers and loss of royalties and lease rights to thousands of farmers owning oil-bearing land.

HELD OVER BOGUS BILL.

Martin Brown, 31 years old, 6648 South May street, was held yesterday by Chicago avenue police for questioning by federal authorities about a counterfeit $10 bill which he offered as payment to a tavern at 644 North State street.

BORAH ADDRESS WILL OPEN N. Y. DELEGATE DRIVE

'Progressives' to Start Fight in January.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—William Ziegler Jr., chairman of the progressive Republican state committee, today announced that the New York state campaign for election of delegates favorable to the nomination of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho for President would open Jan. 28, when Borah will speak at Kismet temple, Brooklyn.

Plan Fight on "Old Guard."

Ziegler, who was treasurer of the Republican state committee when W. Kingsland Macy was chairman and now is allied with Mr. Macy, added that a fight for Borah delegates would be made throughout the state, presumably with the support of the progressive Republican state committee.

This fight will be in opposition to the Republican state organization, headed by Melvin C. Eaton, state chairman, and Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman. Eaton and Hilles, with most of the other regular party leaders, favor an uninstructed and uncommitted delegation.

Report Fish-Macy Pact.

New York state supporters of Borah will make the policy of the party leaders for an uncommitted delegation to the national convention the issue of their campaign. They will charge, it was learned, that the election of uncommitted delegates will be merely to elect a delegation which can be "manipulated" at the convention by Mr. Hilles, Mr. Eaton and others they characterize as "old guard" leaders.

It was learned that Mr. Macy and Representative Hamilton Fish of Putnam county, who hitherto have been at odds politically, although both for the nomination of Senator Borah, had had a telephone conversation and agreed to work together.

Mr. Fish announced in Washington last night that Senator Borah had authorized him to "organize" New York state.

A telegram received today from Alexander Hamilton, George H. Sibley, and David W. Peck, officers of the Young Republican club organization in his city and state, said that Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, whom they saw at Topeka yesterday, had agreed to take their invitation to speak in New York under serious consideration.

FAINTS IN STREET; DIES.

A few hours after he fainted when he stepped from a bus, Robert McGovern, 40 years old, 2950 Greenleaf street, died Saturday night at his home.

POLICE CALLED IN CHURCH ROW ABOUT PASTOR

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Four policemen, called to preserve order, stood bewildered today in the Central Avenue Christian church as two factions maneuvered heatedly for control.

"I need thee every hour," sang choristers and members loyal to the Rev. W. J. Wright, the question of whose retention as pastor split the congregation.

The hectic 30 minute session ended with formation of a rump meeting, election of two sets of directors, and mutual threats of court action.

Police Captain S. R. Purdue declined to eject members who roared a protest against a revised membership list read by Elder C. E. Easter, selected by Mr. Wright to conduct the business meeting. His mission, the officer explained smoothly, was not to take sides but to prevent disorder.

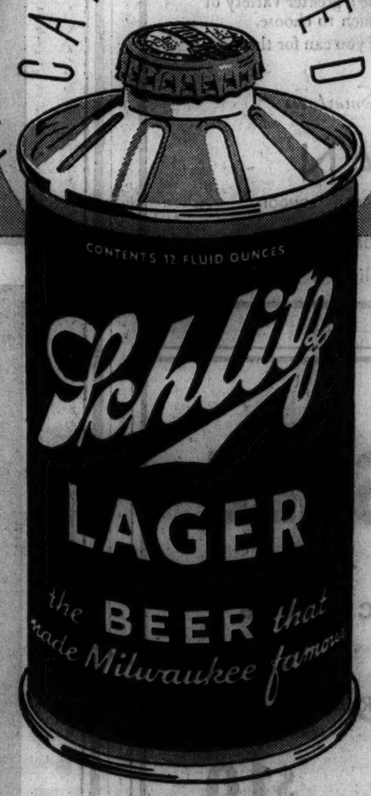
BEER in CAP SEALED CANS



YOU may think you know all about fine beer. But when you taste it out of a Cap Sealed Can, you'll decide you never tasted such delicious beer before.

It's the usual experience. For this new and improved can that opens like a bottle brings you all the original goodness that the brewer puts into his beer. None of the rich flavor, the sparkle, the zest is lost.

Why is this? There are three reasons: The can permits faster pasteurization. It has a special lining that is to metal what beer barrel lining is to wood. And the beer is absolutely protected from the harmful effects of flavor-robbing light.

The Cap Sealed Can opens with an ordinary bottle opener. It has a shape that makes it easy to pour or drink from the can. And the beer never touches the outside of the can in opening or pouring.

Each can holds 12 fluid ounces, same as a bottle. No deposit to pay; no empties to return. The cans cool quickly and take up little space in the icebox.

Tonight, try some beer in Cap Sealed Cans, and re-discover for yourself how good beer can taste.

RIVALS PUZZLED BY CALDWELL'S ELECTIONEERING

Silent 'Business' Tactics New to Politicians.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Public attention was called yesterday to a novelty in Illinois governorship politics, one that has been in the making for more than six months, but about which almost nothing has been published.

H. Wallace Caldwell, a member of the county board from the country towns, is running for the Republican nomination for governor. There is no novelty about that, a multiplicity of candidates being formally or informally already in the field. But Commissioner Caldwell's methods are said to be different from anything ever seen before.

He is using "business methods" and confining himself to that idea in seeking support. He says politics is a business and that a campaign for office should be organized and conducted along exactly the same lines as a business campaign.

Proud of His Silence.

Ever since June 18 he has had three rooms on the third floor of the Hotel La Salle, manned by a staf of paid employés who have been corraling politicians who control votes. Caldwell is slightly boastful of the fact that he hasn't made any announcement and particularly that he has not been "running around making speeches about the constitution."

Attention was turned in his direction when, with some suddenness, it was learned that his La Salle headquarters—directly below the somewhat similarly active presidential headquarters of Frank Knox—had progressed with operations to the point of actually signing up Republican ward committeemen on some form of pledge, the exact nature of which is in dispute.

The first report, which circled the loop, appeared on careful investigation to be an exaggeration of the commercial features of the promotion.

Conflicting Stories Out.

A story that the signatures were considered as rating high in the autograph market ran into such obstacles as a flat statement by Commissioner Caldwell that he knew nothing of any signing up process.

On the other hand, some of the committeemen who had signed said they saw a number of other signatures above their own, but they denied there were any mercenary considerations.

Both the candidate and the committeemen said there had been plenty of talk about the financing of the campaign in its later stages. The commissioner even went so far as to say that the wherewithal is in actual currency in a spot where it can be seen and even examined by those made skeptical by their experiences last spring with Emil C. Wetten, who was awarded the mayoral nomination without having completed substantial disbursements for any purpose.

A Price Scheduled Yarn.

The story that was fairly well scotched was that an actual scale of prices had been whispered about—$100 for an indorsement signature, $400 for an indorsement vote in the county committee if it does indorse a candidate, and $20 a precinct for primary day, which falls on April 14.

Further evidence against the veracity of this story was found in a statement by Commissioner Caldwell to the writer last September—a statement that he had $100,000 to put into his battle, half of it for Cook county and half of it for down state. The scale mentioned would call for the expenditure of just about that entire amount for Cook county alone, with nothing left for headquarters costs, advertising or meetings.

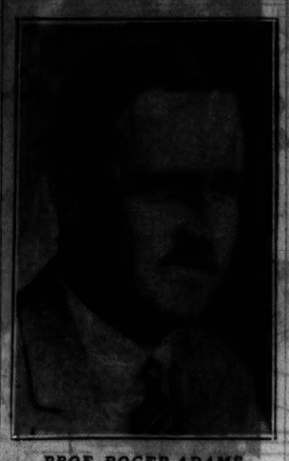
Among the committeemen said to have signed up for Caldwell, several of whom were interviewed, are Daniel A. Serritella [1st], William S. Finucane [11th], Anthony L. Golusinski [22d], William Lass [23d], James Vignola [26th], Joseph A. Porcaro [28th], and Louis Nettelhorst [50th].

A Preventive Maneuver.

Some of the committeemen said that in addition to being moved by friendship to support Caldwell they also were actuated by a desire to forestall efforts they think will be made to launch what they call a Deneen-Harding slate soon after New Year's day.

In the small amount of publicity that has been sent out for Commissioner Caldwell emphasis is placed on his record as president of the Chicago board of education under the city's most recent Republican mayor and his service on the board for a full term of six years.

CHEMIST HONORED



PROF. ROGER ADAMS.

GIBBS CHEMISTRY MEDAL AWARDED TO ROGER ADAMS

Praise U. of I. Professor for Discoveries.

Prof. Roger Adams, head of the department of chemistry at the University of Illinois, has been awarded the Willard Gibbs medal of the Chicago section of the American Chemical society for 1936, the society announced yesterday.

Prof. Adams will receive the medal for "outstanding and fundamental contributions to synthetic organic chemistry, and for conspicuous achievements as a teacher of chemistry," according to the announcement. The announcement also pointed out that he has been one of the most prolific and successful research chemists in the country.

Important Discoveries.

Among other things Prof. Adams has synthesized chaulmoogric acid, the active principle of the oil used in the treatment of leprosy, and butyn, a local anæsthetic. He also discovered platinum oxide, a new catalyst for the reduction of organic compounds.

"Prof. Adams is in the first rank of organic chemists," read the announcement. "His contributions to the literature of the subject have been extensive and diverse, including organic mercury and arsenic compounds, stereochemistry, local anæsthetics, alkaloids, X-ray studies of organic compounds, and others.

"He is an able teacher who has actively fostered the development of chemical personnel of the United States, and in this his organizing ability has played an important part."

Joins U. of I. Faculty in 1916.

Prof. Adams was born in Boston, Mass., Jan. 2, 1889. He studied at Harvard university, the University of Berlin, and the Kaiser Wilhelm institute. He went to Illinois as assistant professor in 1916, and became head of the department in 1926. He is president of the chemical society.

The Gibbs medal was founded by William A. Converse in 1911 and was named after Josiah Willard Gibbs, professor of mathematical physics at Yale university from 1871 to 1903. The award is determined by a national jury of scientists. It has been given, among others, to Mme. Marie Curie of France, Sir James Irvine of Scotland, Svante Arrhenius of Sweden, and Dr. Richard Willstaetter of Munich, and a number of American scientists.

URUGUAY REJECTS DENIAL OF OUSTED SOVIET MINISTER

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Foreign Minister José Espalter today handed back to Alexander Minkin, the expelled soviet minister, the latter's note denying charges made against his legation and government.

Uruguay last week broke off relations with the soviet union, charging that the Montevideo legation was the headquarters for South American revolutionary movements.

Espalter, in returning the minister's denial, expressed the belief it was unnecessary to prolong the controversy in so far as Minkin no longer has a diplomatic status here, and also because of the "inconvenient terms" of the note.

HIGH SEAS DELAY LINDYS' LANDING UNTIL TOMORROW

Ship Expected to Dock at Liverpool.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The mystery surrounding the arrival of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife and son, Jon, in England deepens hourly as the 7,500 ton freighter, American Importer, nears the end of its voyage.

Owing to delay caused by rough weather off the Irish coast, the vessel will abandon its usual call at Belfast, it was announced tonight, and proceed directly to Liverpool where it is due Tuesday. Storms and heavy seas were encountered and Atlantic shipping was reported hampered by fog.

The vessel passed Cobh, Irish Free State, at 9 p. m., Sunday (3 p. m. Chicago time). Tugs which attempted to put out were beaten back by the heavy weather.

Lindbergh is traveling with a diplomatic passport enabling him to command secrecy from the United States or British government officials. He is said to have taken advantage of this privilege.

Guards to Halt Crowds.

Only personal friends and officials will be allowed to board the American Importer upon its arrival at Gladstone dock Tuesday. A check-up tonight revealed no reservations were made for the Lindberghs in hotels, trains or airplanes at Liverpool.

Steamship officials at Liverpool are making preparations for speedy debarkation if the Lindberghs are on board when the vessel arrives. A special force of police will be on duty at the Gladstone dock to protect them from annoyance by sightseers. The public will be allowed to enter the dock, but should there be any demonstration the police instantly will throw a cordon around the landing place.

A tug was especially chartered and Leslie Wood, United States consul at Cork, and a number of Americans intended to meet the American Importer as it made its way around the southeast coast of Ireland. But the tug never left the harbor. For ten hours the radio operator was unsuccessful in efforts to get contact. The American Importer refused to answer.

The latest developments served to focus public attention upon Miss Betty Gow, Scottish nursemaid who was employed by the Lindberghs when their first born son, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was kidnaped in 1932. Miss Gow now is a shop assistant at Glasgow, but it is rumored she will return to the Lindberghs' service.

Morrows Going Abroad.

Englewood, N. J., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow and her daughter, Miss Constance Morrow, mother and sister of Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, are planning to go abroad some time next month, it was disclosed here today. They have already obtained passports and while their plans have not been completed it is known that they have contemplated a trip to Europe.

ONLY CARPENTER ON HAUPTMANN KIDNAP TRIAL JURY IS DEAD

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Liscom C. Case, the only carpenter on the jury which convicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann of the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby, died at his home in Hamden, near here, today. He was 65 years of age.

LISCOM C. CASE.

Case, the first Hauptmann juror to die, had been sick for about three weeks with a heart ailment said to have been aggravated by the ordeal of the long trial. The carpenter was known to be "ailing" throughout the trial and his condition was a matter of deep concern to opposing counsel as well as to Justice Thomas W. Trenchard.

At Trenton tomorrow the New Jersey pardons court is expected to fix a date for a hearing on Hauptmann's plea for clemency.

His counsel let it be known today that they elected to seek clemency at the hands of the pardons court rather than move for a new trial because of the "boader view" which the pardoning tribunal might take toward any new evidence that might be offered in the condemned man's behalf. Egbert Rosecrans and his fellow attorneys of the defense staf are understood to believe they will be able to present at least enough new circumstantial evidence to persuade the court to change Hauptmann's sentence from electrocution to life imprisonment.

IROQUOIS FIRE TERRORS TO BE RELIVED TODAY

Survivors to Join Service for 600 Dead.

BY MARCIA WINN.

At 3:15 this afternoon the years will be rolled backward for hundreds of Chicagoans while they relive the terrors of that gray Wednesday afternoon 32 years ago today, when the Iroquois theater burned.

Nineteen hundred people in gay holiday mood crowded into Chicago's new "fireproof" theater on Randolph west of State street that afternoon to see the celebrated Eddie Foy in his extravaganza, "Mr. Bluebeard." Five hundred and seventy-five of them later were carried out—dead. And within the next two weeks thirty more died.

Of those fortunates who escaped from the theater more than 100 will gather in the council chambers of the city hall this afternoon for what has come to be known as the annual Mercy day program, in commemoration of the reforms originated by survivors of the fire, who banded themselves into the Iroquois Memorial association.

Survivors to Retell Terrors.

Today the Most Rev. Msgr. Joseph Morrison will tell how the late Bishop Muldoon administered last rites to the dying victims of the fire. Attorney James S. Bishop, one of the first civilians to reach the fire and assist in rescue work, will tell of that first "mercy" work. And then the survivors will talk.

They will tell, perhaps, how the fire started, when the 1,900 theatergoers, most of them school children, gazed raptly at the stage where handsome Frank Holland and his seven Hussars were singing the then dashing "Let Us Swear by the Pale Moonlight."

How Eddie Foy, dressed in tights with only half his face made up, ran out from his dressing room and faced the audience over the footlights, flaming embers falling around him.

Foy Tries to Avert Panic.

"See?" he called to the audience, catching one of the embers. "I'm a pretty good catcher." Then to the orchestra, he cried—"For God's sake, play, play, play and keep on playing!"

The asbestos curtain refused to function. A door backstage was opened and a draft swirled the fire into leaping flames. The ventilator over the stage was incomplete and closed, and flames, heat, smoke, and gases billowed out over the audience.

But the audience no longer was static. Men, women, and children screamed and fought their way toward exits which they could not find. Some jumped from windows. Some found fire escapes. But 200 were found piled dead at the staircase. Others were found dead in their seats, their faces cerise from the gases which had smothered them.

KILLED IN GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Paxa, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Frank Brock, 21, of Mapa, was found dead in a corn elevator at Emery late yesterday. He was trapped under the grain when he entered the elevator to dislodge frozen corn.

JAMES CAGNEY TAKEN OFF WARNER PAY ROLL IN ROW OVER WORK

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Reports of difficulties between James Cagney and Warner Brothers brought confirmation today by studio officials that the actor is off the pay roll, at least temporarily.

Cagney is on a week-end yachting trip.

Associates deny he is demanding a larger salary, but say he wants to make fewer pictures and have a voice in choosing the stories, the cast and director.

Within three years, Cagney has made 14 pictures. His contract has two years to run. He wants to limit his pictures to three for each year, it was said. He also wishes to be permitted to work for other studios during his layoff period of 12 weeks annually. His salary is reported to be $4,500 a week for 40 weeks a year.

For the 125th time it will ...greet the NEW YEAR

In the little town of Broad Ford, Pa., was proffered the first toast to the New Year with the noble nectar known as Old Overholt straight rye whiskey. Bottled in bond under U. S. Government supervision—the requirements of which, as to full 100 proof and absolute freedom from adulteration, are more rigid than those of any other country in the world.

Soon for the 125th time, this hale and hearty whiskey will be the kingly vehicle for giving genial greeting to the dawning 1936.

At least four and a half years in wood, Old Overholt has a different-as-day-and-night all-rye taste all its own. When you know it as connoisseurs do, no one will fool you on it.

Search as you will. In the end you'll find no better whiskey for a cheery New Year. At all good bars.

AL J. PRIGNANO ASSASSINATED BY 3 GUNMEN

and carry them up the back way, I started to do this and was in a passageway at one side of the building when I heard several shots and ran back to find Prignano dead in the doorway."

Details of the actual shooting were told by Mrs. Prignano who remained calm in the face of an approaching hysteria which seized her later at the station. Inside the doorway, which opens off of the street level, is a small hallway from which stairs ascend to the second floor living quarters of the family. Prignano had an office on the first floor.

"My mother and my boy John were going upstairs ahead of me. I had one foot on the steps and my husband was holding my elbow when I heard a shot. One of the men had fired at my husband's head. The second shot missed him as he fell, and then the three killers leaned over his body and coolly fired four more shots into him. Then they ran."

Witness Pursues Killers.

Galanti and Zabawski who ran towards the scene at the sound of the shooting told of seeing the three men flee to the automobile parked across the street. Its motor was not running and the men experienced trouble in getting it started. They abandoned it and fled on foot as Galanti drew a revolver from the side pocket of his car. He fired three shots before the killers disappeared in the darkness. Blood found near the automobile indicated that Galanti had wounded at least one of the assassins.

They were seen by Andrew Stzczynski, 24 years old, 520 Bunker street, who was nearby. He told police he chased the killers for two blocks but lost them when they darted through a lot near Halsted and 12th streets.

Two suspicious circumstances reported by the Prignano maid, Harriet Stubbs, colored, were being investigated last night by Capt. Norton. Supervising Captain John Prendergast and Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan. She said that during the day a man telephoned and wanted to know the time Prignano would return, and the same information was requested later by a man and a woman who called at the house.

Finger Prints on Car.

Finger prints obtained from the car abandoned by the slayers, police believe, may provide a substantial clew to their identity. The car, a Ford sedan, bore the 1935 license number of 1-319-197 recorded as issued to Morris Schattell, 1933 South Homan avenue, for another make of car.

On Schattell's car police found license plates bearing No. 1-319-196, which were sent him from Springfield, differing only in one figure from the others and which Schattell had thought were his own. The latter plates, however, were recorded as issued to Sam Lapicola, 1942 Lincoln avenue. No one by that name had ever lived there, police said.

That robbery was not the motive for the crime, police declared, was seen in the discovery of $35 in Prignano's pockets. The killers also failed to take his watch or demand any of his wife's jewelry.

Seek Motive in Politics.

The motive was sought rather in the bloody politics of the ward, once the political pawn of Morris Eller, notorious henchman of a former Republican mayor. It was in this ward Prignano was born 43 years ago, and it was here he started his political career.

Prignano was a political follower of the late Dennis J. Egan and served as his secretary when Egan was Municipal court bailiff. He was later a deputy clerk for the county commissioners, district forester for the county forest preserve board, county board member in 1933, and committee clerk for the county board. He gave up this position recently when he opened a flower shop at 24 West Jackson boulevard.

In 1927 Prignano was elected to membership in the city council. When he sought reelection in 1928, however, he was defeated by his cousin, the present alderman, William V. Pacelli, a Republican, then a state representative. Pacelli and two other former state representatives, James Adduci and Daniel Serritella, were reputed then to be the front for the Capone gang.

Terrorism at Election.

This election contest brought numerous charges of terrorism, and at one time Prignano asked for police protection. In the fall of 1934, however, when the Democratic ticket swept to victory, Prignano was elected to the general assembly.

From then on his power and authority in the ward increased, in contrast to the declining fortunes of his cousin and other members of the opposition. He sponsored old age pension bills and also introduced the bill under which all firemen and policemen over 63 years of age will be retired Jan. 1.

Clashes with Nitti Gang.

More recently Prignano's domination reputedly clashed with that of the old Capone syndicate under Nitti. The ward boss insisted on having some say in any venture, according to several reports. This brought him in conflict with Nitti, who has turned the new South Water market into a gambling district.

Two incidents in the 1934 election were also recalled, incidents which failed to appear in police reports. One night Prignano was summoned to a well known Italian cafe on the west side. His wife was suspicious of this call and followed him there later. She found him drugged into unconsciousness.

Another night at Cermak road and Wentworth avenue Prignano was fired at, but the assassins had poor aim. Both of these incidents caused Prignano to become more wary, according to rumor, at the same time concentrating his opposition to the "opposition."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By FRANK RIDGWAY

Proof of the Food.

December 29, 1935.

PROOF of the value of feed, like pudding, is in the eating. Feeding crops to live stock is the test that feeds are subjected to on the Tribune Experimental farm near Yorkville where practically all of the grain and roughage grown is consumed by animals on the farm.

Throughout the fall and winter feeding season Clarence Thurow, farm manager, has been making observations to determine as a practical farmer the value of the different strains or varieties of crops. Pencil notes made in a book that he carries in his overall pocket tell an interesting story about the value of the various kinds of corn grown on an acreage basis at the farm last summer.

Eight or ten different strains and varieties of corn that ranked high in small plot tests in 1934 were grown. At gathering time men at the Yorkville place were particularly impressed with the high yield of a variety identified as "100 day" corn. Thirty acres of this corn, after headlands were trimmed out, yielded between 60 and 65 bushels to the acre, according to rough estimates made by the manager.

Notes in Mr. Thurow's book show that the so-called "100 day" corn required about 10 more days to ripen than a field of Krug which matured in about 115 days. The "100 day" was the tallest grain corn grown on the farm. The yield was so high that the men classed it as a "bumper crop." By measurement the "100 day" corn was the biggest yielder on the farm. Killing frost came late and the corn appeared to be well matured. The ears were large compared with other corn, but they were "rubbery." Mr. Thurow classifies the corn as "sample grade," which is low on the scale of grades.

The "100 day" corn was thrown into a crib where its identity could be preserved. The ears failed to dry out as well as the other corn. With a fairly high moisture content the ears became frozen and were not so palatable.

Then came the real test. Some of the "100 day" corn was crushed and thrown into the steers' feed bunks. The steers pushed it around in the trough, carefully tasted it and turned away from the corn to eat alfalfa and timothy hay.

At the time the "100 day" corn first was shoveled into the feed bunks the steers weighed about 900 pounds and were getting approximately 18 pounds of crushed corn daily. They were so slow about cleaning up the "100 day" corn that it was necessary to reduce their daily allowance to approximately 15 pounds a day, 3 pounds less per steer.

Mr. Thurow found that to keep the steers on full feed it was necessary to make some shifts in the way the feed was given.

"We had been following the practice of filling up the hay racks the first thing each morning and throwing the corn into the bunks a little later," he said. "Since the cattle showed a preference for the hay we reversed the order and fed the corn first and then filled up the hay racks about noon.

STUDENT UNION REFUSES TO AID U. S. IN ANY WAR

Legion Demands Ouster of Convention.

Columbus, O., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The American Student union tonight indorsed the "Oxford pledge" refusing to support the United States in any war it might conduct. The resolution was adopted, 244 to 49, after a heated debate.

Ed Kinney, member of the R. O. T. C. of the City College of New York and a member of the resolutions committee, said "passage of this resolution definitely labels the Student union as a 'radical' organization." Kinney and others fought the resolution.

Refuse to Leave Y. W. C. A.

The union stuck to its convention headquarters in the Y. W. C. A. here today despite an American Legion demand that it be ousted as a "revolutionary movement" with "communistic tendencies."

At a final business session the union voted approval of an annual student strike against war and urged support of legislation making enrollment in the reserve officers' training corps optional in all schools "as a step toward complete abolition of the R. O. T. C."

Five Receive Protest.

Five directors of the Y. W. C. A. board of thirty-six received the formal protest from the Franklin county [Columbus] Legion post, disavowed sponsorship of the student organization, and asked the students to terminate their meeting "as soon as possible."

These simple steps can help your family have FEWER COLDS—SHORTER COLDS

1. To help build RESISTANCE to Colds—Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep. (During the colds season, gargle night and morning with Vicks Voratone Antiseptic, especially designed for safe daily use to aid in defense against infection which may enter through the mouth.)

2. To help PREVENT Many Colds—At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

3. To help END a Cold Sooner If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

VICKS VAPORUB

These three steps form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—a practical home guide to fewer and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians; further proved in everyday home use by millions. CONFEREES HUNT A WAY TO AVOID RELIEF COLLAPSE

Horner's Bedside Parley Seeks $3,000,000.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

Members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission were gathered at Gov. Horner's bedside in the executive mansion at Springfield late last night considering what action might be taken to avoid a complete shutdown of relief activities in the state sometime in January.

Total relief expenditures for next month have been estimated at $5,780,000, to meet which the IERC will have on hand only $2,780,000. The governor, who is ill with a cold, called the conference mainly to discuss how to meet the shortage of $3,000,000. It was said that there has been no answer to his personal appeal to President Roosevelt for federal funds.

Where to Get $3,000,000?

With the state thus faced directly with the problem of raising or appropriating an additional $3,000,000 for relief for next month alone, there was speculation on whether the governor would call a second special session of the general assembly to take the necessary action. While this solution undoubtedly was in the minds of the conferees it was stated at a late hour from the conference room that neither this or any other concrete plan had yet been broached.

The state now turns over for relief purposes one third of the receipts from the 3 per cent sales tax, and this amount has been appropriated. What ever money the governor decides to use in excess of the sum already appropriated can be released for relief only by further legislative action, according to state officials.

Opposes Tapping General Fund.

Commission members have talked among themselves about appropriating $3,000,000 from the state's general fund with the hope of repaying it later from the relief share of the sales tax. The governor in the past has been opposed to this course, saying that the 17 millions in that fund are earmarked for other purposes.

In any event it is considered likely in Springfield that unless federal aid is forthcoming there will have to be a second special session of the legislature. Expenses of such a session would be cut considerably if it ran concurrently with the present special session. The chief expense, it was said, would be the payment of $50 to each legislator for incidental expenses, a total of about $10,000.

The Bedside Consultants.

Among those at the conference yesterday evening were John C. Martin, IERC chairman, and William H. Sexton and Omar Wright, IERC members; Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the IERC; John Stelle, state treasurer; K. L. Ames Jr., state director of finance; Leo M. Lyons, Cook county relief administrator, and Louis J. Owen, chief statistician for the relief commission.

RIVER OF BURNING LAVA ROLLS ON; FEAR GRIPS HILO

City Hunts a Plan to Save Reservoir.

HILO, Hawaii, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A fiery river of molten lava rolled slowly but relentlessly on tonight toward Hilo's municipal reservoir, despite the bombs of army airmen, dropped Friday in an effort to divert its course.

The lava ceased flowing last night within three miles of the reservoir, source of this city's water supply, and citizens had hoped the menace was past.

But a fiery red gash on the slope of Mauna Loa showed the volcano still was pouring out lava. Hilo business men rushed plans for an emergency meeting tomorrow or Tuesday to devise measures for protecting the water source.

Plans to Inspect Crater.

Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, government volcanologist, will not be able to appraise the result of the army's twenty bomb attack on the volcano until he can inspect the crater high on the mountain and also determine whether pahoehoe [smooth] lava will push out over the "AA" type. The "AA" lava acts similar to an avalanche, not changing its course to fit the contour of the land.

The speed of the flow might increase, Jaggar said, if the smooth lava rushed out over the rough layer. The smooth lava might take any direction downhill.

Many natives expressed regret over the bombing, insisting it would not stop Pele, the fire goddess, from sending lava wherever she designed.

Recall Legendary Promise.

Others were confident Pele would keep a legendary promise to the Hawaiian pig god, Kama Puaa, and not send the lava stream through Hilo. The legend is that the pig god defeated Pele in a fight and extracted the promise.

Hawaiians say Pele used to appear in many forms, some times as a beautiful girl and on other occasions as an old hag. The casting of berries into the volcano pits as a gesture to Pele is widely practiced.

YOUTHS RISK DEATH IN RACE OVER CRUST OF BURNING LAVA

HILO, Hawaii, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Two boys and a girl risked a ghastly death today to race 30 feet across a newly solidified lava sheet to a picture-taking vantage point on the Mauna Loa volcano slopes.

Although the lava was sufficiently cool to harden on top, the crust was brittle. Had the crust broken, the trio would have dropped into the molten stream beneath, having a temperature of nearly 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The youngsters did not realize the danger.

Souvenir hunters and amateur photographers took advantage of the week-end holiday, undaunted by thunderous explosions in the new flows and the razor-edge sharpness of old lava deposits.

A favorite trick is to snatch a lava cake from the fiery stream with an iron shovel and poke a coin into it before it hardens. The hot cake is carried away gingerly and left outdoors for several moments to cool. Only nickels or pennies can be used. Silver melts too easily. Lighting cigarets from the cakes is another stunt.

$10,000,000 GIVEN NATIONAL YOUTH RELIEF PROJECTS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Approval by Controler General L. R. McCarl of an additional $10,000,000 for the National Youth administration was announced today by Aubrey W. Williams, executive director.

The sum brings the total released for youth work projects to $20,000,000, an initial allotment of $10,000,000 having been made on Nov. 20.

The money will be apportioned among the states on the basis of the number of youths on relief and will be used for projects falling within the following classifications:

Youth community development and recreational leadership; rural youth development; public service training projects, and research projects.

Projects will be selected by state directors.

ANOTHER FARLEY SURPLUS SHOWN BY POSTOFFICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—An accounting by Postmaster General James A. Farley, also national chairman of the Democratic party, showing an increase of $65,836,232 in postal expenditures and a "surplus" of $4,984,149 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, was released for public consumption today.

In his stewardship letter to President Roosevelt, accompanying the report, Farley estimated postal expenditures at 760 million dollars for the fiscal year 1936, or another increase of $63,396,748. He pointed with pride, however, to an increase in postal revenues of $44,062,136 over the previous fiscal year, the first such increase since 1930.

History of Surpluses.

The current report furnishes the second chapter in the interesting history of "Farley surpluses," which are accomplished by accounting legerdemain and are in reality deficits according to those Republican congressional leaders who are so brutal as to question the postmaster general's sincerity.

For the year 1934 Accountant Farley reported a 12 million dollar surplus, which he claimed was the greatest on record with the single exception of 1918. But it developed subsequently that Farley was taking advantage of an act of June 9, 1930, and there actually was a deficit of 44 million dollars.

The 1930 act provided that estimated amounts that would have been collected on congressional and governmental franked mail, penalty mail, and all free mail, such as that received by the blind, could be charged off the deficiency. Credits also are taken for subsidies for steamship and air lines.

Charges Off 69 Millions.

To achieve another "surplus," Farley again this year charged off the items which totaled $69,537,252. This represents the amount that the taxpayer pays over and above his purchase of postage stamps. The "adjusted postal deficit" item on Farley's accounting sheet thus becomes a "surplus."

There is a difference between the bookkeeping phraseology of the postoffice department and the treasury. The daily treasury statement always carries a postal deficiency. For the current fiscal year, which is half expired, the deficiency was carried as $30,014,655 as of Dec. 28.

The reasons given by Farley for the increase in postal expenditures were that the compensation of employes was put back on the 100 per cent salary basis and automatic administrative promotions were restored during the year.

13 PASTORS UNITE TO VOICE DEFENSE OF BIRTH CONTROL

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A group of 13 clergymen tonight countered charges of Cardinal Patrick Hayes that by their views on birth control they "have abrogated the belief in a moral law."

Their formal statement was the fourth in a controversy that began when the cardinal, in a sermon, opposed birth control. The clergymen issued a reply defending contraception and the cardinal responded with a statement on Dec. 19.

Today's statement claimed an ethical and spiritual justification for birth control practice.

Fifteen social scientists gave their endorsement, as individuals, to the statements made by Prof. Fairchild.

Infant mortality figures were cited as proving "that the chance to survive steadily decreases for each child born after the third child in each family." Clinic and hospital records, the statement said, "prove that too many and too frequent confinements not only undermine the health of the mother, but lead to invalidism and premature death.

"The rolls of family welfare agencies prove again and again that families with low earning power are unable to lift themselves out of destitution when they are weighed down by an excessive number of children."

MYSTERY GIRL IN HOTEL FALLS 150 FT. TO DEATH

A girl, 20 years old, leaped or fell to her death yesterday from the 16th floor of the Wellington Arms hotel, 2970 Sheridan road. She was found at the rear of the building, still alive after her 150 foot plunge. She died at the John B. Murphy hospital.

Considerable mystery surrounded the incident. Her coat, of greenish brown cloth, and a hat, of similar material, were found on the 16th floor of the building. Hotel employes denied ever having seen the woman, and guests at the hotel could not identify her.

She was described as weighing 112 pounds, and being nearly 5 feet 3 inches tall, with blonde hair and blue-gray eyes. She was poorly dressed in a red plaid gingham frock and wore brown hose and shoes. She wore a white gold ring with a black onyx setting. On it were the initials "E. G. S." and below, the numerals "1933."

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE CHANGING PLATFORM.

In September, 1918, THE TRIBUNE published its first platform. Every day since then a platform has appeared at the head of the editorial page. So far as we know, THE TRIBUNE was the first newspaper to adopt this device for focusing public attention on a few matters of transcendent importance. The value of the idea has since been widely recognized and has been copied by large and small newspapers all over the country.

For the historian of the future the changes in the platform over the years will be of no small interest. The platforms will reflect not only the changing interests and aspirations of our times but also the capacity of the citizens to obtain what they want. A study of the planks and what results were obtained will serve as a measure of the political capacity of our generation. The record of accomplishment will go far to show whether representative democracy has served in our day as a fairly efficient form of political organization.

The first platform appeared in September, 1918, toward the close of the war. It was concerned largely with measures for obtaining victory, and with the end of the war it had outlived its usefulness. One nonmilitary plank from this original platform, calling for the construction of the Illinois waterway, was continued in varying forms for a dozen years until 1930, when completion of the project was assured. Many other planks in the early platforms have been withdrawn for the same reason, notably those which called for progress on the projects which had been outlined in the Burnham plan for Chicago. These projects have now been realized.

It is instructive to trace the development of the highway system through changes in the platform. The first highway plank, inserted just after the war, read: "Develop good roads." The Illinois highway system as it came into being was a partial fulfillment of that plank. A year later the need for wide roads out of Chicago had already appeared. "Build wide roads into the country," the platform said. The accomplishment followed after a lapse of a decade. A few years later another change was made: The platform now called for "a highway system adequate at all points to the demands of traffic." Still later came the demand for "safe streets and highways," and for grade separations on boulevards and through streets. Latterly the emphasis has been increasingly on safety. The successes achieved in the past are promising for the future.

Back in 1922 the platform called for the abolition of Pittsburgh plus, the pricing system used by the steel industry [and with modifications by other industries] which worked to the injury of mid-western enterprises. In due time the practice was forbidden by order of the Federal Trade commission. A plank of 1924, "Develop a nation-wide superpower system," has been largely fulfilled by private initiative, but it remains to be seen if this first rank achievement is to be retained in the face of government enmity toward the utility business.

The plank calling for repeal of the Volstead act was set up despite a widespread belief at the time that a newspaper could not afford to oppose prohibition. THE TRIBUNE continued to grow in strength throughout the prohibition era and the plank was removed only when the victory was gained.

Some planks have been taken down because of the depression. A demand for electrification of the railroads is one of these. Obviously the railroads are in no position now to undertake large capital expenditures, but it is interesting to note that because of the demand for cleaner transportation the railroads have developed the Diesel locomotive. The present plank calling for improvement in suburban services is realizable despite the depression because no large expenditures are entailed. The plank calling for a speeding up of railroad passenger service has been taken down because railroad managements in all sections of the country have seen the wisdom of the proposal. When the matter was first suggested in the editorial columns of THE TRIBUNE the outlook was not favorable. Railroad men regarded the idea as visionary and impractical. They have come to see that only by speeding up their services can they regain lost business. The most profitable trains are the fastest ones.

The plank calling for an end to the reign of gangdom was inserted at a time when racketeering in Chicago was at its height. The victory is not yet complete but progress has been so substantial that the plank has been taken down. The plank calling for the abolition of the smoke evil has also been taken down in the belief that much progress has been made and future progress depends largely upon capital expenditures which cannot be required in a period of economic depression.

Following the enactment of the Illinois NRA act, a plank demanded the repeal of this tyranny law. The law has now lapsed. A similar plank still stands in the platform for America and will stay there until the iniquitous infringements of liberty enacted by the New Deal congresses are repealed by congress or invalidated by the courts.

Readers of THE TRIBUNE, we believe, will look with considerable satisfaction upon the record which has here been summarized briefly. Here is proof that what the people of the country, the city and the state want can be obtained provided only the desires are stated in concrete form and a persistent fight is made. There have been some failures, notably in the effort to improve local transportation services, but there is no reason for despair. The successes far outnumber the failures and the failures are not final. The faint-hearted may take courage from the knowledge that most people thought the fight against prohibition was futile when it was undertaken.

MR. HOPKINS WOULD LET 'EM EAT CAKE.

Mr. Hopkins, the playboy of the Works Progress [toward chaos] has strengthened the morale of the country by cheering the employables on to strikes and riots. They've been taken off relief and set to pounding the frozen ground, but Mr. Hopkins hasn't found a way of getting their checks out on time. A man whose spirit has been raised by a job of ground pounding and who finds that the job has taken his groceries away from him may, in his heightened morale, want to pound somebody's nose.

In time the New Deal ought to find a competent paymaster. One of the Washington miracles has been the payoff machine which takes a perforated card and does everything except make the necessary changes for the baby. Why the machine won't come through for Mr. Hopkins is a mystery in the life and works of that inspirational progressor. But even when the employed employables, if you can call it employment, get their checks the remaining problem will turn a lot of hair white this winter.

The Works Progress administration has broken down the relief administration without taking enough of the burden off the organizations which tried to see that no one starved. Here in Illinois the relief administrators are about at their wits' end and Washington, which has long been that way, turns a face as sour as a frozen vinegar pickle on appeals to reason. Apparently there is a forgotten man. He's the man who cannot get in WPA as bossed by deserving Democrats.

TO BE RETRACTED IN OCTOBER.

Among the learned societies taking advantage of the Christmas holidays to hold their annual conventions are the National Collegiate Athletic association, the American Football Coaches' association, the Student Health association, and the Sportsmanship brotherhood. The subject of rowdyism at the college football games has come in for much discussion. Eminent thinkers have addressed themselves to the problem of how to prevent spectators from stepping down on the field to assist the Dartmouth right tackle. Other intellects have sought ways and means to prevent the Princeton cheering section from knocking down the goal posts before the game is over.

These are difficult problems, but we venture to suggest a remedy. If football were made a more interesting game the spectators might be more interested in it. The drunks and rowdies get on the field only because the bulk of the spectators are pretty thoroughly bored and will welcome any diversion.

This is heresy and if uttered six or eight weeks ago would have brought angry delegations of alumni to our door. Maybe it will anyway, but before the protest is organized we invite all indignant subscribers to examine the matter in their own minds. Was there no time in the last season when they would not have welcomed almost anything to relieve the monotony on the field? If they had been in a position to restrain the young man who wanted to join the Dartmouths would they have raised a finger?

Football is a great game to play and sometimes a great game to watch. Generally, as it is played in the colleges, it is tolerably interesting, but it tends to drag, particularly toward the close. Its dramatic moments are incomparable, but it has too few of them. Maybe it is what it is and nothing can be done about it. If so, the remedy for so-called rowdyism is to discourage all but the most devoted followers from attending. They will then be in the majority and will see that no one interferes with the play. However, good might be accomplished, too, by forcibly restraining all cheer leaders. Their activities tend to work up an emotional excitement which the game itself will not ordinarily support. The consequence is that after a quarter or so the spectators feel that they have been let down when, in fact, if their nerves had not been subjected to the tom-tom, a pleasant enough time might have been had. The game is frequently dull but it is not as dull as it frequently seems to be in contrast to the synthetic excitement all about.

GOOD-BY CLAQUE!

[New York World-Telegram.]

The claque, quaint institution of ancient rootage, has gone from the Metropolitan Opera this season by official ukase. And who will weep?

Singers, great and not so great, employed the members of this horny handed, brass lunged regiment who, strategically stationed throughout the great house, raised the roof at the precisely appropriate moment. They were the bellwethers of the cheer, luring innocent spectators into flurries of clapping while the artist bowed, knowing full well the spurious fuse which had ignited the outbursts.

The claquers stood behind the side seats, sometimes with hats on, often glum as gunmen, violent as boilermakers, stirring over and over gales of cheering when the average auditor yearned for the storm to settle. Versed in the operas, skilled, they had a certain utilitarian value—they primed the applause not a split second too soon or late to mar a high C or to violate the vanity of the singer.

Quaint, yes. But false and obnoxious and racketeering, it is also alleged, preying upon artists fearful of great silences and charging them all the traffic would bear.

Hereafter at the Met it must be every singer for himself and let the applause fall where it may. The audience can boast a liberation!

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ALL READY EVERYBODY with your New Year's resolution all written out and carefully committed to memory. Let every one swear off on what is his most distressing trait. I wish the Democrats would swear off hoisting our income taxes and the Republicans would swear off running for the presidency.

IT IS REPORTED from Rome that Mussolini is going to swear off sticking his chin out and roaring at Europe like a bear with its hind leg in a trap, but the report cannot be verified.

AND KING HAILE Selassie is going to swear off shaving until the last Italian soldier leaves Ethiopia. Hey, Haile, you're cheating; you've petted those lambrequins on your face and watered 'em and tempted the darned things to grow ever since you got on your first long pants. Or what you call pants.

AND THE BRITISH government is going to swear off presenting the larger part of Africa with a fence around it to Mussolini. At least they're going to swear off putting the fence around it.

THE JAPS are going to swear off gobbling up China. That is, they're going to swear off that they won't gobble China in 1950. By that time they'll have it all gobbled.

THE STILLBORN YEAR.

Out, out evil year that was born without soul!
I fain would forget you in part and in whole,
Or if your dark months I'm compelled to remember
All will be lonely and bleak as December.

You were the year in which hope all but died—
An abortion in time in which the race cried
Over your barren womb and dust-dry breast
That neither suckled nor soothed down to rest.

You were the year of dread rumors of war—
The menace of Moloch; the thunders of Thor—
You saw the rise of dictators long dead,
Shaking the world with a Caesar's old tread.

Of all of the years that have added to life
Your chief bequest was a profitless strife—
You gave but a stone and you called it bread—
Hard were your tasks and harder your bed.

And now as you slink out over the hill
We welcome another with a heart and a will—
One who must clear the path that you cluttered—
One who will sing where you muddled and muttered.

Out, out damned year of crime and confusion!
You were little more than a wretched intrusion;
And of all of the years that are near and afar
I would fain blot you out of my own calendar.

THE GRAND ANNUAL EXCURSION of the good old Water Wagon will start as usual next Tuesday at midnight just as the Wrigley clock strikes the hour of twelve. (If the Wrigley clock refuses to strike the hour of twelve it makes no difference. We will use a sun dial illuminated by a flood light.) So then, just as the glad New Year begins, to the joyous tooting of horns and the singing of the sweet old song "How Dry I Am" by the Water Wagon Barber Shop Quartet, the voyage will begin. More applications than usual have been made for tickets this year, and those who wish to be certain of making the trip should secure their reservations at once.

MAUNA LOA.

(There is an Hawaiian superstition that Mauna Loa is inhabited by Mate Pele, a malevolent, fire-haired spirit who brooks no familiarity. Should some venturesome wight peer into the crater it will waken the spirit, who will at once cause a devastating eruption.)

* * * *

When Mauna Loa slumbers
Soft, the night above her yearns;
Wistful are the winds—she slumbers—
Deep within her bosom burns
All the terror of the tempest,
All the sluggish fires of Hell.
'Neath her mask of sulking lava
Passions dark and death still dwell.

O'er her shaggy sides the summer
Trails her timorous mosses, sweet;
Down her serried bosom brooklets
Glide, and mingle at her feet
With a thousand tropic grasses—
Blooms of ruby glooms and deeps.
Beauty reigns and Nature waxes
Gay—when Mauna Loa sleeps.

High upon her brow the crater
Like an eyeless socket lies,
Where reigns baleful Mate Pele,
Hair of flame and hateful guise.
Who of earth has dared her fury—
Mistress of that fiery gate?
Dared to venture near her portal?
Dared to loose her vengeful hate?

Fly—her breath is hot upon us!
Fly—the sleeping silence wakes!
Fly—her lava-pulse is stirring!
Fly—for Mauna Loa wakes!

VARIOUS USES OF IODINE.

DISCOVERED accidentally by Courtais in 1811, iodine gained rapidly in favor as a helpful drug and today holds a prominent position among remedial agents. Within a few years of its discovery it was used in the treatment of goiter, then called bronchocele. In 1836 it was found to be of value in the treatment of syphilis and four years later it began to be employed extensively as an antiseptic. Since that time many preparations of iodine have been added to our stock of useful drugs.

In nature the metal [for it is a metal] occurs in sea water, sea salt, seaweed, and sea food and this is emphasized by the fact that in the United States during the world war among drafted soldiers there was but one case of goiter in those coming from the seacoast areas to seventeen from inland water or mountainous regions.

Solutions of iodine are widely used as antiseptics. Despite the introduction of many other chemicals, iodine is still the one chosen by many surgeons in the preparation of the skin before operations. The tincture [alcoholic solution] is applied to the dry skin. Its application for this purpose is often limited because it is irritating to the skin of many persons. Another unpleasant feature is the brown stain. This, however, can be removed quite easily with a dilute solution of ammonia.

Iodine is absolutely necessary for the proper functioning of the thyroid gland. When it is absent or deficient in amount symptoms of myxedema [too little thyroid] may develop. In toxic goiter it is given by physicians to reduce the symptoms and to aid in preparing the patient for operative removal of the gland. The effect is observed from ten days to three weeks after administration of the drug has been begun.

Great success in preventing goiter was demonstrated by Marine and Kimball in 1907, when small doses of iodine were given to groups of school girls in a goiterous region near the Great Lakes. Following its use few of these youngsters developed goiter. The lack of iodine in the drinking water in localities where goiter is prevalent is apparently only one factor in the causation of this disease; another important one being the low iodine content of vegetables.

Fortunately, the thyroid gland possesses the power to store iodine. It is not necessary, therefore, to feed iodine regularly. A very small dose of this substance one day each week is sufficient in those sections where the iodine content of the water is low. The form in which it is administered is immaterial.

In toxic goiter, adding iodine to the diet will be followed by a decrease in nervousness, lowering of the heart rate, and absence of the usual profuse sweating. The general health of the patient will improve. If the drug is continued for too long a period there may be a return of the original distressing symptoms. In many cases, however, if the use of the drug is stopped for a few weeks and then again resumed, good effects will be observed.

Overdosage is marked by gastric disturbances such as vomiting, abdominal cramps, and a disagreeable metallic taste. If large doses are given, severe collapse, diarrhea, and inflammation of the kidneys may appear.

Iodine shows such powerful effects upon the body that it should not be taken indiscriminately or in the absence of careful supervision by a competent physician.

FATIGUE.

C. M. writes: After reading your article on fatigue caused by a mild deficiency of thyroid secretion I consulted my physician, and on his advice I commenced taking a form of thyroid extract with immediate beneficial results.

I add some details of my case. In 1917 I contracted influenza, having all the characteristic symptoms except fever. I had a feeling about the neck which caused me some uneasiness. I was unable to wear a collar or stand any restriction of the throat. I rapidly lost a great deal of weight, and specialists treated me for tuberculosis of the larynx. Painting the throat with iodine helped. My physician said honestly he did not know the cause of my symptoms and for several years I had a variety of treatments, finally going on a farm, where I succeeded in building myself up to some pounds above my normal weight. I then returned to business and since 1931 have been under considerable physical and mental strain. During this time I kept my weight, but suffered great fatigue and pain in the sternum. I feared angina, but my physician assured me I had no heart involvement.

Now, after going on the thyroid diet, I find I work as smoothly as a well oiled machine. I function better mentally and have a sense of physical and muscular relaxation.

REPLY.

I have seen many cases similar to your own. A word of caution, however, should be offered. I am sure that your physician understands that thyroid extract may be given in cases of this sort up to the limit of tolerance, BUT NOT BEYOND. The best check is the metabolism test. You should not run your basal metabolic rate much above plus fifteen. If the rate is kept between normal and plus fifteen, you will be on safe ground.

TONSILS.

M. D. writes: When a child with rheumatism is feeling better it is hard to convince the mother that the patient should be kept in bed for a considerably longer period because of danger of a reaction. Also, the tonsils should not be removed until the child is well.

REPLY.

You are quite right. Tonsils should not be removed in the presence of an infection. A child who has been ill should have a normal temperature for several weeks before tonsil removal is attempted.

DANGEROUS CROSSING.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—[Friend of the People.]—In a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE under the Friend of the People "A. B." refers to a dangerous crossing at I. C. tracks and 84th street. The commissioner of police in his reply refers to 84th and South Chicago avenue. I believe "A. B." meant the I. C. tracks at 84th and Commercial avenue in South Chicago. I have a 9 year old boy who attends the Philip K. Sullivan school at 83d and Coles avenue, and it is necessary for him to cross these tracks four times each day. There are other pupils who attend the St. Michael's Parochial school at 83d and South Shore drive who have to cross these tracks. I have noticed that just at noon when the children are on their way home for lunch a train is heading north and another south. Without a doubt there should be some protection at this crossing for the safety of the children. It would also relieve their parents of considerable worry.

P. P. F.

The intersection probably referred to is 83d place and Commercial avenue, where children are required to cross the I. C. tracks going to and from school. There is no crossing at 84th street and the I. C. tracks. This crossing was placed under observation and it was found there were some 150 children required to cross to and from the two schools mentioned. Twelve I. C. suburban trains pass this point in the morning, nine trains in the noon hour, and five in the afternoon. A watchman's shanty is situated within 50 feet of this crossing and the watchman regulates the railroad gates, which are lowered when trains go by. A hazard does exist to some extent, particularly when children attempt to cross under the lowered gates to beat the approach of the trains, and I therefore assigned a patrolman to guard this crossing during the hours above stated.

JAMES P. ALLMAN,
Commissioner of Police.

SUBSTITUTE FOR WILL.

West Salem, O., Dec. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In place of a will, a married man desires to deed his property [which is in his name only] to the various members of the family. 2. Is it necessary for the husband and wife both to sign the deeds made to the children? 3. Can the husband deed some to his wife? 4. If a daughter in whose favor one of the deeds is made is separated from her husband, but not divorced, can she hold all the property deeded to her, or will the husband come in for his share? If so, what part is his share? 5. What would be the case if a son received an inheritance, would the former wife get a share? In case the property deeded to the separated daughter was sold [6] would the ex-husband have to sign the deed and [7] would the daughter be able to hold all the receipts?

H. W.

1. We advise against such a substitute for a will if the deed is to be unrecorded.
2. Yes.
3. Yes.
4. The husband will have a dower interest.
5. His wife would have a dower interest.
6. The title would not be clear without his signature.
7. He could name the terms on which he would be willing to sign.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY S. L. SHEPPARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, N. F.—An organization demanding a quick return to representative government, or at least election of the six commissioners now appointed by King George of Great Britain, and who help Governor Admiral Sir David Murray Anderson rule Newfoundland, is heaping criticism on the present régime here as its second year draws to a close. The organization is led by Maj. Peter J. Cashin, former minister of finance.

On Oct. 30 hundreds who could not gain admittance to a mass meeting, listened outside by radio while resolutions denouncing the commission system of government were passed.

Newfoundland surrendered its century old tradition of representative government in December, 1933, after a royal commission recommended that, in view of the precarious financial condition of the nation, the legislature and executive council be suspended and supplanted by a governor and appointive commissioners who would exercise legislative and executive power. The British parliament authorized this in the Newfoundland bill, enacted Dec. 21, 1933.

The initial program of the commission called for rehabilitation of the country's finances and aid to agriculture and cod fishing, the principal industry.

Its critics charge, however, that the commission has failed to adopt any scheme to prevent suffering from the low price of dried cod fish, and that consequently few fishermen have been able to pay their outfitting bills in full after the season closed, and face the winter in debt and on the dole.

Another criticism, made as early as a year ago, is that the commission has named new Newfoundland people to responsible positions, on the ground that they are not fitted. Instead Canadians and Britons have been selected, it is charged.

Proponents of the new régime say the critics are merely longing for a return to the old system of spoils politics which, they claim, resulted in the government's bankruptcy and the necessity for the commission government.

The pro-government observers insist the government has aided cod fishing by granting a bounty on schooner building and making arrangements whereby fishing gear, boats and engines, which are duty free, can be acquired under a four year repayment plan. The money is a grant from the British Colonial Development fund. Further, they cite that cooperation among groups of fishermen has been sponsored and aided by English, Scottish and Canadian experts.

Agriculture, the proponents say, has been improved by establishment of cooperative farming areas, a model farm, a stock breeding farm and the importation of pure bred stock from the United States and Canada for distribution among the farmers and fishermen. There has also been more successful enforcement of regulations for grading and selling products, it is said.

Finally, they point with pride to the reorganization and improvement of the entire civil service along the lines of the British system. Experts from English departments have been loaned to aid this work.

Another argument cited to support the new government is: Duties on more than 300 commodities have been reduced and in some cases eliminated, reducing living costs somewhat and wiping out the prolific smuggling from the French St. Pierre and Miquelon Islands.

TOWNSEND FIGURES.

Ackley, Ia., Dec. 24.—The other day I read some letters in a newspaper in which advocates of the Townsend plan gave figures. Their language was clear and distinct. The government just starts pouring out the money, we'll say 24 billions a year [without waiting to get it], and it will go on reproducing itself, year after year. Perpetual motion, sought heretofore in vain throughout the ages, has at last been discovered. The nation can be made as rich as it wants to be by increasing the pension; the bigger the pension the richer we are!

But let us try it out on a small scale. We take a village of 20 people. Two of them, the usual proportion, are over 60 years of age. They receive their $4,800 together. Now, in that small village, besides the housewives and children, there are two merchants, two clerks, and one laborer. The pensioners spend their $4,800 with the two merchants. What is the result? The profit of the merchants together is 10 per cent net, or $480. [Most merchants would be delighted with 10 per cent net.]

Where does the reproduction occur? If the merchants undertook to pay additional help from the $480 profit, all or part of the $480 would be used up. But suppose they let those two clerks do all the work for the same old wages. Then who will make up the $4,320 of pension money still needed to pay the second year's pensions, or to pay back the government? Or suppose the government took all that profit of $480, how far would it go? Could the two clerks and one laborer make up the $4,320 needed to pay those pensions the second year?

"Ah, but," says the Townsender, "you haven't counted what the farmers round about that village sell." "Yea," say I, "don't they also have their proportion of pensioners to supply the $2,400 each to?" "And," says the Townsender, "you didn't count the sales the jobbers made to those two merchants." "No, indeed," say I, "because the cities where those jobbers live also have their aged. How could they supply pensions to the village?"

Well, let's start at the other end. The government says, "We'll just take out the pension tax in advance. Fifty turnovers at 2 per cent each will make 100 per cent of the pension money. Now here, Mr. Pensioner, is a check for the $2,400 less the $2,400 tax." What does he get?

Or, again, suppose the dealers pay 2 per cent on each turnover for 50 turnovers, making 100 per cent of the pension money, will not the last buyer pay the whole amount of the pension money from the 50 transactions? How else will it work? Turnover is not profit, but capital, and if the government seizes part of our capital each time we shall in the end all starve together, or else those of us under 60 years will work ourselves to death trying to accomplish the impossible in the way of providing luxuries for those who do not work.

SENATOR BORAH AS A CANDIDATE.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—In today's editorial, "Senator Borah as a Candidate," you make the concluding statement—"he puts considerations of public good above his personal ambition, is a model for others."

To this statement I wish to say, "O yeah." That, I presume then, accounts for his stand in with the Townsendites, the silverites and the hot potatoites.

If your paper has any regard for the future of the Republican party, why smile so benignly on a liberal candidate? Do we Republicans want a liberal candidate? Do we want Borah to do to the Republican party what Roosevelt has done to the Democratic party?

I hope that the mass of Republican voters will insist upon a Republican candidate.

THE LINDBERGH FLIGHT.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—If this Hauptmann farce keeps up much longer it won't be necessary to execute him. He will kill himself laughing at the way he has fooled some of the people in the United States, including Gov. Hoffman.

HAZEL DIETERLE.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Col. Lindbergh and his small family have been driven from the land of their birth at the time politics is playing with the convicted murderer of their first born. With the huge amount of money collected by Mrs. Hauptmann, it is amazing the politicians have shown such self-control until the memory of this money has been forgotten, but she will be stripped clean before they stop.

IMPATIENCE.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—It is not a national disgrace that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh have left the United States to make their home in England.

They are not the first prominent Americans to leave this country. Other wealthy Americans have left the United States not because of their fear for kidnapers but because England is where most wealthy Americans go.

Col. Lindbergh has a good excuse for leaving the country, but there are many people who will not fall for his yarn, I, for instance, am one.

PETER C. LATSIS.

Waukesha, Wis., Dec. 26.—Another family besides the Lindberghs fled their native land to protect a little child. Did any one ever accuse Mary and Joseph of cowardice—or have generations since applauded their foresight, caution and wisdom, as some of us now applaud those qualities in the Lindberghs? L. E. S.

HE AGREES.

Prairie View, Ill., Dec. 24.—The cartoon in today's TRIBUNE, "Uncle Sam's Crowning Humiliation," is McCutcheon's crowning achievement. After it all editorial comment, articles and books on the flight of the Lindberghs will be not only superfluous but confusing, for the whole story is there—so stunning, heartbreaking and humiliating that every American who has a heart to break and a spirit susceptible to righteous rebuke is moved to tears and repentance. That Lindbergh searchlight that flashes the grievous and terrifying truth upon Uncle Sam must penetrate to the consciousness of every citizen of this country if America is to survive and hold the respect of the civilized world.

Nothing short of divine inspiration could achieve such a picture. For not all the condemnatory chapters of the prophets of Israel against the degeneracy of their times could outdo in arraignment the presentation and implications of this latest and greatest McCutcheon cartoon. And no future written chapter of American history on this politically degenerate, crime-ridden, crime-ruled period will be half complete without the accompaniment of this pictorial Jeremiad.

HUNG JURY ENDS O'CONNOR TRIAL AFTER 50 HOURS

Reported 10 for Acquittal on All Ballots.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Judge Earl Peters at 3:05 this afternoon dismissed the jury of seven men and five women which had failed to reach a verdict in the gambling conspiracy trial of Edward L. O'Connor, Democratic attorney general of Iowa.

ATTORNEY GENERAL EDWARD L. O'CONNOR.

The jury had deliberated for 50 hours without breaking the deadlock.

It was learned that only four ballots were taken since the jury was given the case Friday noon. On each ballot the count was reported to have stood 10 for acquittal and two for conviction. Newsmen were informed that the two jurors who held out for conviction, and thus made necessary a new trial some time next summer, were women.

Dismissal of the jury ended a trial which had lasted more than seven weeks and which had cost Woodbury county tax payers $12,000. O'Connor was the first of 45 persons indicted by the grand jury to come to trial. It has been estimated that the "graft" investigation and trials may cost Woodbury county $100,000.

Doubt was expressed here today as to whether Max E. Duckworth, former Woodbury county attorney, who has been in jail for contempt since November because he refused to testify in the case, would continue his silence if faced with an additional long period of confinement.

Duckworth's attorneys were expected to seek an immediate writ of habeas corpus in an effort to secure his release. Duckworth's appeal to the Iowa Supreme court is to be considered before O'Connor's second trial can come up.

H. M. Havner, special prosecutor, based the state's case on the story Duckworth told the grand jury. Duckworth's refusal to testify admittedly greatly weakened Havner's case.

State Treasurer Leo J. Wegman and Assistant Attorney General Walter Maley are other prominent Iowa officials still under indictment by the Woodbury county grand jury. Wegman, it is believed, will be the next to be tried.

O'Connor today expressed keen disappointment at the failure of the jury to acquit him.

"The record clearly demonstrated that I was not guilty," he said.

THIEVES TURN OFFICE OF SLAIN MINNESOTA EDITOR UPSIDE DOWN

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Thieves broke into the offices of the Mid-West American, weekly newspaper of the slain Walter W. Liggett, and ransacked the place, it was revealed tonight. They carried off voluminous files of personal correspondence, but failed to secure any documents of importance.

In revealing the burglary, which took place some time during the Christmas holiday, Mrs. Edith Liggett, widow of the publisher, said that all of her murdered husband's papers having to do with the Minneapolis criminal-political situation had been moved to a place of safe keeping outside the state.

The plant had been virtually turned upside down by the prowlers. Drawers were pulled out of desks and every corner of the offices gave evidence of an intense search.

SNOW AND ICE COAT HIGHWAYS THROUGH DIXIE

Travel Perilous, Tribune Roadster Finds.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—This is rather bad weather, and smart tourists who left Chicago yesterday for Florida shipped their automobiles and took trains. The highways of Kentucky and Tennessee are coated with snow and ice this morning and maintenance crews, less familiar with such conditions than in states farther north, are doing an inadequate job of protecting grades and curves against skids.

Conditions may improve by tomorrow, but if you are driving south this winter as tens of thousands are, it is well to be forewarned. Consult your motor club or the Tribune public service travel bureau before departure.

Illinois Roads Better.

THE TRIBUNE roadster arrived here last night after thirteen hours of driving in covering the 475 miles from Chicago. As on a similar trip north five days ago, Illinois and Indiana roads, due to better winter maintenance, were easier traveling than Kentucky and Tennessee highways.

On U. S. 41 in Indiana the snow was plowed and cinders, sand, and salt scattered on hills and curves. On the same route in the two southern states the road was a toboggan slide and cars in the ditch were not infrequent.

Car Skids to Curb.

THE TRIBUNE roadster, trying to demonstrate exemplary driving, traveled much of the distance south from Evansville at 30 or 35 miles an hour. Descending a grade in Madisonville, Ky., I believe it was, the car was in second gear, crawling about 15 miles an hour. It was too fast.

The roadster hit smooth ice under loose snow, the compression from the motor slid the rear wheels. There was a turn at the bottom of the hill so the compression could not be released either with the clutch or the accelerator. The rear of the automobile whipped into a dizzy spin, ending fortunately by backing into a curb.

Tosses Child Four Floors to Safety as Fire Rages

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Michael Vega, 30 years old, tossed his 2 year old son, Daniel, out of a fourth story window safely into the arms of Harry Kamp, a neighbor, when fire spread today through the building. But he was persuaded not to attempt a similar feat with his wife Anna, 24, an expectant mother. She was carried down a fireman's ladder a few minutes later. Seventeen families safely left the building.

● This mother is proud of her little one. And with good reason, too. Isn't she cunning? Were she harassed regularly by bad colds, she probably would not be such an attractive little miss. But her mother knows what to do when baby gets a bad cold. She rubs on Penetro. Penetro, you know, is especially effective in treating children's colds because it breaks up stubborn congestion so often prevalent in colds of this type. Penetro is made with old-fashioned mutton suet and contains from 113% to 227% more medication than other leading cold salves on the market. That's why Penetro brings such prompt, dependable relief from children's colds, the colds of all the family. Stainless and snow-white. The 50c size of Penetro contains 3 times as much as the 25c size. The $1 size contains almost 8 times as much as the 25c size. At all druggists. Demand Penetro.... For free trial size of Penetro Salve write Penetro, Dept. 28, Memphis, Tenn.

PENETRO
THE SALVE WITH A BASE OF OLD FASHIONED MUTTON SUET

When your little one starts to sneeze and sniffle, use Penetro Drops. Famous for their "balanced medication." Penetro Nose Drops, 25c, 50c, and $1 bottles. Trial size 10c.

FRANK HENSHAW, OLDEST CHICAGO REALTY MAN, DIES

Veteran of 3 Land Booms; Resident 68 Years.

Funeral services for Frank A. Henshaw, the oldest real estate man in Chicago and one of the first presidents of the Chicago Real Estate board, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the chapel at 6453 Irving Park boulevard. Mr. Henshaw, who was 88 years old, died Saturday after an illness of two months. His home was 4165 Ellis avenue.

FRANK HENSHAW.

Mr. Henshaw was a veteran of three booms and depressions in Chicago real estate. He came here from Massachusetts in 1867 and was an active participant in the real estate operations which preceded the depression of 1873, following the great fire.

Knew South Side as Farm Area.

He dealt primarily in south side real estate, arriving in Chicago when most of the region along 79th street from Stony Island avenue to Ashland avenue consisted of farms and prairies, much of which area was under water in wet weather.

In an interview at his office, 25 North Dearborn street, two years ago he recalled that when he first arrived in Chicago there were about 50 houses in the region bounded by 59th, 65th, State and Halsted streets.

He subsequently participated in the land boom of 1890 and still was actively engaged in business during the period of high real estate prices, in 1925-'26.

Recalls Great Price Boom.

In the interview he recalled that property at the corners at 63d and Halsted streets which sold in 1879 for $8 to $10 a front foot were valued in 1926 at more than $10,000 a front foot.

After a brief service in the Irving Park Boulevard chapel, Mr. Henshaw's ashes will be sent to West Newton, Mass., where a niece lives. Services will be held there and his ashes will then be returned to Chicago for interment in Graceland cemetery.

GREEK PATRIARCH OF TURKISH SEE, PHOTIOS II., DIES

ISTANBUL, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Ecumenical patriarch Photios II. Maniatis, pope of Orthodox Eastern Christendom, died tonight after a long illness of tuberculosis and intestinal disorders. He was 62 years old.

His all-holiness, elected in 1929, had jurisdiction over Phanar, Golden Horn suburb of Istanbul. Only five sees in Turkey remained subject to the patriarch, along with four in the Italian Dodecanese, one in Prague for Czechoslovakia, one in Sydney for Australia, one in New York for North and South America, and others in Finland and Estonia.

The Turkish government desired to abolish the patriarchate, but was prevented by the treaty of Lausanne, by which all Greek Orthodox residents in Istanbul before Oct. 30, 1918, are exempt from expulsion, but all other Greeks in Turkey may be expelled. Since only Turkish subjects can be metropolitans in Turkey, the patriarchal episcopate must be recruited from the comparatively few Greek residents in Istanbul. Two years ago the patriarchate lost temporal powers over many schools and hospitals centering around Phanar through a decision of the Turkish government. The entire Greek church ranks third in Christendom.

MRS. MARGARET SCOTT PRALL, 87, DIES IN OAK PARK

Mrs. Margaret Scott Prall, 87 years old, widow of William Prall, a former secretary and treasurer of the Elgin Watch company, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Ware, 324 North Scoville avenue, Oak Park, where she was taken after becoming ill on a trip to California.

Mrs. Prall was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and came to Oak Park shortly after her marriage. Her home was in the suburb for 60 years and she was a charter member of the First Presbyterian church in Oak Park, and a member of the 19th Century club. In addition to Mrs. Ware, she is survived by four other daughters, Mrs. Winthrop K. Howe, Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Oliver Logan, Glendale, Cal.; Mrs. Albert W. Boyden, Sheffield, Ill., and Mrs. Irwin T. Dakin, St. Paul, Minn.

Funeral services will be held at the Ware residence at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in the Forest Home cemetery.

Robert P. M'Govern Dies Suddenly After Collapse

Robert P. McGovern, 41 years old, 2650 Greenleaf avenue, a mechanical engineer, died in his home yesterday from cerebral hemorrhage. McGovern, who served 18 months in the American expeditionary forces in France, collapsed in front of his home Saturday. He is survived by his widow and two children. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the chapel at 1353 Devon avenue and interment will be in Fulton, Ill., Wednesday.

John C. Bell, 74, Former Pa. Attorney General, Dies

FRANK GARDNER, CHICAGO TITLE OFFICIAL, DIES

Sergeant of Cavalry in Spanish War.

Frank Gleason Gardner, treasurer of the Chicago Title and Trust company, died early today in his home, 287 East Central avenue, Highland Park, where he had been ill of heart disease since Dec. 2. He was 68 years old.

FRANK G. GARDNER

Mr. Gardner, who traced his ancestry in this country to George Gardner, a resident of Rhode Island in 1650, was born in Penn Yan, N. Y., on July 7, 1867, the son of Peleg Gardner and Harriet Gleason Gardner. He was educated at the Genesee Wesleyan seminary, Lima, N. Y.; at the Cazenovia seminary, New York, and at the Cornell university law school, from which he graduated in 1891.

Veteran of Spanish War.

In the same year Mr. Gardner was admitted to the Illinois bar and began the practice of law with the firm of Runnells & Burry. On Sept. 1, 1893, he began work with the Chicago Title and Trust company. He took time out to serve in the Spanish-American war as a sergeant in troop F, First Illinois cavalary. Back with the title company, he became assistant trust officer in 1903 and was in 1913 treasurer.

Mr. Gardner was a member of the Chicago Bar association, the Society of Colonial Wars, the University club, Exmoor and Highland Park Country clubs, and the Cornell club of Chicago.

Married in 1899; Widow Survives.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Esther Bogue Gardner, whom he married April 18, 1899, and by two children, Dorothy and John Hoyt Gardner. They were all at his bedside when death came.

GIRL, 17, DYING OF AX WOUNDS; SISTER ACCUSED

Mount Vernon, Ill., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Margaret Cummins, 17 year old high school senior, lay near death in a hospital today of ax wounds received, State's Attorney George W. Howard Jr., said, during a quarrel with her sister, Mrs. Ruth Laird, 34, widow, over whether the two should attend church services.

The girl, suffering from exposure and a fractured skull, was found last night lying by the edge of a snow-blanketed highway a half mile southwest of the city limits by W. M. Mendenhall, a farmer.

Recovering consciousness for a brief period this morning, Miss Cummins told police, Howard said, her sister had hit her twice with the ax after she declined to accompany her to church.

The girl said she did not remember how she reached the highway, three-quarters of a mile from her home.

Mrs. Laird, arrested at her home, denied she had struck the girl.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Check It With Half-Way Measures!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold".

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is your answer to a cold.

It is a cold tablet, made expressly for the treatment of colds and not for all kinds of ailments.

It is internal in effect and it does four important things.

First, it opens the bowels, an important step in overcoming a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

These are the four effects a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get them all in the form of a single tablet.

Play safe—make sure! The moment a cold threatens, go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours, until relieved.

Prompt use of Bromo Quinine will often stop a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed of action you want.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. Ask for it with your mind made up that you're not going to accept a substitute.

LEIGH PUTMAN, LUMBER TRADE OFFICIAL, DIES

Leigh R. Putman, 60 years old, vice president and market editor of The American Builder, a lumber trade magazine published at 105 West Adams street, died suddenly in his home at 1014 Greenwood avenue, Evanston, yesterday from a heart attack. Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Fayetteville, Ark., his former home.

Mr. Putman had lived in Chicago for ten years, coming here from New Orleans, where he was trade promotion director for the Southern Pine association. During 1934 he was given leave of absence from The American Builder to act as director of the home modernization program for the federal housing administration in the northern Illinois district.

LEIGH R. PUTMAN.

Mr. Putman is survived by his widow, Helen, a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, and four sons, Reding, William, Randolph, and Albert.

Policeman Is Suspended Over Shooting of Woman

West Parks Policeman Elmer Cotey, 34 years old, 1829 North Austin avenue, was suspended yesterday pending an investigation of the accidental wounding Saturday night of Mrs. Adelaide O'Connor, 29 years old, 3249 Madison street, in a tavern at 222 South Western avenue. Mrs. O'Connor was wounded in her left arm by Cotey's revolver which was discharged when it dropped from its holster as he arose from a table. Cotey, a veteran of thirteen years on the force, is married and is the father of two children.

Betrothal Announced

Louise Conway Is Engaged to Gail Belden.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SEVERAL engagements of interest were announced over the week-end, among them those of Miss Eleanor Louise Kirkland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, to James Scott Kemper Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Kemper of Winnetka, and of Miss Louise Reynolds Conway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barret Conway of Winnetka, to Gail Belden.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirkland announced the engagement of their only daughter to young Mr. Kemper at a dinner party in their residence, 1320 State parkway, Saturday night. Miss Kirkland has had her lovely engagement ring for a week, so it required great effort on her part not to wear it to last week's many parties, but she and her fiancé wanted to surprise their friends. And surprise them they did, for, although every one knew Mr. Kemper was devoted to her, no rumors of their engagement had been circulated. No date has been set for the wedding, but the young couple does not plan to wait until he has finished his law course before they are married.

Miss Kirkland was one of last season's most attractive debutantes. She was presented to society at a tea-dance in September in Lake Forest. She went to Vassar for two years after being graduated from the Girls' Latin school, and this winter she is enrolled at the University of Chicago.

Young Mr. Kemper, who has a debutante sister, Rosemary, prepared for Yale at Lawrenceville. He was graduated from Yale last June and now is a student in the Harvard law school. Yesterday he was host at a winter sports party at the Glen View club.

Miss Conway a Chicagoan of Fourth Generation.

Miss Conway is a fourth generation Chicagoan. She is named for her mother's grandmother, the late Mrs. Hiram Reynolds, who came to Chicago in 1849. Miss Conway was presented to society at a reception and tea-dance given also for Miss Susan Miller, the William Millers' daughter, at the Indian Hill club in September, 1929.

Since graduating from the North Shore Country Day school and Wellesley college, Miss Conway has been one of the hocky enthusiasts who has kept up her game by playing on the north shore team. As a provisional member of the Chicago Junior league, she already has had a rôle in "The Rescue of St. Nick," the recent production of the league's Children's theater.

Mr. Belden is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Belden of St. Joseph, Mo. He has been in business in Chicago since graduating from the Harvard school of business administration, which he attended after receiving his degree from Northwestern university. He and Miss Conway plan to be married in June, and will make their home on the north shore.

Elizabeth Patterson to Wed J. H. S. Lee Jr.

Yesterday afternoon at a tea given at their home in Asbury avenue, Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Patterson announced the engagement of their daughter Elizabeth to J. H. Sheldon Lee Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. S. Lee of Sheridan road, Evanston. Miss Patterson is a graduate of Wellesley and is a member of the Evanston Junior league. Mr. Lee is a graduate of Williams and of the Northwestern university law school.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

JUDITH ANDERSON left the dinner table Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, was driven from Scott street to the stage entrance of the Erlanger theater, and when the curtain went up at 8:30 o'clock on the first act of "The Old Maid," was on the stage in the Godey's Lady Book bridal gown of Delia Lovell. It was no unusual feat for Miss Anderson, who seldom allows herself more than twenty minutes for make-up. This system—and a tale of a love affair in Budapest, her favorite of the cities of the world, nearly proved disastrous on a recent evening for both Miss Anderson and her co-star, Helen Menken.

Tardy—Correction.

"THE OLD MAID" was playing Youngstown, O., after its long New York run. That evening Miss Anderson and Miss Menken, who had rooms across from one another in the hotel, had dined together, and Miss Anderson began to speak of Budapest. The romantic tale she started upon was so engrossing that it was 8 o'clock before either of them realized it. Hastily donning coats over their negligee, they started for the theater two blocks away. The theater crowd was streaming in as they dashed up the alley to the stage entrance. Unfortunately, in their nervous haste, they were unable to find it, and went completely around the block in their search. A second time they sped past the theater crowd and down the alley, and again they failed to find the stage entrance. They found kitchens, back doors of shops, everything except the doorway they sought. Frantic, because it was nearly curtain time, they decided there was nothing for it but to pull up their coat collars and go backstage through the theater.

"Use the stage entrance," he answered in astonishment. They pushed past him into the line at the inner entrance, and the ticket man held out his hand.

"Miss Anderson and Miss Menken," they whispered in agony, hoping none of the crowd pushing through the doors heard or recognized them. "How do we get backstage?"

"So it is," said the ticket man peering under their hats. "Come with me." And he led them down the side alle, past the rapidly filling seats, to the stage entrance.

Five minutes later the curtain rose on the charming set of the 1830s and two serene ladies in billowing skirts and curled coiffures moving with dignity through the first steps of the drama.

IT was in a later scene at that evening's performance where the two women kiss one another goodnight, that Miss Anderson, thinking of the Budapest tale that so nearly caused a late curtain, whispered wickedly to Miss Menken:

"Wait until I tell you about Tasmania, darling."

IT seems there is a Father Goose book. Letters from readers point out [1] that their baby boy received a copy of Father Goose in 1893; [2] that they bought a copy for their daughter when she was 8 years old and recently bought another copy for her son, and [3] "Ex-Book Seller" points out that just because this department does not know about something is no sign it doesn't exist.

Good Morning!

I think you'll agree with me that it's Bebe Daniels' polished performance that raises "Music Is Magic" from the ranks of the mediocre. She has developed into SUCH a good comedienne, and, to be paradoxical, while she isn't the star—she is the star.

She burlesques a temperamental screen player no longer in her first youth, and when the film opens she is discovered on a personal appearance tour. On the same bill with her are Alice Faye and the comic tumblers Mitchell and Durante. . . . The tour is canceled and the lot land back in Hollywood, where Bebe is pretty catty for awhile—clinging to the idea that she looks as girlish as she ever did and should be cast in youthful rôles. Though devoted to her young "sister" whom she had brought out to live with her, she allows her jealousy to almost wreck the girl's romance. A tragic incident brings her to her senses. . . . And a general scramble brings everybody out on top.

Who is the "sister"? Now, my dears, you wouldn't want me to rob the picture of all its surprises, would you?

"Music Is Magic" has a regulation musical comedy "backstage" plot. It abounds in nutty action and dialog—considerable of which isn't very funny. But if you take it all with the casual good nature the producers hope you will, you'll probably admit the piece is far from being the worst movie you ever saw.

See you tomorrow.

U. of C. Digs Up Early Persian Kings' Records

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Dr. Erich Schmidt, field director of the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago who has been conducting excavations at Persepolis among the ruins of the palaces of the ancient Persian kings since last April, returned on the New York of the Hamburg-American line bringing news of an important discovery of eight stone tablets inscribed in cuneiform characters with the records of the Iranian kings.

Dr. Schmidt declined to go into details about the valuable find in the excavations, as he said it would have to be given out by the Oriental institute at Chicago. He said the tablets are about two feet three inches long and 15 inches wide and were buried at the corner of the palaces near the corner stone of the building.

The most important one is that dictated by Darius the Great, the founder of Persepolis, in 512, which describes the building of the great palace on the terrace reached by a grand gray marble staircase with other palaces.

Dr. Schmidt said the eight tablets are the most valuable find that has been made in Persepolis and will be exhibited at the Oriental institute.

The American Institute for Persian Art and Archæology is carrying on excavations in Luristan, Dr. Schmidt said, and adding to the discoveries of the relics brought to light from the days of the Iranian kings and much earlier periods.

Dr. Schmidt added that he expects to return to Persepolis in two months. There are 10 Americans working there on the excavations and about 250 natives are employed to do the digging.

Songs, Attire of Ukrainians Bright, Varied

The Ukrainian Chorus of Chicago, arrayed like the lilies of the field, appeared in the Chicago Woman's club theater yesterday afternoon in a program whose songs came near matching in color and variety the costumes in which they were sung. George Benetsky is in charge of this prize winning a cappella chorus, and led his men and women in safety through an hour and a half of music that included several things in English as well as Ukrainian sacred and secular songs.

It was interesting in the English group to notice how well the problem of diction had been solved—it must have been a serious problem in a chorus in which many do not speak the language as a primary tongue. The words are quite understandable, and would be still more so, if two or three of the unfortunate arrangements used yesterday were dropped in favor of simpler ones.

This chorus does not need tricky arrangements. It has a good range of tone quality, with great sensuous beauty in the blend of its voices and many opportunities for strong and simple contrasts between the men and women. The stimulating out-of-doors quality in the section devoted to Ukrainian secular songs was a result of the sturdy rhythms of the songs themselves and the skilful way the director worked them into his pattern.

The practice of explaining the content of a song in detail in the program deserves commendation and imitation. It might profitably be used even when the languages are German, French, and Italian. The assumption that every concert-goer understands these three tongues perfectly is one of doubtful truth, to say the least.—E. B.

Gala Breakfast Is Good Start for New Year

"Modern Meat Lore," a booklet containing the most up-to-date methods of meat cookery, and many tasty and economical dishes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, for 20 cents. By mail, 23 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Nothing in all this winter world is quiet as pleasant as the New Year breakfast — leisurely, ample, indulgent! Here's the time to sit, with the New Year spread brightly before us, and tempt ourselves with delicacies which, somehow, we never took time to enjoy in the hurried days of 1935. Time, too, to take stock of our breakfast menus for the coming year and to add some newer, brighter leaves to our cookbooks.

New Year's breakfast, first of all, must be irrepressibly gay. No formal service, no somber linen! Bring out the jolliest tablecloth you have—a checkered one, a striped one, a gay print of some kind! Use colored dishes, pottery, or glass. Heap the jam pots to the brim. Keep the coffee steaming in great plenty. Serve a few delectable dishes and keep hot breads going around.

The center attraction of the New Year breakfast and for dozens of 1936 breakfasts to follow is the poached egg croustade. It's not simply a poached egg, unadorned. It's a poached egg par excellence, swimming in a cheese sauce which would do credit to the finest chef who ever lived. It's a dish as remarkable for its substantial goodness as it is for its festive appearance. And the preparation thereof is simple, like this.

Make croustades from day old bread, cutting slices 1½ inches thick, trimming away the crusts and scooping out the center of each. Then they're fried in deep fat until golden brown. Drain these on unglazed paper. Poach as many eggs as you have croustades and place one in the center of each brown basket. Prepare the cheese sauce by slowly melting a half pound of American cheese in the top of a double boiler and, when melted, gradually stirring in one-third cup evaporated milk. Season to taste and pour over the poached eggs.

With this festive breakfast dish serve old fashioned graham gems, baking powder biscuits, muffins, or golden popovers. Plum jelly, marmalade, or grape butter will add still further gayety, and coffee, clear and steaming, should sing a happy accompaniment.

Assert Rise in Jobs and Knitting Fad Bring Library Slump

The American Library association, which will open a three day conference in the Drake hotel today, said in a report last night that circulation of books in America during 1935 declined from 3 to 5 per cent. The drop was attributed to increased employment limiting spare time of readers, the curtailment of library budgets and the knitting fad by women.

While non-fiction reading increased during the year fiction and works on arts, biography and travel dropped, the report said. The association said war's influence brought heavy demands for books on peace, disarmament, Ethiopia, China, and Japan.

Dashing Suits Help You Wait for Spring Styles

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Finding clothes to wear during these in-between days sometimes proves a serious problem.

This year you'll slip into the suits if you know and appreciate what understanding clothes creators have presented for just such critical times. These suits are knockouts! Just what any weary clothes collector needs for a decided change. We found one notable collection, and every suit in the lot is tagged with mercifully low price marks.

They are slim, sleek, and as trim as a pencil, dashing, very, very young and snappy. They are impeccably tailored with all the newest details such as straight backs as first favorites, short jackets that fit more smoothly than ever, perky double pockets, and either two or one button closings. The skirts are short, skimpy as to yardage, and made with plaits where the plaits do the most good.

All shades of gray are the best buys, from pale English flannel gray, banker's gray, to dark stone gray and stunning oxford gray. Chalk line woolens are extremely smart both in vertical lines and in checks. Typical men's suitings in plaids and blurred checks make still other swanky twosomes. Colored two piece suits for startling color contrast are abundant and come in the same classically tailored silhouettes as the grays and tans.

Rust browns to wear with brown fur coats, aquamarine blue and coral red, and some soft beige tones are other colors. Then there is a jade green, good to wear with brown or gray fur coats. If you're slightly weary of your fur coat and dress combine, try these smart new suits for a big change. They're slick pickups for that disgruntled feeling that arrives every year at this time.

New Breakfast for the New Year

Here's a center attraction for the successful New Year's breakfast—the poached egg croustade—that should be equally sought after for the 1936 Sunday breakfasts to come.

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently by having been thrown from her horse, Siwash. She was taking an early morning ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, teacher and student of criminology, helps her friend, Inspector Piper, investigate. They suspect murder. Miss Withers finds a briar pipe on the spot where the dead girl had lain. Mrs. Maude Thwaite and her husband, Rufus, are owners of the stable where Siwash is kept, and Latigo Wells manager. Maude Thwaite desired to own Siwash. At Violet Feverel's apartment Miss Withers and Piper overtake Violet's half-sister, Barbara Foley, about to elope with Eddie Fry, Violet's boy friend and a race track gambler. Violet was divorced from Don Gregg, and had had him put in alimony jail, Thomas, who with his wife, Mattie, are old retainers of Don's father, Pat Gregg, comes in search of Violet. Old Mr. Gregg thinks he is going to die. Thomas hints at foul play. Don Gregg had been released from alimony jail on a fake writ before his wife's death, though he has an alibi and is not held. The autopsy of Dr. Bloom, medical examiner, reveals Violet Feverel was killed by a BB bullet which hit her throat. An expert tells Miss Withers that the "murder" pipe's owner had false teeth. She buys apples with which she hopes to find who among the suspects has false teeth. Piper and Miss Withers call at the Gregg home. Pat Gregg hints there may be a second murder after the big race on Saturday at Beaulah Park. Abe Thomas admits it was he who got Don out of jail. Latigo Wells is fired from Thwaites. The day of the race arrives. Miss Withers and Piper and all the suspects attend. Miss Withers wins on Wallaby, a long shot. She knew he had been Violet Feverel's selection. After the race Miss Withers and Piper head for the Gregg home, driven there by Capt. Tinker of the local police. Pat Gregg had died—of a stroke, the local doctor insists. Abe Thomas had attended the race. Miss Withers thinks the stroke might have been artificially induced. She and Piper return late that night to the Gregg place, and as they near it notice a blaze.

INSTALMENT XLIII.

ORDEAL BY FIRE.

They got out of the car and went swiftly up the hill. The light still flickered, tiny yet clear. As they came closer they could see that now and again a dark figure moved between them and the light.

They wormed their way closer, slipping from shrub to shrub in the garden. Still the dark figure remained dim and mysterious. At times it seemed to be performing a sort of weird dance around the growing flames.

"Pouring on kerosene!" explained Piper, barely moving his lips. "Good Lord, he's trying to burn down the place and everybody in it."

The red light grew higher, red flames licking along the wooden siding, rising above a window frame. . . . The window was open, and inside a flaring curtain was licked up in an instant.

"He's got an ax!" gasped Piper. "Must be mad as a hoot owl!"

But the mysterious figure was crouching beneath the window, crying out in a high pitched, hysterical voice, "Fire! Fire! Fire!"

Inside the house a woman screamed horribly. The inspector rose to his feet and went forward on tiptoe, Miss Withers still close at his heels. They were out in the open now, but the man who cried "fire" had no eyes for them.

He stood near a side doorway which opened out into the garden by a stone step, and the ax was upraised. Suddenly a woman, still screaming, burst from the house. It was Mattie Thomas, in spite of her fat body sprinting like a deer. She missed the step, landed sprawling in the grass, and scuttled, still howling, into the shrubbery.

The man with the ax never moved. There was light enough from the burning house so that Miss Withers could see a man inside the bedroom, a man who struggled into his trousers and clutched frantically at household treasures on bureau and wall. It was Abe Thomas.

"Now!" cried the school teacher, and let go the inspector. He made one magnificent plunge and caught the shadowy figure in a flying tackle. The two men went down in a heap together, the ax flying harmlessly to one side.

To Miss Withers' relief she saw that only the inspector got up. He was holding his antagonist helpless with a neat armlock.

Miss Withers was not too surprised to see that it was young Don Gregg who writhed beneath the inspector's grasp.

It was at this moment that Abe Thomas, his arms full of miscellaneous objects, burst out of the doorway. He stopped short, dropping boxes and clothes. "What—what——" That was all he could say.

Don Gregg was sobbing—great, dry, gasping sobs. "Let me up!" he begged. "Let me go!" His face was horrible in the red glare.

"Get the bracelets out of my hip pocket, will you, Hildegarde?" said the inspector. "I've got my hands full."

She looked down at Don Gregg sympathetically. "You wanted to kill him, didn't you?"

Gregg nodded wildly. "I was going to kill him and then throw the body inside the house and let it burn. . . ."

Miss Withers found the handcuffs. "On his wrists, Hildegarde!" cried the inspector.

But she still hesitated. Abe Thomas was making ineffectual efforts at beating down the flames, but she called him. "Help me, will you?" she said.

Thomas came toward her, still too dazed by sleep and terror to speak articulately. "Wha——" he began. "Wha——"

"Hold his wrists so I can slip these handcuffs on," suggested Miss Withers. Thomas grasped Don Gregg's hands, held them up. . . .

Then Thomas squealed shrilly as the school teacher quietly snapped the cuffs across his own wrists, and stepped back.

"You can let your prisoner up, Oscar," she said calmly. "Relax," she told the young man. "He murdered your father, but the law will take care of him for you in due time."

Abe Thomas chose that moment to strike down at the inspector's head with the heavy manacles, but it was a dodge that Oscar Piper had met too many times during the course of his twenty-six years on the force. He dropped the surprised Don Gregg, ducked neatly to one side, and drove his knee into his assailant's groin with disastrous results for the old family retainer. Abe Thomas lay down on the grass and moaned. It was all over.

Young Gregg looked wistfully toward the ax. "Ah—ah!" said Miss Withers. "Let him stay there—it's more important to put out the fire."

The blaze was subdued more easily than Mattie Thomas. The fat cook came out of the bushes to fling herself upon her manacled and helpless husband with moist protestations of eternal devotion. When the writhing captive succeeded in kicking her off, she attempted valiantly to assail the inspector. But finally she, too, was put under control.

A very chastened Don Gregg knelt on the grass. "I must have gone crazy," he said slowly. "But it seemed the only way. I didn't dare come to you—I was afraid I'd go back behind the bars if I admitted what I'd have to admit."

"So you thought of this gentle method of righting the scales of justice?" Miss Withers asked.

He nodded. "I only had the kerosene from a couple of old lamps," he admitted. "It wasn't much of a bonfire."

The inspector rubbed his burnt and blackened palms. "It was enough!" he decided. Then he turned upon Miss Withers, who looked in the pale moonlight more like a scarecrow than the figure of avenging righteousness that she felt. "Hildegarde, don't you think that the time has come when you could safely take an old friend into your confidence and tell him what in the merry hell all this is about?"

The school teacher pointed down toward Abe Thomas, whose face was a pale mask of reptilian hatred. "You've got your murderer in handcuffs," she said calmly. "What more do you want?"

"Sometime—at your convenience—I'd like to know just how we solved this mystery," the inspector said wistfully.

Inspector Oscar Piper came out of the Duke county jail and took a deep breath of the moist air of early morning. It was Sunday again, and just a week since at this same hour a doomed girl had gone galloping through Central park to her appointment. Seven days from murder to arrest—that wasn't so bad—thought the inspector. Nor was he dissatisfied with the result of his long and amicable argument with Capt. Tinker.

He walked down the stone steps of the jail and along the sidewalk toward where an angular spinster awaited him in the front seat of a borrowed roadster. He stopped, and his feeling of warm satisfaction left him.

Before he could speak Miss Hildegarde Withers greeted him. "At last, Oscar! What was the matter; couldn't the sheriff find his keys?"

Louise Conway Is Engaged to Gail Belden.

of Orrington avenue, Evanston, today are announcing the engagement of their daughter Louise Bigelow Whipple to John Stuart Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McDowell Patterson of Waban, Mass. Miss Whipple was graduated from Wellesley last June, and now is teaching at the Smith college day school. Mr. Patterson is a graduate of Connecticut Wesleyan college and is studying for a doctor's degree in chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dinner-Dance and Ball for Debutantes Tonight.

A dinner-dance and a ball will end today's activities for the debutantes and their beaux. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan will be host and hostess at the ball at the Blackstone for their daughters, Miss Shirley and Miss Loraine Logan, whose formal presentation to society took place last month at a tea at home; and Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Orr will entertain at a dinner-dance at the Casino for his sister Miss Alice Orr, debutante daughter of Mrs. Arthur Orr of St. Charles.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan and their daughters, who are two of the prettiest and most popular debutantes of the winter, will receive their guests after 11 o'clock at the Blackstone. Many of them will come from the Orr dinner-dance. Mrs. Montgomery Orr is not much past debutante age herself, for she became a bride only last January. She is the former Louise McCormick of Baltimore, and, since she is tall, slim, blonde, and exceedingly pretty, it is safe to say that she will be rushed as much as any debutante at the parties. Her sister-in-law is a student at Bryn Mawr, having finished at the Shipley school last year. Miss Alice's older sister, "Mimi" Orr, made her debut last year. Miss Mimi Orr at present is in Manila on her way around the world.

Logans' Party Among Largest of Season.

The Logans' party will be one of the largest of the season, for they have not limited the invitations to the debutantes, but have invited a group of young marrieds, some of their own friends, and a few of the friends of the debutantes' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Granger Logan. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Logan will receive with their son and daughter-in-law and their granddaughters.

Miss Shirley and Miss Loraine will dine at the Casino before going on to their party at the Blackstone. Several of the Winnetka debutantes and their beaux will dine as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Magnus in their residence on Hill road in Winnetka before coming in town to the ball. Mr. and Mrs. Magnus are entertaining for four of the season's debutantes, the Misses Rosemary Kemper, Evelyn Shuman, Frances Price, and Katherine Bulger.

Baron and Baroness Beck will give a dinner at the Drake for some of the young marrieds who are going to the Logan ball.

Miss Swift and Miss Baum to Give Dinner for Rowans.

Miss Marie Swift and Miss "Brownie Bess" Baum are entertaining at dinner tonight for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rowan, who have just returned to Chicago from their wedding trip. Miss Swift and Miss Baum are giving the party in the residence of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift, in Astor street. Mrs. Rowan is the former Lydia Swift, a cousin of Miss Marie Swift. Miss Baum and her parents, the Frank E. Baums, are at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

There are several luncheons planned for the debutantes today. In Chicago Mrs. Lincoln S. Harris is giving a party for her debutante sister-in-law, Miss Valeria Harris, in the young Harrises' apartment in Commonwealth avenue. Out in the country Miss Virginia Winston and Mrs. Frederic Burnham will be luncheon hostesses at the Indian Hill club. Miss Winston is entertaining for Miss Patricia and Miss Marjorie Kelly and has invited about twenty of their friends, and Mrs. Burnham is entertaining for her debutante niece, Miss Anne Burnham.

Dignity and Slender Lines

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Dignity and slenderizing lines are combined in this frock designed especially for the mature figure. Its simple cut makes model No. 2803 suitable for the amateur seamstress to create. Soft lapels disguise excess weight at the bustline. Straight seams and graceful fulness give distinction to the skirt, and the belt is wisely styled in the back only, allowing a flattering, unbroken line in the front of the dress. A crêpe vestee is a chic addition to the bodice. One may have her choice of long or short sleeves.

Lightweight woolen is a practical suggestion as to fabric, for it is comfortable under winter coats and perfect for spring days when one does not desire an outer wrap. A tweed mixture makes up attractively.

Men's Opinion of Beauty Is Emotional One

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Lovely to look at and easy to lead!"

The caption caught our eye recently. Which reminded us about a girl whom the girls rate as good looking, but for whom the young men's enthusiasm falls flat somehow.

We wonder if men don't see beauty with emotions more than with their eyes. You know how it is. We women will be madly enthusiastic about a certain person of our sex who seems to us, at least, to have everything. Our men folks will dismiss us bruskly with: "If you think she's good looking you're crazy!"

We women, it is said, are much greater admirers of smartness in women than is the other sex. Great chic and smartness, we mean! Of course, every man likes and expects the ordinary good grooming. But we're talking of that woman about whom we rave as a perfect knockout pictorially. We say that she knows clothes right down to the ground, that she's stuning, and so on.

Yet it is rumored that men may admire, in a long distance sort of way, the gorgeous dressmaker's and beauty salon's dummy, but so far as they're concerned she can stay right across the room from them. She touches the eyes but not the emotions. Then there comes along one who isn't quite so perfect, and away she goes flying to the dance floor with half a dozen men saying: "Mine's next dance!"

We gather that the perfect one leaves them just a little cold, when what they crave is a little warmth. So, we say, be lovely to look at but easy to lead. That goes for dancing, naturally, but for conversation, too, which means not being too opinionated, too argumentative. Your manner to a man, in other words, constitutes a large part of his appreciation of your beauty. A free and ready smile has that warming effect, and it is a beauty asset. A certain soft light in the eye makes your eyes, to him, appear beautiful, although you and your own looking glass may have a contrary opinion.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

"What," asked a pal of ours the other day," is the greasiest lipstick you know of?"

We didn't need long to think up this one. Our pet, if you're looking for an honest to goodness greasy lipstick, is a French one [recently reduced in price, thank heaven] that is smooth and rich and unbelievably creamy. The worst thing we've ever heard said about it is that it's too greasy. It seems that's a drawback if you go about kissing people. At least so we've been told.

At any rate, it's a very moist lipstick—and yet it's highly "indelible" as lipsticks go. The shades—five, if we remember correctly—are all lovely and they don't play tricks as the hours wear on. We must admit that the very moistness of this French stick makes it rather easy to use too much so that it sometimes smears a little, but as you get the hang of it this is easily overcome.

At one time not too long ago these lipsticks were expensive; even then we thought they were worth the price, not only because they were so greasy and so good but because they were so plump. They're still the same size—and one stick lasts an unbelievably long time.

This stick is admirable for winter, we think, because of its creaminess. We recommend it without hesitation to those of you who find your usual lipstick favorite not quite moist enough when the wind is high—with the sad result that your lips are dry and torn. If, like the friend who queried us, no lipstick can be too greasy for you these days, you should give it a trial. ELEANOR NANGLE.

According to CULBERTSON

REBIDS BY THE OPENING BIDDER.

The one-over-one response is forcing for one round of the bidding. Hence, if your partner has bid, for example, one heart over your opening one diamond bid, you must not pass. If you had a bare opening bid and no other suit that now can be shown at the level of one [in this case, spades], bid one no trump.

With a rebiddable suit, you always should rebid your suit if it is six cards long or longer. If it is only five cards long, you should rebid it only when your hand contains a singleton, or when you have some added honor strength.

Examples: You have bid one diamond; your partner has responded with one heart. Your proper rebid is:

One No Trump	One Spade
♠Q 8 6	♠K Q 7 4
♥5 2	♥8 2
♦A K 8 4 2	♦A Q J 6 3
♣Q 10 5	♣4 2
A rebiddable suit, but a minimum in honor tricks.	A minimum, but spades can be bid at the one level.
Two Diamonds	Two Clubs
♠8 6 2	♠8 6
♥K 5	♥9 3
♦K J 10 9 4	♦A K 7 5 2
♣A K 7	♣A Q 7 4
A rebiddable suit and more than minimum strength.	Three and one-half honor tricks and a second biddable suit.

Weak Overcalls Help Opponents.

Even if weak overcalls are not doubled and severely penalized, they may be used as stepping stones for the opponents' slam bidding.

North, dealer.

	NORTH ♠A Q J 7 5 ♥K 8 ♦10 5 3 ♣A Q 5
WEST ♠6 2 ♥Q J 9 5 4 3 ♦J 6 4 ♣J 8		EAST ♠10 3 ♥A 7 2 ♦K Q 9 7 2 ♣10 9 3
	SOUTH ♠K 9 8 4 ♥10 6 ♦A 8 ♣K 7 6 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 diam.	2 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	5 diam.	Pass
6 spades [final bid]

Obviously, on the combined North-South holding, twelve tricks are a lay-down; South's two long clubs provide discards for North's hearts and only one diamond must be lost.

But, without East's two diamond overcall, the slam would be difficult to reach. The bidding probably would go as follows:

North	South
1 spade	2 clubs
2 spades	4 spades

At this point, North probably would pass, but even if he should bid five clubs, South would have to be pretty optimistic to bid five diamonds after the strong bidding he already has given. The contract might well rest at five spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: I was criticized for bidding one spade, vulnerable, in fourth position with the following hand: ♠K J 9 8 5 3, ♥A Q 7 4, ♦5 3, ♣4. Was this a bad bid?

Answer: No. With both major suits, and good distribution, the hand should be opened.

Tomorrow's Hand

	NORTH ♠6 4 ♥10 9 4 3 ♦K 8 4 ♣K J 6 4
WEST ♠A 10 8 5 2 ♥A 8 2 ♦Q 7 3 ♣8 5		EAST ♠Q J 7 ♥7 5 ♦9 6 5 2 ♣10 9 3 2
	SOUTH ♠K 9 3 ♥K Q J 6 ♦A J 10 ♣A Q 7

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's article.

Monday is Student day in Ely Culbertson's column. Write your bridge troubles and questions to him, care of The Tribune. Remember to inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Don't Build Up Father as Ogre to His Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

You may—or may not—have read yesterday's [Sunday's] article: For Fathers Only. In case you didn't, let me say that it was an appeal to fathers to take a real part in their children's lives and not be just the provider. And I should have added, refuse to be made the disciplinarian—the family policeman.

After asking father to give the children a new deal in 1936 by giving them more of himself, I should go on and ask mother to give father a new deal with the children.

There's many a woman who does nothing to "build up" father with the children. In fact, there's many a woman who directly or indirectly depreciates her husband in his capacity as father. That some do it unintentionally because they're the managing or bossy kind—that some do it to give vent to a latent antagonism—isn't the point just now. The point is that many a woman instead of "building up" her husband with the children, pulls him down.

Remarks such as "I'll tell daddy when he comes home"—making him the family ogre—do this. Criticizing him to other grownups in the presence of the children does it.

There are many ways, often thoughtless, in which a woman keeps the children and their father apart.

Start the New Year by doing your part to bring the children and their father closer together—whether the children are little and he could learn to share the care of them, or older and he could learn to understand them and be friends with them.

Finds Personal Likes, Dislikes Affect Success

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

The first question to consider in dealing with another person is, "Does he like or dislike me?" It may sound strange that if I approach some one with a business proposition or present a plan for doing something I am interested in, my success depends on my personality rather than on the merits of the idea itself. Any one of us may have had this experience and, looking back, we will find many of our failures explained through this fact.

CLIVE BROOK.

A branch manager of a concern was moved to another city but could not take his private secretary. She had been with him for several years and filled the position with skill and understanding, but most of all he valued her loyalty.

His successor did not find the young woman satisfactory. The faults he attributed to her were, of course, those he himself possessed and naturally their teamwork was poor. The result was that she obtained a transfer to another position but again she failed to give satisfaction. After another move she became her old self.

Her protruding chin indicated a certain slowness in making decisions but, at the same time, an inclination to stay with a job until finished. Her pointed nose tip denoted a searching attention to details and her straight forehead a logical way of thinking things out.

These traits fitted in with the tactics of a boss who would be anxious to go ahead without sufficiently investigating minor points of a situation. The first man she worked under and the last one both were of this type.

The face of Clive Brook, the movie actor, shows the strength of character that goes with the protruding chin, the well protected eyes and the long upper lip. The lower part of the nose is somewhat fleshy, which gives the warmth of feelings to a personality that would otherwise be too austere. His moderately backward sloping forehead with pronounced bulges on the level of the eyebrows denotes quick and practical judgment, while the thin red parts of the lips signify emotional restraint.

Asserts China Can Teach U.S. About Christ

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Representative students from hundreds of campuses of the United States and Canada this afternoon were given a pre-view of a still distant united Christian church described as now beginning to emerge in college and university classrooms in nearly every nation.

Today's session of the 12th quadrennial convention of the Student Volunteer movement was devoted to the World Student Christian federation, with Francis Miller of New York, its head, the chief speaker. He told how the new universal church now being born will override all sectarian as well as racial and nationalistic considerations and that "foreign missions," as such, will be replaced by interchange among various races and nationalities, of instruction and experience; that "pagan America" needs oriental Christian evangelists as much as pagan China needs American aid.

The new church, however, is to begin its "missionary" work on the local college campus by making evangelism "intellectually respectable," according to A. Roland Elliott of New York, head of the student division of the Y. M. C. A., whose address preceded Dr. Miller's.

Dr. Elliott, pointing to this localized need, cited "religious illiteracy of the American college campus" as the starting point of the world-wide quest, adding that gambling during the recent football season has every mark of being a first class national scandal. Liquor in football stadiums, he said, is another fact local missionaries must answer for.

Girl of Teen Age Entitled to Go Out with Several Beaux

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Joe B. is 20 and in love with a 16 year old girl. He reports that she has been his steady pal for nearly two years. Up until the last few weeks Joe seemed to be sufficient company for the girl's time. Then, she served notice on the young man that she would like to step out with other boys. She'd like to get around to clubs and places the other girls talk about attending. She protests, however, that this isn't going to make any difference in her feeling for Joe and she'd like him to keep on going out with her when he could. Joe refuses.

I suppose you're right, Joe. But the fact remains that the girl is only 16 and accepted you as sole monopolizer of her time when she was 14. Sixteen is not quite ripe enough an age for a lifelong partnership decision. You haven't given her a chance to prove how much better a man you are than the others, Joe.

I'd suggest that you give her the requested leave. You keep out of the picture entirely for a time and let the girl come to her own decision. Since the girl is restless, she'd better be given free scope, or you'll only quarrel and, perhaps, terminate the friendship.

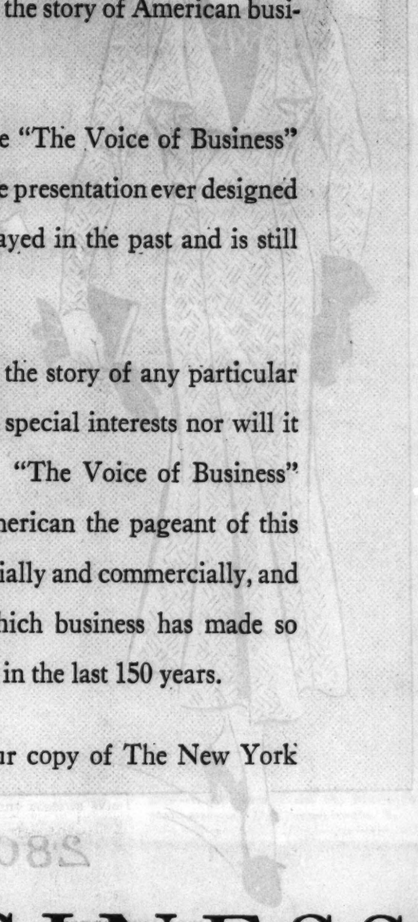
Business Speaks Out

American business has a story to tell . . . a story vibrant with enterprise, achievement and solid growth. Business has been silent too long regarding the many accomplishments of the American system, the high standards of living it has made possible, the national wealth it has created, the many comforts and conveniences it has provided.

Now business will speak out. It has a message for every American . . . for every worker, homeowner, stockholder, taxpayer. Through its leaders and spokesmen, business will state its views on employment, recovery programs, legislation and the distribution of wealth; on our national income and where it goes; on our national debt, on taxes, tariffs and our currency.

Lest, in the prolonged period of silence, America forgets, The New York Sun will publish its "Voice of Business" issue Saturday, January 4, 1936. Page after page of striking articles and striking illustrations will tell vividly the story of American business, industry and commerce.



It is the purpose of The Sun to make "The Voice of Business" the most complete and comprehensive presentation ever designed to show the part that industry has played in the past and is still playing in the American scene.

"The Voice of Business" will not be the story of any particular industry. It will not be the story of special interests nor will it be political or partisan in any sense. "The Voice of Business" will unfold for the eyes of every American the pageant of this nation's mighty development, industrially and commercially, and tell the story of the system under which business has made so great a success for the common good in the last 150 years.

HAWKS BEAT RANGERS, 3 TO 1; TIE FOR LEAD

GRAYSON, STAR STANFORD BACK, ILL WITH COLD

Doctor Has Hopes for Wednesday.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—A severe cold and sore throat sent Bobby Grayson, full back, to bed as Stanford drilled in the rain today for the New Year's day Rose Bowl game with Southern Methodist.

Dr. Fritz Roth of the Stanford medical staf said he was "inclined to believe" Grayson would recover in time for the contest.

Two years ago, when Stanford met Columbia university, Grayson was stricken with a chest cold, but recovered and played a bang-up game.

Todd May Get Job.

Ray Todd, 190 pound senior, is the second string full back. Grayson is the sparkplug of the Indians' attack and without him the running game of the Palo Alto eleven would be seriously crippled.

Stanford, carrying a weight advantage of 10 pounds to the man, will match power and a brilliant defense against S. M. U. deception and scoring dynamite.

Coach Matty Bell's Texas Mustangs have rolled up 290 points in twelve games to overshadow the 114 counted by Coach Tiny Thornhill's Cardinals in eight encounters. But Stanford has permitted the opposition only two touchdowns all season against five yielded by the unbeaten Southtwestern champions.

Here's How It Goes.

On the offensive side—

The invading Texans rushed 2,494 yards and passed for 1,219 more. Stanford drove 1,729 yards; passed for 561; S. M. U. average, 309 yards a game; Stanford, 286. Even with the dynamic Bobby Grayson, Stanford's rushing average was only about eight yards a game more than the Mustangs'—216.1 to 207.8.

But the defensive side—

Southern Methodist's opponents rolled up 1,149 yards from scrimmage and 1,110 from passes. Stanford's opponents made only 702 yards by rushing and 342 by aerials. This gives Stanford the defensive edge by an average of 130.5 yards to 188.2.

Passes vs. Plunges.

Stanford encountered no rival who knew the finer points of passing as exhibited by Southwestern conference elevens. But by the same measure, it was safe to assume that the Mustangs met no back with the power and speed of Grayson.

Significant was the fact that the Mustangs, even with Maurice Orr's educated toe, seldom needed field goal kicking for victory, whereas Stanford's Monk Moscrip won three games by field goals.

The probable starting lineups:

SOUTHERN METHODIST.		STANFORD.
Wt.			Wt.
170	Tipton	L. E. Moscrip	189
210	Spain	L. T. Reynolds	225
185	Wetzel	L. G. Adams	197

CATHOLIC U. AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Perspiring in 75 degree weather, the Catholic university football squad arrived this afternoon to complete training for its Orange Bowl game with Mississippi here Wednesday.

Coach Arthur J. [Dutch] Bergman welcomed the opportunity for outdoor practice, since snowbound Washington has prevented any contact work for five days, but feared the change in climate might slow the team somewhat.

Two Workouts Today.

The Washington party, including 31 players and about 50 fans, was greeted by city and Orange Bowl officials.

The University of Mississippi team is due to arrive tomorrow afternoon.

WATER IN SUGAR BOWL

New Orleans, La., Dec. 29.—(AP)—New Orleans' Sugar bowl sports program fell victim to the weather again today, cold blasts from the north which followed a torrential rain, causing postponement of the open golf tournament and the regatta.

The six event carnival, which was to have been inaugurated yesterday with a track and field meet at Loyola university's stadium, will be crowded into a seven day period, due to the postponements.

Two and one-half inches of rain which fell during the last twenty-four hours submerged the stadium track and converted the city park golf course into a pond.

The regatta, scheduled under the auspices of the Southern Yacht club, was set over until Sunday after the first event when cold weather interfered with handling of the boats.

The track and field meet will be held tomorrow afternoon.

The postponed regatta next Sunday will conclude the program.

Tribune Makes Gold Fob Prizes Retroactive.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has decided to make a retroactive award to those football players of 1930 and 1931 who were voted by teammates to have been of greatest value to their respective elevens. They will receive white gold footballs, watch fob size, similar to those given players now and since 1932.

Originally in choosing winners of the Silver Football, awarded annually to the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team for the season, members of the board of award picked from an open field with no restrictions. This frequently led to votes for two or more players from the same eleven.

Rules Changed in 1930.

In 1930 terms of the award were changed so that members of each Big Ten eleven chose their own most valuable player. This automatically made him a candidate for the Silver Football, and only those ten players so chosen were eligible for votes.

In 1932 the prizes were broadened so the winner of the Silver Football and each of the other nine candidates received a supplementary prize of a white gold watch fob football. Candidates of 1930 and 1931 had not received their fobs.

Players Ask to Buy Fobs.

Players evidently value these tokens of their football prowess more highly than we of the contest realized. After several from the teams of 1930 and 1931 had written asking permission to obtain from the jeweler these fobs at their own expense it was decided THE TRIBUNE would make this retroactive award, now announced, providing white gold footballs for the two years they had not been given.

Wally Knudson, full back, Chicago.
Stan Bodman, tackle, Illinois.
Joe Zeller, guard, Indiana.
Oliver Sansen, back, Iowa.
Jack Wheeler, back, Michigan.
Clarence Munn, guard, Minnesota.
Bob Clark, center, Northwestern.
Wesley Fesler, end, Ohio State [winner Silver Football].
George Stears, guard, Purdue.
William Lusby, back, Wisconsin.

1931.

Sam Horwitz, guard, Chicago.
Fred Frink, end, Illinois.
Joe Zeller, guard, Indiana.
Oliver Sansen, back, Iowa.
Bill Hewitt, back, Michigan.
Clarence Munn, guard, Minnesota [winner Silver Football].
Paul Engebretsen, guard, Northwestern.
Robert Haubrich, tackle, Ohio State.
Jim Purvis, back, Purdue.
Harold Smith, tackle, Wisconsin.

1935.

Jay Berwanger, back, Chicago [winner Silver Football].
Eddie Gryboski, guard, Illinois.
Wendel Walker, back, Indiana.
Dick Crayne, back, Iowa.
Bill Benner, back, Michigan.
Babe LeVoir, back, Minnesota.
Wally Cruice, back, Northwestern.
Gomer Jones, center, Ohio State.
Frank Loebs, end, Purdue.
Eddie Jankowski, back, Wisconsin.

MISS HOLLINGER WINS U. S. GIRLS' NET TITLE AGAIN

The two singles finalists paired to capture the doubles championship from Polly Morrill of Dedham, Mass., and Hope Knowles of Philadelphia. The score was 6-8, 6-4, 6-3.

COLD WEATHER, BUT IT'S A HOT RACE

Field in 220 yard dash at Catholic Youth organization skating Derby yesterday rounds turn on Garfield park lagoon. The event was won by Bernard Cannatta of the Norwegian-American Athletic association in 19¾ seconds. The C. Y. O. Skating club yesterday scored 440 points to win the first open skating Derby conducted by the Catholic Youth Organization, at Garfield park.

The Northwest Skating club was second with 220 points. Third was the Norwegian-American Athletic association with 160, and fourth place went to the Olympic Skating club, with 120.

Miss Du Bois, Kucera Star.

Outstanding individual performers were Elizabeth Du Bois and Al Kucera, two of the greatest skaters in the central states. Miss Du Bois, representing the Olympic S. C., won two first places to take the individual trophy in the woman's division, while Kucera duplicated the feat in the men's division.

Freisinger Shows Speed.

Just One Week Left to Enter Skate Derbies

This is the last week during which entries will be accepted for the Silver Skates Derbies which THE TRIBUNE will sponsor on Jan. 11 and 12 at Garfield park. The deadline for entries is midnight next Sunday.

There is every indication that this year's meet, the nineteenth since the Derbies were inaugurated in 1917, will be the greatest. Certainly the number of entries is expected to be the largest and, with favorable weather, interest and attendance will follow.

They'll Be Back for More Titles.

Yesterday's Catholic Youth organization meet at Garfield park was the most enterprising start for a winter season in many years and was made possible, of course, by the early freezing weather. Nearly all of yesterday's skaters are expected to compete for Silver Skates, the prizes for the seven champions. The Northwest Skating club, defending team champion and now owner of the Walter Eckersall memorial trophy, will make a strong bid for the necessary points to retain the trophy another year.

Thousands of Chicago boys and girls have taken advantage of the skating weather, and the caliber of the competition, from the boys' midget class for those under 12 years of age to the senior divisions, will show the result of practice.

Schroeder Moves Right Along.

Since 1931, when Eddie Schroeder, now a member of the United States Olympic team, won the men's senior title, the Silver Skates races, because of the weather, have been held on only one afternoon. This year, the first that the races have been returned to Garfield park, will find the preliminaries in three of the boys' classes held on Saturday afternoon. The other preliminaries and all championship races are scheduled for Sunday afternoon, Jan. 12.

Coaches and instructors are urged to file their entries early this week to relieve the pressure on the clerks which will result if all entries come in during the closing days.

BIG TEN FIVES OPEN RACE FOR TITLE SATURDAY

Games Tonight

California at Illinois.
Minnesota at De Paul [132d Regiment armory].
Iowa at Marquette.
Purdue at Temple.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Western conference basketball campaign, after one month of preparation, gets under way Saturday night with Illinois and Wisconsin, two of the trio of quintets which shared the title last winter, in opening games. Illinois invades Iowa and the Badgers open against Ohio State. On the basis of present records Wisconsin will have much more difficulty capturing its opening contest than Illinois.

These two games are by no means the most important for the week except on the basis that they go into the permanent records. Purdue, which lost to New York university before 18,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden Saturday night by a 43 to 41 score, ends its eastern trip tonight at Philadelphia against Temple. This was Purdue's second defeat. The Boilermakers, owning the remaining share of the Big Ten title, previously had lost to Butler by two points, but had whipped Notre Dame [54 to 40] for their outstanding triumph.

Bears at Illinois.

California, beaten by Northwestern Saturday night, 34 to 19, meets Illinois at Champaign tonight. California lost last Thursday to Purdue, 44 to 43, and unless California is scoring more accurately than against Northwestern the Illini may sweep the series for conference teams. Craig Ruby, Illini coach, is worried about the outcome. He watched the Purdue-California game and has stressed the value of California's fast breaking attack. Illinois warmed up Saturday night by beating Knox at Galesburg, 47 to 31.

Northwestern will have its opportunity tomorrow night to break even with Notre Dame, the only quintet to beat the Wildcats so far. The New Year's eve party at Patten gymnasium is designed, so Northwestern says, to get revenge for the 40 to 29 trouncing at Notre Dame. The Irish swept the Wildcats aside in that contest with an opening rush which piled up an 18 to 4 lead.

New Men for Gophers.

Minnesota's record is below passing so far and Saturday night the Gophers lost to Marquette at Wisconsin Rapids, 34 to 31. The Hilltoppers also have had several reverses. But Minnesota, it is said, will have three new players for tonight, sophomores who have just become eligible and are expected to bolster the team. De Paul has beaten Chicago and Wisconsin, in the Big Ten, and its only defeats to date were by Purdue [by four points] and by Illinois [by two points]. Tonight's game has been moved to the Madison street armory but Friday's engagement with Indiana university will be at the Stadium, where De Paul met three Big Ten quintets.

Iowa meets Marquette tonight at Milwaukee to conclude the evening's schedule. The Hawkeyes probably rate to win. Iowa's biggest loss will come at the start of the second semester when Barko becomes ineligible.

Harvard's touring quintet is the foe for undefeated Ohio State on Wednesday night. Michigan, also undefeated, meets Butler at Indianapolis on Thursday and then plays Toledo university to complete the jaunt. Notre Dame visits Minneapolis Saturday night and the week's schedule is completed with Northwestern's invasion of Marquette on the same evening.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ROSE BOWL GAMES.

SOUTHERN METHODIST, an undefeated football eleven, will meet Stanford at Pasadena New Year's day in the nineteenth contest of the Rose Bowl, not counting the Michigan-Stanford affair of 1902, actual forerunner of the series which otherwise originated in 1916.

In the eighteen games played Pacific coast elevens have recorded eight victories, opponents from south, middle west, or east, seven, with three ties. If Michigan's 49 to 0 victory over Stanford in 1902 be included, the series is eight all.

Stanford, which opposes Southern Methodist, has appeared in five previous Bowl contests, with success only against Pittsburgh, 7 to 6, in 1928, and a 7-7 tie with Alabama in 1927. Last January a powerful Palo Alto eleven succumbed to Alabama's Crimson Tide, 29 to 13, largely because of the forward passing combination of Howell to Hutson. Alabama in four Bowl appearances has three victories and one tie.

The Big Ten has been represented only once, when Ohio State's "horseshoe eleven" of 1920 went down before California, 28 to 0. Southern Methodist is the first Texas eleven ever to be honored with a Tournament of Roses invitation. Previous scores follow:

1916—Washington State, 14; Brown, 0.
1917—Oregon, 14; Pennsylvania, 0.
1920—Harvard, 7; Oregon, 6.
1921—California, 28; Ohio State, 0.
1922—Washington and Jefferson, 0; California, 0.
1923—Southern California, 14; Penn State, 3.
1924—Naval Academy, 14; Washington, 14.
1925—Notre Dame, 27; Stanford, 10.
1926—Alabama, 20; Washington, 19.
1927—Alabama, 7; Stanford, 7.
1928—Stanford, 7; Pittburgh, 6.
1929—Georgia Tech, 8; California, 7.
1930—Southern California, 47; Pittsburgh, 14.
1931—Alabama, 24; Washington State, 0.
1932—Southern California, 21; Tulane, 12.
1933—Southern California, 35; Pittsburgh, 0.
1934—Columbia, 7; Stanford, 0.

Rose Bowl Upsets.

One of the greatest Rose Bowl upsets was the contest of Jan. 1, 1934. Stanford had a great team, including many then sophomores of the present eleven, which is making its third consecutive appearance in the Bowl Wednesday. Much criticism followed Columbia's selection as an opponent. The easterners were regarded only as forlorn hopes.

Columbia, however, repulsed a half dozen Stanford scoring threats. In the second quarter the sensational Al Barabas ran 18 yards around Stanford's right end for the only touchdown of the fray. The ball had been placed in scoring position by a pass from Montgomery to Matal.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks, cheered on by the season's largest National league hocky crowd, 15,461 paid, last night sped to a three way tie for leadership in the American division when they licked the New York Rangers, 3 to 1, in a speedy, clean, and hard fought match.

One or all of the Howie Morenz-Johnny Gottselig-Mush March line figured in each of the three Chicago counters, all of which were made after Ching Johnson had scored New York's lone marker.

It is possible that the two teams were spurred to put on a great battle by a well publicized yelp by Jack Adams, manager of the Detroit Red Wings, in which he charged that last night's contestants are stallers, stalling being one of hocky's major crimes. It was fitting perhaps that Mr. Adams' lusty bleat was tossed off in the presence of the largest crowd that has seen a contest this season in either Canada or the United States.

Karakas Takes Lead.

The Hawks not only had the pleasure of going into a tie with the Red Wings and the Rangers for the division leadership, but they saw Mike Karakas, their hard working rookie goalie, assume leadership among the goalies, passing Tiny Thompson, who allowed three goals to get by him while his team, the Boston Bruins, were making four goals to whip the Red Wings, who, incidentally, will be here Wednesday night.

The Morenz-Gottselig-March line only recently started to click. During the first month and more of the season the boys tried like everything, but their efforts up to ten days ago were rewarded mostly by zeros.

Last night, with the score 1 to 0 against the Hawks and 20 seconds to go in the second period, March registered the tying goal on assists from Gottselig and Morenz. In 1:15 of the third period Morenz did the scoring, and Gottselig and March got the assist. And then, in 17:15 of the third period, Morenz gave his earlier associates a rest and made a goal on a swell assist from Defenseman Alex Levinsky.

With the Greatest Ease—

The fourteen minutes between the Rangers scored their first period goal were lively enough, but scarcely electrifying. Even the goal wasn't exciting for the simple reason that Johnson made it with great grace and ease, though bleeding profusely from a cut on his left temple.

Johnson's counter was made in 14 flat. The ancient Ching, riding shoulder to shoulder with Mason and Keeling went down the Rangers' right boards. As they came into the end curve, Mason clung to the boards and to the puck while Johnson swooped in front of the cage just in time to receive Mason's pass and slap home the goal. Mason, of course, was given an assist immediately, but Keeling wasn't until after the second period.

Johnson's injury apparently was received just as he made the goal. Grinning, as the so-called claret streamed down the side of his head, he skated to his bench and then was hastily sent down to the dressing rooms for more specialized stitching. Ching was

RIGHTMIRE AND MULLINS BATTLE FOR STATE TITLE

The Card

Everett Rightmire vs. Winfrid Mullins [12], 126.
Walter Matthys vs. Edwin Waling [5], 130.
Oscar Liebman vs. Ossie Jefferson [4], 155.
Frank Androff vs. George Kutulis [4], heavyweights.
Nick Peters vs. Sammy Verse [4], 134.

The last boxing show of the year in Chicago will be held tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, with Everett Rightmire, Sioux City, Ia., matched to meet Winfrid Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., in the main event.

The bout, the first to be fought at twelve rounds here since boxing became legal in Illinois in 1926, is a featherweight elimination. The winner will be recognized as this state's No. 1 contender for the right to a shot at the division crown, vacated a few weeks ago by the Illinois boxing commission when Freddy Miller failed to answer a challenge filed by Alberto Arizmendi.

Rightmire and Mullins will be meeting for the first time, but both have fought the same opponents with equal luck. Both lost to Leo Rodak, Rightmire in ten rounds at Wrigley field Sept. 20, 1934, and Mullins in eight rounds at the Stadium Feb. 16 of last year. Both whipped Claude Verner and Pete De Grasse.

It appears difficult to name a favorite. While Rightmire is a superior boxer and has had more experience, Mullins is more rugged and the harder puncher.

Walter Matthys, Chicago Golden Gloves graduate, will meet Edwin Waling, Detroit featherweight, in a five round semi-final. There will be four other matches, three at four rounds, and one at 15 minutes between light heavyweight wrestlers.

Frank Connelly, Boston, and Tom Baxter, Buffalo, have been signed to meet in a six round bout in class B in the heavyweight elimination tournament at Chicago Stadium Thursday. Other class B matches include those between Hank Bath, Fort Morgan, and Babe Davis, St. Louis, and Billy Treest, Batavia, and Smoky Maggard, Bryant, O. Class C engagements bring together Frank Androff and Bob Elliott, Johnny Erjavec and Lou Goode, Lee Savoldi and Jack Tebo, and Stanley Savoldi and Tom Vaupre. There will be five other conflicts.

The curtain will roll down on Chicago wrestling this year at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, when Joe Coffey will offer five encounters tonight between leading light heavyweights. Al Williams, Fox Lake, and Charles Grubmyer, Topeka, will be opponents in the main event, set for one fall with a 60 minute time limit. Tiger Nelson is paired with Faro Renaldi, Al George will oppose Rudy Kay, Jim Landis will tackle Charley Peterson, and George Schwab is matched with Stanley Novak.

St. Cyr Beats Hughes, 23-22 in K. of C. Play

Three baskets by Joe Cannizzo in the closing minutes enabled St. Cyr to defeat Hughes, 23 to 22, at St. Philip's gymnasium yesterday and tighten its grip on the lead in the west division of the Knights of Columbus basketball league.

Cannizzo's three baskets came after Hughes had taken a 20 to 16 lead. A free throw by Guagliardo followed. This turned out to be the winning point as Al Furlong sank a basket just before the gun.

St. Cyr plays its final game of the first round next Sunday against Barry, which beat Setters, 24 to 22, after a game in which the lead changed seven times in the second half. Lineups:

DOWLING WINS, 30-28

Dowling scored its first victory of the Knights of Columbus south section season at St. Rita gymnasium last night defeating Calumet, 30 to 28.

Leading at the half, 13 to 9. Dowling's triumph was largely due to the shooting of Blinstraub. He scored eight field goals and two free throws. Another close battle was the Perez-Aquinas contest which Pereb won, 24 to 22. Englewood beat McHale, 27 to 23, and Santa Maria routed Loyola-Hyde Park, 30 to 18. Scores:

WAUKEGAN PAIR TAKES DOUBLES BOWLING LEAD

Waukegan and Chicago bowlers shot into first place in all four divisions of the nineteenth annual interstate tournament at Aurora yesterday. Johnny Ryan and George Rudolph of Bob O'Farrell's Waukegan Recreations, A. B. C. champions in 1933, took the doubles lead with 1,324. Ryan posted a 743 series in the event.

Birk Brothers of Chicago shot 3,019 to take first place in the team event, while Joe Fliger of the Mineralites got 724 for first place in the singles. Bud Wright, also of the Mineralites, piled up 1,949 for the all-events lead. The meet continues for two more weeks.

PUT LOUIS AHEAD OF BRADDOCK IN BOXING RANKINGS

Hailed for Bringing Back Million Dollar Gate.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Joe Louis, Chicago Golden Gloves champion in 1934, whose unbroken series of triumps in 1935 lifted boxing from the depths, was placed at the head of the world's heavyweight list today in the annual rankings published by the Ring, boxing magazine.

Louis not only was rated above Champion Jimmy Braddock, but was given credit for a large share of the year's outstanding performances, as well as for providing the impetus that put the sport back on a big time basis.

Lynch Tops Montana.

Only one champion other than Braddock failed to win top ranking in the selections made by Nat Fleischer and Eddie Borden, editors of the Ring, on the basis of a poll to which 131 sports writers contributed. Small Montana, Filipino flyweight who won the title from Midget Wolgast, was placed second to Benny Lynch of Scotland in his class.

Louis' name appeared in three of the first four events listed as the year's outstanding developments. His four round knockout of Max Baer, the former champion, was listed ahead of Baer's surprising loss of the title to Braddock. Third ranking was given to Louis' six round knockout of Primo Carnera and fourth to the return of the million dollar gate at the Louis-Baer fight at the Yankee stadium.

Ross, Canzoneri Honored.

Among the other outstanding developments listed were the feats of Tony Canzoneri and Barney Ross in regaining the lightweight and welterweight titles, Freddie Miller's successful European campaign, and "the infusion of new blood in all classes, with greater interest in the lighter divisions."

Following custom, the eleventh Ring ratings separates the boxes of various divisions into four groups and then lists them within these groups in the order of their comparative rankings. The performers in each group are rated close together in ability and in many cases as being equal.

Louis All by Himself.

Louis stands all alone in group 1 of the heavyweights while Braddock is given sole possession of group 2. The third group of heavyweights is composed of Max Schmeling of Germany and Primo Carnera of Italy, both former champions, who are considered about equal. In group four are listed Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia; Max Baer; Hank Hankinson, Akron, O.; Charley Retzlaff, Duluth; Buddy Baer, Oakland, Cal.; Walter Neusel, Germany; Ray Impellitiere, Cold Springs, N. Y.; Eddie Mader, New York; Al Ettore, Philadelphia; Ford Smith, Kalispell, Mont., and Paulino Uzcudun, Spain.

The leading rankings in other divisions:

Light heavyweight—Group 1, John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., and Maxie Rosenbloom, New York. Group 2, Jock McAvoy, England; Al McCoy, Waterville, Me.; Bob Olin, New York; and Ambrose Palmer, Australia.

Middleweight—Group 1, Marcel Thil, France. Group 2, Freddy Steele, Tacoma, Wash.; Lou Brouillard, Worcester, Mass.; Babe Risko, Syracuse, N. Y., recognized as champion in the United States; and Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg.

Welterweight—Group 1, Barney Ross, Chicago. Group 2, Sep Van Klaveren, Holland; Jack Carroll, Australia; and Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver.

Lightweight—Group 1, Tony Canzoneri. Group 2, Lou Ambers, Herkimer, N. Y.; Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, Mich.; and Frankie Klick, San Francisco.

Featherweight—Group 1, Freddy Miller, Cincinnati. Group 2, Maurice Holtzer, France, Baby Arizmendi, Mexico; and Henry Armstrong, Los Angeles.

Bantamweight—Group 1, Balcazar Sangchelli, Spain; Sixto Escobar, Porto Rico; and Lou Salica, New York.

Flyweight—Group 1, Benny Lynch, Scotland, and Small Montana, Philippines. Group 2, Jackie Brown, England; Joe Mendiola, Philippines; Valentin Anglemann, France; Tuffy Pierpont, Oakland, Cal.; and Maurice Huguenin, France.

Robb's 2 Goals Give Spartas 2 to 1 Victory

BY OFFSIDE.

The Viennas of the International league were beaten, 2 to 1, yesterday by the Sparta Garden City team in an interleague soccer match at the Sparta stadium. Sparta had numerous chances to score, and finally took a lead 15 minutes after the start when Robb drove the ball into the net.

The Viennas tied the score near the close of the first period, F. Trimmel shooting high into the net after the ball had struck the cross bar.

Students Pry Into Matter of Athletes' Pay

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 29.—(AP)—College and university students of the nation quietly chose up sides tonight as they prepared to pry into a scholastic bombshell—the subsidization of college athletes.

Brought to a sudden climax by the Southeastern conference's decision in favor of athletic scholarships, the question will be taken up in committee by the National Student Federation congress tomorrow.

Significant was the fact that tomorrow's conference will hear Dr. F. C. Allen, athletic director of the University of Kansas, who extended congratulations to the Southeastern conference for its "courage."

Urge Payment in Open.

A year ago a conference of the student federation adopted a resolution that "payment of athletes should be brought out into the open in the form of athletic scholarships." The present congress will be asked to affirm that recommendation.

"The decision of the Southeastern conference doesn't disturb us much," said Arthur Northwood Jr., Princeton representative. "After all, schools might as well let the public in on their practices. I'd venture that most of the delegates would indorse that action."

Gunnar Mykland of the University of Kansas, who is chairman of the congress, had a different opinion.

"More than half of the students here probably would vote against open subsidization," Mykland said. "But it is a question that has gained supporters annually. It's likely to get hot this year."

"Thinly Veiled Practice."

A western university delegate, who requested that his identity and school not be disclosed, said:

"They may as well adopt an aboveboard attitude. The helping of outstanding athletes is a widespread practice only thinly veiled.

"Probably most schools will throw up their hands in alarm if it is intimated that their letter men aren't exactly lily white on the matter, but in a lot of those same schools you'll probably find that some of the boys who are working their way through college are doing all their work on the gridiron—and they say the pay isn't bad."

Preps Clash in Quarter-Final Battles Today

QUARTER FINALS.
3 p. m.—Austin vs. Farragut.
4 p. m.—Lake View vs. Foreman.
7 p. m.—Crane vs. Tilden.
8 p. m.—Tuley vs. Bowen.

Quarter final games in the University of Chicago's holiday tournament for the city's high school basketball teams, usually the most hotly contested matches of the meet, will be played this afternoon and evening at the Midway fieldhouse. The eight survivors of an original field of 32 teams, each with two victories to its credit, will be reduced to four today. Semi-finals will be played tomorrow evening and the championship and third place games Wednesday evening.

West section teams have dominated the play thus far, and it is an outside possibility that all the semi-finalists will be from that section. It happens that each of the four west section teams surviving, Austin, Foreman, Crane, and Tuley, is scheduled to meet a team from another section today. Last year the only west section squad reaching the semi-finals was Roosevelt, which finished in fourth place.

Farragut Tough on Defense.

Austin, a cool, fast five that has won close games from Amundsen and Englewood, faces the best defensive team in the tournament, Farragut of the central section, in today's opener. Farragut has limited its two opponents thus far, Parker and Marshall, to 12 points. Harry Anderson, able guard, is the floor general of the Austin team. George Pelc, high scoring forward, is the nucleus of Farragut's squad.

Lake View and Foreman, the second antagonists, have come up through a series of close games. Lake View, the only surviving north section team, has a rangy team to throw against Foreman's smartly drilled floormen. Foreman is led by two fine forwards, Ted Perzanowski and Frank McCullough.

Crane Meets Tilden.

Crane, high scoring team of the tournament, with 80 points so far in two games, meets Tilden of the central section. Like Foreman, Crane has a pair of eagle-eyed forwards, Harry Krotish and Quinto Valentino, and the former is the individual scoring leader of the tourney to date. Tilden banks on height and a fairly strong defense.

The day's last game brings together Tuley and Bowen. Tuley has beaten two strong opponents, Morgan Park and Lane. Tuley uses a combination of heavies and lights with the fireworks being provided by a little redhead named Mickey Rottner. Bowen has won from Steinmetz and Manley.

PICK FINALISTS IN U. S. OLYMPIC SKATING TRIALS

Stars Meet Tonight to Decide Team.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Four men and four women were chosen today as finalists in the national figure skating events and Olympic team trials after the first free skating tests at the New York Ice club. Three pairs also were selected to contend for the title on the Madison Square Garden rink tomorrow night when the finals will be held in conjunction with an exhibition by the Olympic hocky team and a parade of other Olympic athletes.

The defending singles champions, Maribel Y. Vinson of Boston and New York and 16 year old Robin Lee of Minneapolis, topped their fields after today's tests just as they had done in the school figures, which were skated Friday and Saturday.

Weigel Sisters in Finals.

The others chosen for the finals, rated in the order of unofficial placings by expert observers, were Louise Weigel of Buffalo, Audrey Peppe of New York, and Estelle Weigel of Buffalo, sister of Louise, in the women's division, and Erle Reiter of New York, Roger F. Turner of Boston, and George E. B. Hill of Boston in the men's singles. No announcement was made of the official placings.

The finalists in the pairs competition, which began today, are Miss Vinson and Hill, Polly Blodgett of Boston and Turner and Marjorie Parker and Howard Meredith of New York.

From these finalists the new champions will be chosen as well as the Olympic team, which probably will consist of three men, three women and two pairs.

Miss Blodgett Eliminated.

Miss Blodgett, the 16 year old national junior champion who made her debut in senior competition in this event, and Katherine Durbrow and Ardelle Kloss of New York were eliminated by today's competition, as were William J. Nagle of New York and Oliver Haupt Jr., 15 year old St. Louis skater, in the men's division. The unsuccessful pairs were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bruns Jr. of New York and Haupt and his 14 year old partner, Jeanne Schulte, also of St. Louis.

ACCEPT RESIGNATIONS

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The American Olympic committee, having hurdled the major barriers in the path of American participation in the Berlin games, today voted to accept the resignations of certain committeemen and also to ask lukewarm members to withdraw.

The resignations had been submitted by factionists headed by Jeremiah T. Mahoney, former president of the Amateur Athletic union and a bitter opponent of American participation. The resignations were received shortly after the heated battle waged by this faction and lost in the recent A. A. U. convention.

Approve Resignations.

The Olympic committeemen, passive as routine business went by the boards in an all day session in the New York Athletic club, heartily approved the proposal of Avery Brundage, president, that the resignations be accepted and that those whose lack of activity indicated they were not wholly in accord with American participation be courteously asked to withdraw.

As a result of today's action, questionaires will be sent to all committeemen in the country asking their stand.

BOBSLEDDERS TO SAIL

Lake Placid, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Twelve bobsledders departed tonight for New York, whence they will sail later in the week to represent the United States in the fourth Olympic winter games at Garmische Parten Kirchen, Germany.

WARREN TAKES AUTO FEATURE; RUSSO SECOND

Pat Warren, west coast pilot, defeated Paul Russo to win the 40 lap feature auto race last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory before a crowd of 5,000.

A dozen cars started with Tony Willaman taking the lead, but after three laps Warren took the lead and with some expert driving beat out Russo. Ray Hartsfeld came from twelfth position to take third money.

In an intercity match race Willaman, from Milwaukee, was the victor in a close finish over Russo, who represented Chicago. Jimmy Snyder was third and Chuck Niesel was fourth. Summaries:

FIRST RACE [12 laps]—Won by Tony Willaman; Pat Warren, second; Chuck Niesel, third. Time, 2:44.

SECOND RACE [12 laps]—Won by Jimmy Snyder; Paul Russo, second; Curly Mills, third. Time, 2:46.

THIRD RACE [12 laps]—Won by Johnny Baldwin; Ray Mitchell, second; Harry McQuinn, third. Time, 2:50.

FOURTH RACE [12 laps]—Won by Wally Zale; Ted Tetterton, second; Jimmy Rogers, third. Time, 2:49.

FIFTH RACE [10 laps]—Won by Pat Warren; Tony Willaman, second; Paul Russo, third. Time, 2:17.

SIXTH RACE [consolation, 12 laps]—Won by Ray Hartsfeld; Pete Romcevich, second; Jimmy Rogers, third. Time, 2:53.

EIGHTH RACE [10 laps]—Won by Harry McQuinn; Jimmy Rogers, second; Wally Zale, third. Time, 2:22.

NINTH RACE [main event, 40 laps]—Won by Pat Warren; Paul Russo, second; Ray Hartsfeld, third; Harry McQuinn, fourth. Time, 9:47.

Vanderbilt and Loyola Fives to Clash Tonight

Loyola university will close its 1935 athletic season tonight when the basketball team meets Vanderbilt university of Nashville at Loyola gymnasium in the third game between the schools. Twice winners, in 1927 and 1930, over the Commodores, Loyola will take the floor as the under dog despite its fine showing against Indiana and the Hoosiers' easy victory at Nashville.

Coach Josh Cody is rounding out his athletic career at Vanderbilt with one of the strongest quintets in the school's history. Cody, recently chosen head football coach at the University of Florida, will leave his alma mater at the conclusion of the basketball season.

Two Vanderbilt stars, Capt. Willie Geny and Pete Curley, will return to the scene of former high school playing days, both lads having seen action on the Loyola floor as members of Father Ryan High school squads in Loyola's national prep tournaments. Geny, at 6 feet 2 inches and 185 pounds, is the average player of the starting Commodore five, while Curley, at 5 feet 10 inches, is the smallest starter.

Hawks Whip Rangers, 3-1; Tie for Lead

The second period was a furious period in which both teams did much to throw down those ridiculous Detroit charges that they are stalling outfits. Despite the aggressive play there was no scoring until 19 minutes and 40 seconds of the 20 minute period had been played. Then the Hawks tied the score.

March, flanked by Gottselig and Morenz, got the puck near the New York blue line and raced down the ice with it. With assists from Gottselig and Morenz, March got the rubber near the mouth of the cage and nicely outsmarted the dancing goalie Kerr.

Levinsky Helps Out.

The Hawks did not wait long in the third period to grab the lead. Spread out more than in their previous scoring assault, Morenz, Gottselig, and March went into the Ranger defense zone. Gottselig failed to get a shot past Kerr, but Morenz picked up the bounding disc and slammed it home.

The superfluous goal was made in 17:15 on some splendidly timed work by Levinsky and Morenz. Levinsky charged in with the puck. Going straight for Kerr a mile a minute, he pulled the Ranger goalie over for the play, then passed to Morenz, who faltered not the least in executing a perfect goal.

HEIL BOWLERS LEAD BY 481 PINS IN TITLE MATCH

Heil Quality Products of Milwaukee outclassed the Pabst Blue Ribbons in the first half of their championship bowling match yesterday, turning back the challengers by a margin of 481 pins. The Milwaukeeans took the opening block 3,120 to 2,895, dropped the second, 2,992 to 2,883, but went on a strike spree in the final session to beat the Chicago challengers, 3,178 to 2,834.

The second half of the match, scheduled for Milwaukee next weekend, will find the world match champions with a decided advantage. The Pabst team will be forced to defeat the Heils by more than fifty pins per game in the remaining nine sessions in order to take the crown.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ARTHUR FRANK of Harrisburg, Ill., one of the leading freshman tackles at Illinois in 1933, who withdrew from school on account of his brother's death, has been appointed to the United States Military academy. . . . Chuck Galbreath, captain and tackle of the 1935 Illini, also has received an appointment, so this state may provide Army tackles in 1937. . . . Glamorous Bob Lewis, traveling secretary of the Cubs, says he has even more reason than Mike Jacobs to be mad at Cuba. . . . He had to pay 30 cents for a TRIBUNE in Havana that was two weeks old. . . . Harold Osborn, who established himself as one of the world's greatest high jumpers 15 years ago, hopes to make the 1936 Olympic team either as a high jumper or a decathlon performer. . . . The two sons of Fred Lindstrom, Cub outfielder, have chicken pox. . . . Soon as they recover Fred will head south to begin training for the 1936 season. . . . March is the best birth month for golf champions. . . . Among those who arrived then are Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, Joe Kirkwood, MacDonald Smith, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, J. H. Official averages confirm the right of the Cubs to first place in the National league. . . . They not only made the most runs, 847, but allowed their opponents the fewest, 597. . . . Wendel Wilson, assistant football coach at Illinois, is spending the holidays skiing with ranger friends in Rocky Mountain National park, Colo. . . . He formerly served as a ranger there. . . . Bob Herwig, guard on University of California's basketball team, which plays the Illini tonight, was center on the football team, playing 60 minutes in six major contests. . . . If Joe Louis wins the heavyweight championship, there can be no doubt about his qualifications. . . . He will have whipped three former champions and the present champion on the way up. . . . The baseball season may be a long way off, but there's an electric sign blazing out nightly at Clark and Addison streets "Wrigley field, the home of the Cubs." . . .

Texas Christian and Louisiana State, opponents in New Orleans' Sugar Bowl game Wednesday, have met twice and scored nothing but field goals. . . . Texas Christian won, 3 to 0, in 1931 and the teams played a 3 to 3 tie in 1932. . . . Albert Mikelonis, varsity quarter back, has been named Pennsylvania's outstanding athlete. . . . Augie Galan, Cub outfielder, and Stan Hack, third baseman, stole more bases than either the Giants or Pirates in 1935. . . . Galan alone stole more than the Braves. . . . Vernon Huffman, Indiana football and basketball player, has two young brothers starring on the Newcastle, Ind., High school quintet who plan to enter Indiana next fall. . . . The biggest fight gate Chicago Stadium has attracted was $186,000 at its first card in 1929, which had Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker in the headline rôles. . . . Golden Gloves bouts hold the Stadium's and world's indoor attendance records. . . .

The colors of Southern Methodist are royal blue and crimson and Stanford's are cardinal and white. . . . Dana X. Bible, whose Nebraska eleven played both Pittsburgh and Chicago, rates Radour of Pitt a better back than Berwanger of Chicago. . . . Jane Sharp, national indoor tennis champion, who recently turned professional, won 80 trophies as an amateur. . . . Jack Dempsey plays tackle on the football team at Loyola of Los Angeles. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Joe Carr, president of the National Professional Football league, fined Chris O'Brien, owner of the Chicago Cardinals, $1,000 for playing his team against high school boys. . . . Boston Beats Detroit, 4-3, in Overtime

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Boston's greatly improved Bruins defeated the Detroit Red Wings, 4 to 3, in overtime tonight before 10,000. Bill Cowley's goal decided the contest.

It was a spirited exhibition of wide-open hocky, with the Red Wings coming from behind in the third period to send the game into overtime. The winning play was started by Peg O'Neil, who raced down right wing and passed across the ice to Cowley, whose hard shot beat Goalie Norm Smith cleanly.

Ethel Burkhart to Make Chicago Pro Debut Jan. 15

Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold of California, will be one of the featured performers in the professional tennis show at the International Amphitheater Jan. 15, when Ellsworth Vines and others of the Bill Tilden troupe will play a series of matches. It will be her first professional match in Chicago.

Mrs. Burkhart was the sensation of the 1935 season, compiling the finest record of any woman player. In her last two years of competition as an amateur she has won 14 consecutive tournaments with the loss of only four sets.

She went east last summer for the first time in four years. She opened her invasion by winning the Essex invitational, defeating Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, American second ranking player.

Following Essex she went to Seabright and again was victorious, overcoming Gracyn Wheeler, another Californian, in the final. Her third Atlantic tournament was the Maidstone invitational, when she again beat Mrs. Fabyan. She won in straight sets, with the loss of only three games.

The Wightman cup matches were next and she defeated the famous Kay Stammers of England in the deciding match.

Mrs. Arnold returned to California and completed her amateur career with an easy triumph in the Pacific southwest tourney, again beating Miss Stammers.

CLEVELAND TRIO BEATS ARTILLERY POLOISTS, 14-3½

Cleveland, O., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The Cleveland Fisher Food poloists defeated the 122d Field Artillery of Chicago tonight, 14 to 3½. It was the army team's second setback here in as many nights. It lost to the local Erin Brews, 14½ to 7½, last night

Kiefer Breaks World Record in 400 Meters

Coral Gables, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—America's best aquatic stars broke five national marks and one world swimming record here this afternoon as the three day Miami Biltmore meet opened.

The star of the day was Adolph Kiefer, 17 year old Chicagoan, whose time of 5:28.6 for the 400 meter backstroke event was 1.8 seconds faster than the world mark hung up by M. Kiyokawa, Japan, at Tokio, Jan. 22, 1933. Kiefer also bettered two national long course marks, the 400 meter and 440 yard backstroke.

Kiefer's 400 meter time compared with the 5:43 Maxiolo Kalili, Honolulu, registered in 1930, while his time for 440 yards, 5:31.2, clipped nearly 40 seconds off the mark of 6:10 set by George Kojac, Massapequa, N. Y., in July, 1927.

Lenore Kight, now Mrs. Gleon Wingard of Cincinnati, turned in another record breaking performance, swimming the 400 yard distance free style in 5:14.4 to cut 2.6 seconds off the 5:17 registered in August, 1935.

Two new backstroke marks were placed in the books by Albert Vande Weghe of the New York Athletic club, while Erna Kompa of New York contributed another record-smashing performance that did not count because the starter's gun jammed.

Swimming against time, Vande Weghe covered 100 yards in 1:03 to top the 1:05.6 registered by Warren Keoloha, Honolulu, in June, 1924. The Newark entry's 50 yard time was 28.4, well under the 30.8 done by Stubby Kruger, Alameda, Cal., in June, 1918.

Miss Kompa swam against her sister, Elizabeth, and Mary Shepherd, Miami Beach, the latter given a 20 second handicap, in covering 200 yards backstroke in 2:38, 2.4 better than the 2:40.4 of Alice Bridges, made at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., in June of this year.

Hershey Beats Baltimore in Amateur Hocky League

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Hershey Bars handed the Baltimore Orioles another defeat in an Eastern ice hocky game here tonight, 5 to 2.

SOUTHERN STARS LEAD EAST, WEST IN GRIDIRON DUEL

Smith, Wallace Impress Rival Coaches.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—College football stars of the 1935 season, who will clash here New Year's day in the annual East-West charity game, dug their cleats into the turf today in final intensive workouts.

As the deadline approached for the eleventh battle of the series bringing together the pick of players from east and west of the Mississippi river, it became increasingly evident each side would depend on a star from the southern section for leadership.

Smith Takes Charge.

Almost from the opening workout, an eastern "general" appeared in the person of Riley Smith, 205 pound quarter back from the University of Alabama. His signal calling and all-around ability impressed Co-Coaches Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley.

Smith apparently comes by his leadership tendencies naturally. Every time the coaches shout that surname, he is first on the spot even if Ed Smith, New York university half back, or Dick Smith, Minnesota tackle, is the man wanted.

Forty miles or so south, in the Palo Alto training camp of the western team, Bill Wallace, outstanding half back at Rice Institute this year, has proved to be the answer to the coaches' prayer. He can kick, pass, and run, in addition to being a strong blocker, and is expected to be put in charge of running the team.

The remaining two days of practice will see the squads polish up on the small assortment of plays worked into the program since drills began a week ago.

BURGLAR RAIDS LOCKERS.

Berkeley, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The western football collegians can congratulate themselves that they play the eastern stars Wednesday and not today.

The easterners were in a fighting mood, all on account of a burglar who went through their lockers yesterday while they were at practice for the game at San Francisco New Year's day.

Sheldon Beise, Minnesota full back, lost $60, two rings and a watch. Pepper Constable of Princeton, lost $100, and Paul Pauk, another Princeton star, a watch and $11. Edward Smith of New York university, was robbed of only 50 cents, but said it was "all I had."

John Henry Lewis Signs for Bout with Al Stillman

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 29.—(AP)—John Henry Lewis, world light heavyweight champion, and Al Stillman have signed for a 10 round nontitle bout here Jan. 17, Promoter Benny Greenberg said today. The two will enter the ring over the 175 pound weight limit. Lewis has dropped a decision to Maxie Rosenbloom, scored two knockouts, and won another match since he lifted the crown from Bob Olin here last Oct. 31.

ONE TASTE of this mellow, creamy Sterling Ale and you'll see why the whole town's crazy about it. That delightful, satisfying smoothness—that invigorating lift and glow—are there because this Ale is brewed differently, as Ale should be, on an old English formula. Then brought to you right, guarded by good brown glass, in the handy "Stubby" bottle that you pour and throw away. Do as everyone does! Say "Make mine Ale—Sterling Ale!"

FLOW OF FUNDS FOR INVESTMENT BOLSTERS BONDS

U. S. and Prime Corporation Liens in Demand.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A fresh supply of investable funds resulting from year-end payments kept the bond market on a firm foundation last week.

United States government issues broadened out in the widest upward movement since the December financing was completed and domestic corporate loans of the highest grade were in steady call by those seeking to employ idle funds with maximum safety.

Railroad securities of all types were kept to the fore by a number of favorable factors, including a gratifying expansion of net operating income during November and a second move by Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, in furtherance of a program designed to force a reduction in interest rates paid by carriers.

Industrial bonds were aided materially by spectacular gains in issues involved in reorganization proceedings and the utility group enjoyed a flurry of activity when electric power production crossed the 2,000,000,000 kilowatt hour mark for the first time since records have been kept.

Foreign bonds were kept in an unsettled state by political and economic tension in Europe as well as disturbing war news.

New financing and refunding operations were at a standstill during the week, principally as a result of yearend bookkeeping and other corporate requirements, but several statements were filed with the Securities and Exchange commission covering issues expected to be brought out shortly after the first of the year. Included among these was a $35,000,000 issue of the Wheeling Steel corporation.

MESTA MACHINE REPORTS SHARP GAIN IN ORDERS

The Mesta Machine company, closing its busiest year, announced last night that unfilled orders carrying over into 1936 will be several times those a year ago, when they totaled $2,357,000. During November there was a volume of $11,000,000 in unfilled orders. New orders booked since then amount to more than $2,500,000.

Manufacturer of rolling mills and other heavy equipment for the steel industry, Mesta has received large orders from steel companies for mill machinery and equipment, both for expansion and new installation programs.

Among the recent major customers listed by Mesta as having order unfilled are Inland Steel company, American Sheet and Tin Plate company, Wheeling Steel corporation, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, and the Lackawanna and Sparrows Point plants of Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Zonite Products.

Investors' Guide: I shall appreciate your information on Zonite Products.—B. F. C.

Answer: Zonite Products corporation manufactures trade-marked drug products, such as Forhan's toothpaste, Zonite antiseptic, and other Zonite preparations, argyrol, larvex, etc. In 1933 it entered the liquor business, but results proved so poor that this line was discontinued in 1935.

The company earned a profit of $55,000 in the third quarter of 1935, but heavy losses in the first half resulted in a loss of $449,000 for the first nine months. In the corresponding 1934 period net income was $267,000, or 32 cents a share.

In 1934 the drug business yielded a profit of $157,000, but writedown of inventories of liquor in anticipation of withdrawal from that line brought loss for the year to $99,000. Net income in 1933 was $372,000, or 45 cents a share, against $563,000, or 69 cents a share, for 1932. In 1931 net income was $953,000.

On Dec. 31, 1934, current assets, including cash of $202,000, totaled $1,238,000 and current liabilities were $670,000. Notes payable were $150,000. Profit and loss deficit was $150,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 845,556 shares of $1 par capital stock on which nothing has been paid since Sept. 10, 1932.

SALES FOR TAX PURPOSES SHOW SHARP DECLINE

Traders Retaining Stock Holdings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—Year-end buying and selling for the adjustment of income tax accounts threaten to exert a mildly disturbing influence on stock market operations over the remaining two sessions of the year as they did all last week.

Such additional transactions as may fall under this heading between now and Tuesday night, however, will differ from those of the last few days in that they will have to be made on a cash basis instead of in the regular manner. For this reason, brokers do not anticipate that the total will be very heavy, and therefore there will be little action calculated to upset the normal course of business to any great extent.

Less Tax Loss Selling.

There was considerably less selling to establish "tax" losses last week than there has been in a good many years, a fact which brokers agreed in interpreting as showing that the vast majority of traders are looking to the coming year with more hope than fear, and are therefore determined to hold on to whatever shares they may have for a while longer, at least.

Thus, the "averages" rose fractionally on four out of the five trading sessions of the week, the exception being yesterday's short session, in which the combined index figures dropped .85 point, erasing about all the progress made in the other sessions to wind up about where they were Saturday before last. In view of its handicap, however, the market's performance was encouraging to the constructive contingent on the whole.

Strength Shown by Industry.

Confidence in the nearby future was bolstered by the high degree of vitality shown by industry in a week traditionally distinguished for dullness and by encouraging comment from authoritative quarters. The commentators were unanimous that business recovery had been too widespread and persistent to be dismissed as "manufactured" phenomena, even though the huge quantities of "easy money" ladled out from the public treasury, admittedly the major item of the chronicle to date, cannot go on indefinitely.

Nevertheless, the profits made by industry this year were genuine enough, it is conceded, and they were the first worth talking about since the pit of the depression was passed. The prevailing tendency among business men is to regard the recovery that has taken place as a strong support for further improvement.

Roper Hopeful for Business Gain in 1936

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—In a New Year's statement to the nation Secretary Roper predicted today that the "broadening of the recovery progress" in 1935 provides a basis "for further encouraging economic gains in 1936."

Noting specific business improvement, the commerce secretary said "the fact that the general cumulative forces of recovery are gaining is even more important.

"Just as the forces of depression were cumulative in their effects, so the forces of recovery operate to expand activity in an ever widening circle," he continued.

"In dealing with the paramount problem of unemployment, we may take courage and renewed hope from the steady expansion of production and distribution in the last year.

A Broader Foundation.

"Perhaps the most striking conclusion warranted by a review of the developments of the year is that we now have a broader and firmer foundation than in the preceding years on which to build in 1936."

Reviewing the year, Roper said that production of consumers' goods was "at or above the relatively high level of 1934; there was further improvement in agriculture; some revival in the durable goods industries; widespread improvement in consumer purchasing based on increased employment; more equitable price relationships and a larger harvest; improved industrial earnings; an increase in the value of our foreign trade, and further improvements in the financial field, including a rising tendency in security markets and a gradual reopening of the domestic capital market to the flow of private funds."

Gain in Employment.

He added:

"A substantial increase in employment was effected during the year, with the major part of the gain accounted for in the manufacturing industries. There was also an encouraging expansion of employment in the construction industry, particularly in residential building. The latest monthly factory employment data available shows an increase of 10 per cent in comparison with a year ago, factory pay rolls being 25 per cent higher.

"Wages of factory workers generally were maintained at the level reached in 1934, when hourly rates were as high as in 1929.

"Among the more spectacular increases in retail sales in 1935 were the increase of about 20 per cent in sales of general merchandise in rural areas and an estimated increase of 40 per cent in dollar expenditures for new passenger automobiles."

KUPPENHEIMER & CO. HAS FIRST PROFITABLE 12 MONTHS SINCE '30

B. Kuppenheimer & Co., a Chicago pioneer in the ready-to-wear men's clothing industry, last night reported its first profitable year since 1930. Net earnings amounted to $83,135, or $1.17 a share on 71,215 common shares outstanding for the fiscal year ended Nov. 2. A deficit of $25,735 was reported for the 1934 period. Now beginning its sixtieth year, the company is in excellent financial condition, according to a letter to stockholders from Bertram J. Cahn, chairman of the board.

"Shipments for the year exceeded substantially those of the preceding year and contributed largely to the improvement in net results," said Cahn. "Advance sales for the coming spring season are considerably in excess of a year ago.

"Difficulty in securing satisfactory profits, due to the necessity of responding to demand for popular prices on quality clothing, still continues and is further accentuated by rising raw material costs and increased taxation. However, a continuation of sales expansion, achieved by constant improvement of the product as well as increased purchasing power in both agricultural and industrial sections, should operate to produce relatively better results for the coming year.

Gross profits were $970,326, compared with $727,774 in 1934. This was the best figure since 1931. Current assets stood at $1,844,644 as against current liabilities of $565,849.

Magill Calls for an End to Public Waste

Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, last night asserted that "reckless, unnecessary squandering of the taxpayers' money must be stopped" and warned that the bills will have to be paid by everyone—"Those who toil and struggle and save." Statements of political demagogs that enormous expenditures could be met by "soaking the rich" have been proven false, Dr. Magill said.

"If all incomes of one million dollars or over were taken in full they would meet the expenses of our federal government for less than one week," he continued. "To finance the government last year would have taken two-thirds of all wages and salaries of all citizens of the United States except those on government payrolls."

Expenses Take Third of Income.

To pay the "appalling sum" of 15½ billions which the total cost of national, state, and local government reached in 1935, he said, would have required approximately one-third of the total national income of 49 billions.

"No steps have yet been taken to stop this orgy of wasteful extravagance," said Dr. Magill, pointing out that total public debts aggregate 48 billions. "For the last half of 1935 the deficit is estimated to be in excess of $12,000,000 per day.

"The mounting indebtedness is being accumulated notwithstanding the very heavy present system of taxation. The only way to balance the budget and save us from bankruptcy is to cut down extravagant spending."

Answering the question of how the government comes to be so deeply in debt, Dr. Magill said that the basic American doctrin that government derives power from consent of the governed has been forsaken.

Sees Theorists in Command.

"In recent years many laws have been enacted that did not represent the wishes of the people nor spring from the needs of the people," he said. "They represent the untried ideas of theorists, whose proposals were accepted as possible aids to recovery. It is alarming how fast our country is becoming a government of individuals instead of a government of laws.

"Notwithstanding made jobs and all the extravagance and political waste, and worse, connected therewith, there are still 9,000,000 unemployed in our country. The only permanent solution to this problem is to put all who are able back to work in private industry and care for the remaining dependent through private and public charity.

"To do this, public confidence must be restored in the soundness and stability of our governmental, economic, and industrial policies. Business must have not only a 'breathing spell' but full assurances from absolutely dependable sources that industrial expansion shall be limited only by just and reasonable laws.

Opposes Socialistic Policies.

"We vigorously oppose socialistic policies which openly advocate vast government expenditures and not only the vicious principle of government competition with private industry but government ownership and political management of all industry, the ultimate taking over of all sources of wealth and the abolition of private property.

"Discussion of this question of expenditures and indebtedness is in no sense partisan. The two major political parties have both declared for governmental economy and a balanced budget.

"We do not question the need of taxes for legitimate purposes. None of us would permit anyone to starve. Those that are necessarily dependent must be cared for by society. There are many legitimate expenditures which must and should be made by our national, state, and local governments, and the funds to meet these expenditures must and should be raised by taxation."

CHERRY-BURRELL CO. HAS 63.21 PER CENT INCREASE IN EARNINGS

Net earnings of the Cherry-Burrell corporation for the twelve months ended Oct. 31, 1935 were 63.21 per cent above those of the preceding fiscal year, W. L. Cherry, president, reported yesterday in the eighth annual report of the company. While reporting higher earnings, Cherry warned the stockholders of the growing burden of taxation.

Gross profit of the company for the year ended Oct. 31, 1935, stood at $1,092,346 as compared with $757,648 in the preceding year. Net income for 1935 was $698,240 compared with $427,815 in the preceding year.

Cherry said that on Aug. 1, 1935, the balance of $864,500 of the company's 6 per cent debenture bonds, due Aug. 1, 1938, was called for redemption. He explained that the bonds were retired partly through bank loans and partly through use of working capital, which had the effect of decreasing the ratio of current assets to current liabilities. The ratio changed from 10.4 to 1 at the close of the preceding year to 5.8 to 1 on Oct. 31, 1935. Current assets, including $1,411,197 cash, on Oct. 31, 1935, totaled $4,761,512 compared with current liabilities of $814,925.

"In addition to the substantial increases in tax expense resulting both from high tax rates and numerous new forms of taxation, the added cost of complying with the many new tax laws amounts to a very considerable item and adds materially to the cost of doing business," Cherry said. "I feel that there is a responsibility which rests upon each one of our stockholders, to use such influence as he can by vote and otherwise, toward the elimination of extravagant and wasteful expenditures and uneconomic and unsound taxation by federal, state, and local governments."

GROSS REVENUES OF CANADIAN RAILWAYS RISE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Quebec, Dec. 29.—The Canadian National Railways, government owned road, had, in the eleven months ended Nov. 30, gross operating revenues over $40,000,000 in excess of the Canadian Pacific railway, privately owned road, yet net operating profits were nearly $7,000,000 less.

Gross operating revenues of the Canadian National for the eleven month period are announced at $158,097,796, a gain of $6,661,775 over a year ago. Gross operating revenues of the Canadian Pacific were $118,097,638, an increase of $3,260,463 over a year ago.

Net operating profits of the Canadian National were $12,130,957, an improvement of $479,010 over a year ago. Net operating profits of the Canadian Pacific were $19,091,510, a decrease of $2,121,104 compared with a year ago. Operating expenses of the Canadian National in the eleven month period were $146,078,839, an increase of $6,182,765 over a year ago. Operating expenses of the Canadian Pacific were $99,006,127, an increase of $5,381,568 over last year.

Commercial Solvents Makes Insurance Gift

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Life insurance policies totaling more than $2,000,000 were given as New Year's presents to the 1,400 employés of the Commercial Solvents corporation and its subsidiaries, it was announced today. Amounts of the individual policies were based on wages earned, the lowest policy being for $1,000.

Insurance Agency Firm Adds to Office Space

The Critchell, Miller, Whitney and Barbour insurance agency has enlarged its offices in the Insurance Exchange building by 20 per cent. This firm, which is one of the oldest in Chicago, prides itself in the fact that no employé was dropped from the rolls in 1929, nor has any employé left the firm because of the business slump, since that time.

STEEL OUTPUT THIS YEAR RUNS 30% ABOVE 1934

Further Rise Likely After Holidays.

The steel industry this week closes a year in which production ran 30 per cent ahead of the preceding year and looks forward to 1936 with confidence, says the magazine Steel. This week, however, production will be about the same as last week's 48 per cent rate, due to another holiday. A year ago operations were only at 39 per cent of production capacity.

A rapid rebound is expected in the industry after the opening of the new year, although recovery in Chicago will be slower, inasmuch as the Inland Steel company has taken off eight open harths for several weeks pending improvements on its blooming mill.

Last week the rate here dropped to 50 per cent, off 10½ points. Pittsburgh declined 6 points to 34 per cent, Cleveland 42 points to 40 per cent, Wheeling 7 to 70, Buffalo 3 to 47, eastern Pennsylvania 1 to 34½, and New England 6 to 77 per cent.

Youngstown Output Higher.

Youngstown bucked the downward trend to gain 3 points to 59 per cent and is scheduled to hold this rate at the opening of this week and rise to 61 per cent by the end of the week. Detroit remained at 88 per cent of capacity.

"A fresh impetus has been imparted to steelworks activity by developments over the last few months, which steelmakers believe will carry far into the new year," the journal says. "The temporary holiday interruptions, therefore, have been of little significance in the general outlook for rising demand from principal consumers. Finishing mills generally have substantial orders on their books for January delivery, while heavy shipments of semi-finished steel seem assured for completing fourth quarter contracts."

Demand for steel from car repair shops is the largest for the year, being stimulated by the gains in car loadings and the urgent need for equipment, the magazine says.

Hold to Price Advance.

Although leading producers are holding firmly to the advance of $2 a ton on semi-finished steel for new orders in the first quarter, one small producer is reported as offering wire rods at the former level.

Pig iron producers have reduced stocks through heavy shipments. They have few uncompleted fourth quarter contracts and are booking some tonnage for January at the $1 a ton advance.

Scrap is strong, but the market is quiet, the journal reports. A Buffalo melter purchased 10,000 tons of No. 2 heavy melting steel at $11.50 a ton, up 75 cents. It is also reported Japan has more scrap than she needs and is negotiating with Italy to divert some of its surplus. At the same time England has been bidding actively for scrap in this country.

GAS, ELECTRIC STOVES ADDED BY KELVINATOR

Kelvinator will supplement its electric refrigerator line in 1936 with a line of gas stoves, electric stoves, and hot water heaters, it was learned yesterday, with the appointment of the Gambill company, Inc., as distributor of Kelvinator products in the Chicago trading area.

Charles E. Gambill, president of the new company, said that Commonwealth Edison company, former distributor, will serve as major Chicago retail dealer and that a number of other dealers will be appointed. Outside of Chicago 35 dealers are selling Kelvinator products in the area.

The new company is located in the 4 story building at 2451-53 South Michigan avenue, adjoining the Gambill Motor company, which handles Chevrolet automobiles. Gamb

RETAIL PRICES OF MEAT DECLINE 4 TO 11 PER CENT

Woods Reviews Condition of Packing Industry.

Retail prices of meat in the last few weeks have been from 4 to 11 per cent lower than they were three months ago when prices were at or near the 1935 peak, William Whitfield Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers, declared yesterday in a year-end review of the packing industry. Woods said that declines took place in the case of virtually all cuts.

"Of the twenty retail meat cuts for which prices are quoted by the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture, thirteen are selling now at a lower figure than they were when prices were at or near the peak," Woods declared.

Changes in Prices.

"Retail price changes in this period have ranged from no change to a decrease of 11 per cent in the case of beef, 4 to 10 per cent decreases in the case of pork, from no change to a decrease of 7 per cent for lamb, and from a 5 per cent increase to a 5 per cent decrease for veal. The percentages are based on the latest figures on retail meat prices at Chicago."

Woods said that 1935 brought good news for producers of cattle, calves, and sheep in a comparison of present prices with those of a year ago. He pointed out that prices of better grade cattle are from 16 to 30 per cent higher than a year ago, lower grades of cattle are from 32 to 90 per cent higher than a year ago, and prices of lambs have shown an increase of from 25 to 30 per cent.

"These increases have meant larger cash returns to cattle and lamb growers because the combined number of these animals which they marketed in 1935 was nearly the same as the number they sold in 1934, exclusive of the animals purchased last year in the government's drouth relief program," Woods continued. "Prices of hogs have shown a gain of nearly 30 per cent since Jan. 1, 1935."

Pork Production Declines.

Woods pointed out that pork production declined nearly 40 per cent from the large volume of 1934. Production of beef, veal, and lamb, combined, in 1935 was only 7 per cent below that of 1934, which was a year of unusually large output of these meats.

Discussing employment in the industry, Woods said that employment and pay rolls from 1930 to 1934 were substantially above the average for all manufacturing industries. However, with the drastic drop in hog supplies in 1935, the index of employment in the packing industry declined.

Woods stated that present estimates do not indicate substantial changes in the volume of production of live stock in 1936. It is probable that the supplies of hogs will be about the same in the first months of 1936 as they were in the same period of 1935, he estimated, but said there may be an expansion in receipts later in 1936.

MEN WITH AUTOS.

Do you want to improve your living conditions? Decrease rent and food costs? Want to know of a plan for real economic security? Then write us—we can do thousands of others. That's why you can earn a good living by showing people how. No really big capital is needed to present this 22-pc. and 4-pc. demonstration home-needs, complete with house, placted grounds, and poultry exhibit to interested prospects. Thousands of people have inspected this property—are sold. Then we collect commissions, leads furnished. Also allowance for use of your car.
See Mr. Brown, Room 417 Conway Bldg., 111 W. Washington.

WE ARE HIRING A MEN FOR OUR household appliance department to make outside contacts for us. Positions will be permanent with promotions to the right men. Must be over 25 years of age and be able to start immediately. Income on percentage will be discussed at interview. No experience necessary, but we insist on good references. Call Employment department, 9th floor, Monday, 9 to 10, or 1:30 to 2:30.

BURNHAM'S

EARN MORE

The easy-to-learn Burnham System quickly enables you to become a skilled beauty operator. Plenty of living models. You learn by doing rather than by studying. Each teacher a specialist. Fewer pupils per teacher.

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY MORE GIRLS ENROLL IN BURNHAM'S THAN IN ANY OTHER BEAUTY SCHOOL.

BURNHAM'S AWARDS TRIP TO PARIS to STUDENT. Geneve Huffman, winner of semi-annual Burnham scholarship for efficiency while in training, sailed June 19 on S. S. Manhattan with all expenses paid. Burnham's offers opportunities not found elsewhere.

DAY OR EVENING CLASSES.
Pay for MOST of your tuition after graduation. It is to your advantage to register now, even if you cannot start until later. Open every day and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings until 9 p. m.

DeLEE Training
Brings You More Pay
and a Better Position

Only DeLEE provides individual personalized instruction in latest beauty culture and hairdressing methods. Why be satisfied with an ordinary "trade school" training when DeLEE offers a "university type" of instruction? DeLEE methods teach you the most in the shortest time.

Call in person, talk with the DeLEE dean, and let her explain to you exactly why DeLEE training prepares you for a BETTER PAYING position. You will enjoy your visit to DeLEE and it will not obligate you in any way.

Assassinate State Representative Prignano in 20th Ward Home—Cook County Trafic Toll Passes 1,000

WHERE PRIGNANO WAS KILLED—Scene after Al Prignano, state representative was shot down by three men last night. The Prignano car, from which Prignano, his wife, their son, and Mrs. Prignano's mother had alighted, is in front of 722 Bunker street. The Prignano home is above his offices. He was shot in the doorway after his family had been sent upstairs. (Story on page 1.)
